WEAVER'S SAD FALL BLIGHT ON UPLIFT

Crumbling of Pedestal Under Reform Champion Philadelphia's Latest Shame.

HONEST, BUT PLAIN CLAY.

Piteous Spectacle of Near Great Man Wooing Ruin in Sulk Portrayed in "Saved" City.

BY RAYMOND.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Quite the most extraordinary thing about the campaign in Pennsylvania this year is the tumbling from his pedestal of Mayor Weaver of Philadelphia.

Less than a year ago he was being exploited as one of the great reformers of the country. His picture could be found in magazines, laudatory biographies were scattered broadcast, and magazine uplifters, in particular the men who go about preaching the doctrine of graft and reform, worshiped Weaver.

For a time he was put in a class with Folk, Jerome, La Follette, and even Roosevelt himself. Great things were predicted for Mayor Weaver. He had redeemed a city sunk in its own vice and had broken away from the machine which had put him in office, and, apparently, was about to lead the people up to the high mountain from which they might see the promised land, flowing with the milk and honey of decent government.

Wears Crown Well at First.

Furthermore, Mayor Weaver actually was doing these things. He drove the bosses out of the city government, he cleaned up the police force, he purged the rotten registry lists, and he gave Philadelphia a fair start toward a government which should be a model for other cities of the country. His friends made the most extravagant predictions regarding his future. They declared he would remain mayor only long enough to clean up the city thoroughly, then it was expected he would be nominated for governor, wipe grafters out of the state government, and thus be ready for new honors.

It was freely predicted that this Philadelphia man who had broken away from his political associates and had led the people out into the light was destined to become the successor to President Roosevelt.

After all these predictions were not so extravagant. He had done great things, and he did have great opportunity. That he did not improve his opportunities no man could foresee. It remained for developments of the present political campaign to show that Mayor Weaver after all was made of common clay; that he had not in him the making of anything more than a local character, and that when he was tried in a large emergency he had been found woefully wanting.

Now Rankers for "Ring" Again.

Six months ago no one would have believed that when there was a great reform campaign on and his services were particularly needed, the mayor would sulk in his tent merely because of fancied political slights and that he would be today actually wavering between the reform crowd, whose prophet he had been, and the old ring, whose servant he was once, yet this is the fact today, and substantial business men and leaders of the reform movement have been obliged to labor with Mayor Weaver day after day to prevent him going back to the old ring which put him in office.

He is not indispensable to the cause of reform in Pennsylvania, but if he had openly gone back to the ring the effect upon the police force and election officials would have been extremely bad, and at one stage of the campaign it might have been enough to decide the fight against the reform element.

As if to make more prominent the failure of Mayor Weaver to measure up to the necessity of anything more than a local figure, his present extraordinary attitude has been dictated not by any difference of opinion as to matters of public policy but simply and solely because of his bitter chagrin and humiliation over the failure of his personal political ambitions. This makes more conspicuous the overturning of the statue from its pedestal. Even his best friends are surprised and mortified that it should be necessary for one delegation after another to visit him for the purpose of making him stand by his guns and preventing unnecessary and unwholesome surrender to the bosses and grafters he fought so bravely only a few months ago. There may be more pictures in magazines of the mayor of Philadelphia, but they scarcely will be accompanied by the same kind of biography.

"Personally Honest," but Weak.

By this it must not be understood Mayor Weaver condones dishonesty or that any improper motives have been inducing him to betray people. On the contrary, he is as clean personally as he was when he issued his declaration of independence from the "robber ring" which had made him mayor and which had plundered the people of Philadelphia right and left.

Weaver today is honest. The only trouble with him is that he has been unable to separate his personal political ambitions from the great cause of reform itself. He constantly has confounded the two things together and because he failed to secure the nomination for governor and later on because he also failed to make his personal friend and counsel district attorney of Philadelphia he has turned his back on all his reform associates and has broken with the men who made his administration brilliant, has refused to enter the campaign for the reform candidate for governor, and has appointed men to his personal municipal cabinet who are in open sympathy with the old gang ticket.

This is not an ordinary case of sulks. Some of the best men in Philadelphia, people who had been behind the reform movement since its beginning, until with a day or two had to save that Mayor Weaver would go back to the people who secured his first election. The result of this would be that the Penrose ring would assume certain control of the city government again and a great measure of what had been gained by the wave of reform would be lost.

Just Saved from Dishonor.

These people have labored with Mayor Weaver to induce him to stay with them and prevent having only just succeeded. He has at last intimated to his callers that he will not abandon the city party altogether, but he is by no means cordial, and he is still, unfortunately for his reputation, disposed to lay particular stress upon his own personal and po-

CANNON DIVIDES BANQUET HONORS

Speaker with Modesty Accepts Praise as One Presidential Possibility and Talks About Politics.

BRYAN GETS A ROASTING.

James E. Watson Adds Life to Marquette Club Dinner by Picturesque Attack on "Peerless" One.

Speaker Joseph G. Cannon and Congressman James E. Watson of Indiana divided honors last night at the "Chicago Day" banquet of the Marquette club at the Auditorium hotel—Mr. Cannon because of what he is and Mr. Watson because of what he said.

Mr. Cannon appeared in his latest character of "possible republican candidate for president," a character which sticks to him in spite of his modest assertions that he is more apt to be struck by lightning than to be president.

His modesty was not put to a severe test by his associates at the speakers' table. Congressman Watson referred to him as one of the possibilities, whereat there were great and lusty cheers from the Marquette club, but he also referred to Vice President Fairbanks [likewise great cheers], Secretary Taft [great cheers], Senator Foraker [mild—extremely mild—cheers], and Secretary Root [many cheers] in the same way, thus giving Mr. Cannon the chance to feel that the responsibility was divided up.

Also Man Whom West Trusts.

Frank Goudy, another of the speakers, referred to Mr. Cannon as a man in whom the far west would have complete confidence were he chosen, but otherwise, aside from the vociferous joy with which the banqueters received every mention of his name, the speaker was not forced to blush greatly behind the bunch of American beauties which partly screened him.

What Mr. Cannon had to say when he was reached on the program, which was at the finish of five other speeches, was confined mostly to a relation of the share which Illinois has had in national growth, from which he went naturally to Lincoln, and from Lincoln to the policies having their beginning in the Lincoln administration, and continued by succeeding republican presidents.

He referred briefly to the tariff without adding anything to his well known views on that subject, to the difficulties of rate regulation, and then injected a couple of hundred words relative to William Randolph Hearst and his alliance with Murphy in New York.

Mr. Watson Stirs Diners.

What Mr. Cannon had to say mostly was formal political argument. What Mr. Watson had to say was picturesquely invective. He had Bryan for his subject—not that it was stated that way on the program, but that is the way it came out in the speech. The program had Mr. Watson down for "1908," and he interpreted this to mean Bryan.

He devoted himself to a detailed analysis of what he termed the Bryan fallacies, and did it in such a way that about every other statement carried a phrase which will stick in the memory of the men who heard him.

After he had repeated one after another the statements which the "Peerless" Nebraskan has made at different stages in different campaigns, he said:

"If Noah had predicted a drought instead of a flood and had put in a system of water works instead of building a boat, he couldn't have made a more dismal prophetic failure than the peerless leader."

Risks Bryan-Hearst Forecast.

The Indiana congressman said that for his part he did not lay claim to any prophetic powers and that for this reason he did not propose to attempt to say what would happen in 1908, but he added that he was willing to risk his reputation in forecasting some things that would not happen. One of these, and the principal one, he said, was the success of the democratic national ticket in 1908. Another was the election of William Randolph Hearst as president.

"This agitator," said Watson, "cannot carry a single state in the United States for president, and I am willing to declare in advance of the New York election that he will be ignominiously defeated in that state for governor."

Another thing that would not happen, he said, was the election of Bryan.

"The old owl of the democratic party," he declared, "sits on the dead limb of the dead past and hoots the old hoot of pessimism, which is the only expression the democratic party has had. A man who has made 6,000 prophesies, not one of which has been fulfilled or justified by events, never will be president of the United States."

Old Predictions Went Wrong.

He referred to Bryan's predictions as contained in "The First Battle," and said:

"Last week, when I wanted a copy of this book I hunted through all the book stores in vain for it and finally was forced to get from the congressional library, where they keep all the old, musty documents of the dead past."

The local republican organization had made the Marquette club celebration an occasion for a gathering of republican officeholders and candidates.

With Mr. Cannon at the speakers' table were a number of the Illinois congressmen and judges, including Judge Grosscup, Judge Landis, Congressmen McKinley, Madden, Boutell, McGavin, and others. A number of the county and municipal candidates were among the guests of the club at the tables which filled the large banquet room of the hotel.

Speaker Evokes Great Enthusiasm.

President James A. Stevens of the club did not reach Speaker Cannon's name until the last on the program, and when the speaker presented himself the club members and their guests jumped to their feet and gave him a welcome which about demolished the table linen.

Mr. Cannon looked reprovingly at the assembled republicans, as if he blamed them for a condition of affairs which he was about to explain.

"I have written 2,000 words," he explained, picking up a manuscript, "and I can't remember one of them. I'll either have to just talk and say something which I have not written, or I'll have to read what I've got here."

"Talk," cried some of the guests.

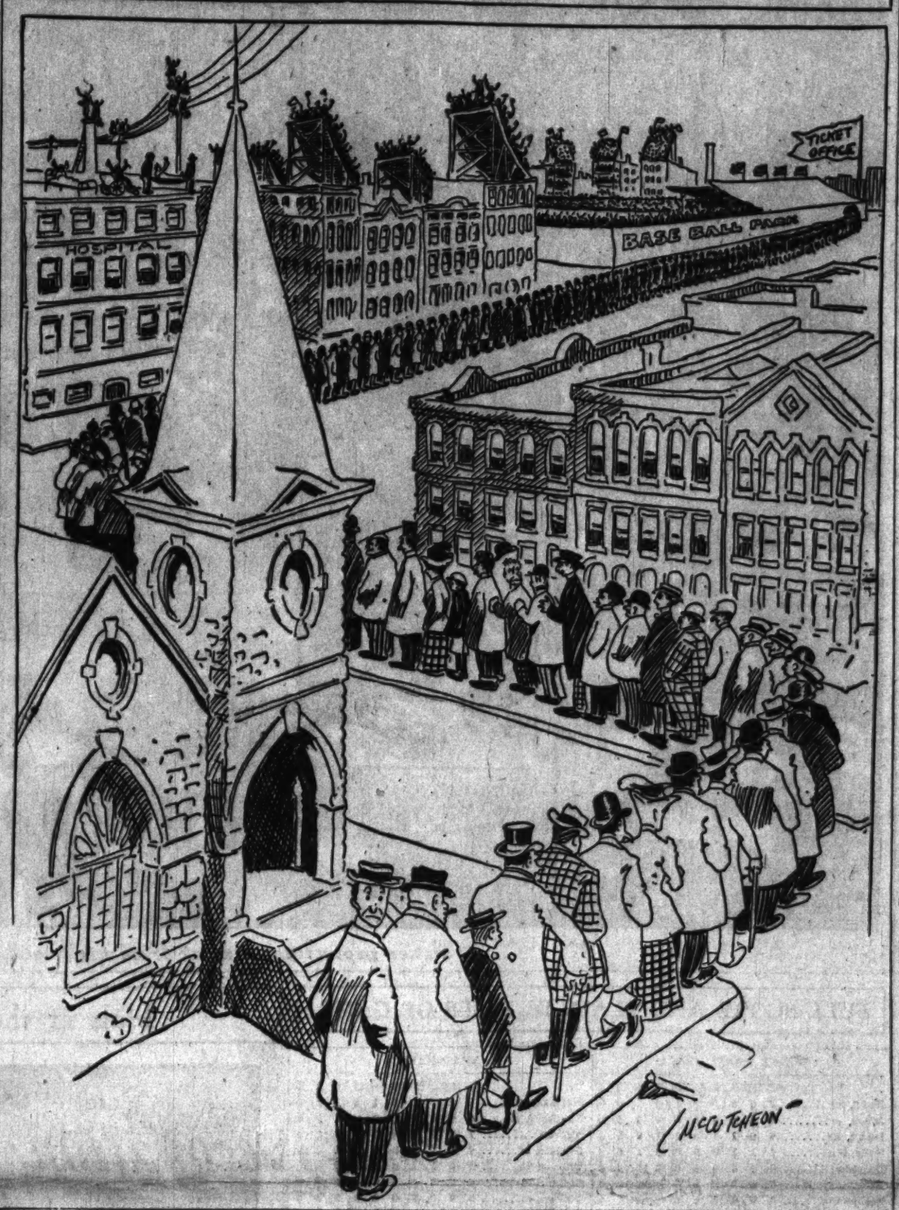

Mr. Cannon looked undecided.

"Read it," cried others.

"If the reporters will promise to lay aside their pencils and print what I have written I'll talk," he said, "but I guess the safest

ADAMS INQUEST A TRAVESTY

Coroner Accuses W. E. D. Stokes of Murder, Then Retracts.

CHARGE IGNORED BY JURY.

Verdict After Wild Spat Is That "Policy King" Ended Own Life.

New York, Oct 9.—[Special.]—Julius Harburger, who, in addition to his work of running his Harburger press agency, is one of the coroners of New York county, took another running jump into the limelight this morning at the inquest into the death of Al Adams, "policy king," by accusing W. E. D. Stokes of murdering Adams. The little coroner then found the limelight so hot that in his subsequent charge to the jury he practically directed it to render a verdict of suicide, which it did without a moment's delay.

After the jury had rendered the verdict to the effect that all the testimony showed that Adams had committed suicide, Attorney W. M. K. Olcott, who had come to the inquest in answer to a hastily telephoned request from Mr. Stokes, arose and insisted that Coroner Harburger retract that part of his opening address to the jury in which he had charged Stokes with the murder of Adams. The coroner made the retraction.

Wild Scene Prelude to Inquest.

"We are not concerned with Coroner Harburger's private opinions," said Mr. Olcott, when asked whether Mr. Stokes would have the coroner removed. "The coroner has taken back his ridiculous charge against my client and that ends the matter so far as Mr. Stokes is concerned. I will not discuss the matter any further."

The wild charges made against Mr. Stokes by Coroner Harburger, to prove which he did not at any time bring forward any evidence, made the liveliest sensation the Criminal courts building has had in a long time.

Harburger was opening his mail in his private office when Mr. Stokes, in whose hotel, the Ansonia, Adams killed himself last week, entered the coroner's office in answer to a subpœna to appear as a witness at the inquest. Stokes has claimed ever since the suicide that Harburger called up a news agency the morning the body was found in the hotel to say there had been a murder in the Ansonia and to send reporters there. Harburger swung around in his chair and said "Good morning" abruptly as he saw Stokes standing glaring at him from a corner of the office. Stokes muttered a reply and said:

"Coroner Harburger, I want to give you the name of an important witness, a bellboy at the Ansonia, who hasn't been subpœnaed. I gave his name to the police some time ago. Why has nothing been done about it? I want all this thing cleared up."

Harburger glanced toward the reporters, straightened up to his full height, and roared:

"You're handing in this name pretty late, Mr. Stokes."

"Shyster" Brings Murder Insinuation.

"I gave it to the police," answered Stokes shortly. "My hotel has been suffering from the notoriety. We've lost about $20,000 all because statements that come from a source I'd like to get at. I'll bring suit against whoever called up the news association the morning of Adams' death and said there was a murder in my hotel. Did you do it?"

"This—this is a public office," Harburger finally answered. "It's the most important office of the people."

"I know it's important," answered Stokes, advancing toward the coroner, "and I don't like to see it occupied by foreign bred political shysters. I'm an American, with American ancestors, and I should like to see this office conducted in a dignified American manner."

It was right after that word "shyster" that Harburger began his murder charges. "Stokes, you can't terrify me," screamed the coroner, losing all control of himself. "I believe you had a hand in this so-called suicide. You wanted, too, to suppress the murder!"

Fur Begins to Fly.

"You're a liar, you foreign little ——! You dirty little shyster," Stokes cried.

"Well," answered Harburger, with a sneer, "I think I have the man needed in this case. I'll put you, you millionaire ——, under lock and key, with all your millions."

Stokes, now white with passion, pushed back his coat and reached toward his back pocket. He may have been reaching for a handkerchief to wipe his dripping brow. Hatburger chose to interpret the act differently.

"Ah, Ah!" cried Julius, dramatically, as he turned and faced the reporters and yelled, presumably to Stokes, "Ah, you millionaire. You would draw a pistol on me, would you?"

"No, I don't have to draw a pistol on people like you," was the retort. "You are not worth it."

Flight Saves Attorney's Bones.

Just at this point it looked bad for the physical part of Julius, as Stokes was advancing on the coroner. Here Harburger made the direct charge of murder against Stokes.

"You ought to be incarcerated," shrieked Harburger. "I think you had a hand in the death of another man. You are the man I suspect."

Frank O'Connor, Harburger's secretary grasped his chief at this interesting moment and hustled Julius into his private office and closed the door. The inquest, which Harburger opened by repeating to the jury his earlier charges against Stokes, began a few minutes later and ended as already indicated.

NEEDS WORKERS; EMPTIES JAIL.

Southerner Pays Fines of Prisoners and Gets Men to Pick His Cotton Crop.

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—It remained for A. T. Brown of Muskogee, I. T., to solve the scarcity of cotton pickers problem. He walked into a local police headquarters and surprised the chief of police by offering to pay all fines of the prisoners in order to put them at work in the cotton fields. The unusual proposition was snapped up, and after Brown paid $250 in fines, twenty-five prisoners were turned loose, emptying the jail. They rejoiced in their freedom, notwithstanding the fact that they were hurried to gather crops under a blazing sun.

CHORUS GIRL FALLS 4 STORIES.

Member of Blue Moon Company Topples from Hotel Window—Injuries May Be Fatal.

Florence McDonald, a chorus girl of the Blue Moon company, fell from the fourth story window of the Windsor-Clifton hotel early this morning on to the skylight over the office. She was taken to the Wesley hospital, and probably will die. Miss McDonald, in company with Miss Bohman of the same company, was sitting in the window of her room. The window was raised, but the blind lowered, and, leaning back, she became overbalanced and fell.

[BY ST.]

Backed by hordes of sympathisers, Chicago's American league champions invaded the west side yesterday and won the first battle for the world's pennant from Chicago's National league champions by a score of 2 to 1 in a game so hotly, desperately contested that it averted an incipient snow storm, with which a stony hearted weather man thought to blight a gala event.

To Nick Altrock, of the snaky curves and handsome face, and George Rohe, a substitute forced into the thick of the fight by the disability of George Davis, the south side fans owed practically all the jubilation which they were spreading in thick coats all over the town last night, and in their mad glee over securing the advantage at the outset, the White Sox rooters nearly crushed the lives out of their heroes at the conclusion of the game.

Fans Nearly Mob Victors.

The instant Steinfeldt's fly settled into Manager Jones' hands in the last half of the ninth inning, ending the game, there was a rush from every direction for the White Stocking bench. First scores, then hundreds and thousands pushed and fought for the privilege of carrying Altrock and Rohe from the field. So great did the jam become that the players and the fans nearest them were in danger of being crushed by the delirious mob surrounding them. It was a seething whirlpool of crazy bugs, with two blue clad athletes as its vortex, and what damage it might have done never will be known, for a score of sturdy bluecoats hurled themselves into the mass, scattering fans like so many dry leaves, and, reaching the center at last, formed around Altrock and escorted him to an exit, surrounded by a howling throng of worshipers.

Desperately Fought Contest.

That was the climax of a contest which worked the rooters to a high pitch, for it was anybody's game at all times and it was played more brilliantly than cleanly, more desperately than brilliantly. Both teams showed symptoms of nervous pressure and all three runs scored were the result of slips by opponents.

Altrock and Brown were given the honor of starting the world's series and both justified their managers' confidence, pitching magnificent baseball. The batting was practically a negative quantity, only four hits being made off each twirler. Each pitcher gave one base on balls and Brown fanned seven batsmen to Altrock's three.

Altrock Against Brown.

No two pitchers were better matched than that pair; Altrock, a bundle of nerve and confidence, who won the only game the Sox could get in last fall's series with Chance's men; Brown, equally cool, confident, and courageous, with a brilliant season's record behind him after facing the most desperate situations possible without faltering and coming out with flying colors. These pitchers might have gone on until dark without a decision, but their support decided the battle, and because Altrock's was the better and more brilliant the victory was his.

Two Wonderful Plays.

Rohe shared with Altrock the glories of the day, because it was his long drive past Sheckard into the seats that put the Sox in the game in the fifth inning, and because his was the honor of scoring the first run with the help of a muff by the old reliable Johnny Kling. Not satisfied with that, Rohe performed the second most spectacular feat of the game when he reached up and speared with gloved hand a liner which Harry Steinfeldt intended for at least three bases in the seventh inning. "Jiggs" Donohue alone surpassed that stab, and Rohe figured in that performance, too. With two Spuds out and one on third base in the sixth inning Rohe grabbed Schulte's grounder and threw it low and wide to first. To lose that out meant a tie score at least. Donohue stretched and just reached the ball, plucking it off the ground, then rolled over on his back with his heel still resting on the base and the ball clutched tightly in his mitt, saving the day by that one feat.

Never was such a contest, for such high stakes, played under worse conditions. A cold, raw day was made more disagreeable

BABY PLEA OPENS CELL DOOR

Gov. Higgins Restores Father to Little Girl Suppliant.

TOUCHING LETTER IS KEY.

"We Want Papa Home So Much," Child Writes, and Prayer Is Heard.

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—The appeal of a 12 year old child touched the heart of Gov. Higgins today. He today cut four years from the sentence of John H. O'Rourke, who is serving an eight year term in Sing Sing prison, and he will be liberated just before Christmas.

The letter was written by Jenny O'Rourke, who resides with her mother at 417 West Forty-first street, New York City, and recites in a childish way the difficulties which Mrs. O'Rourke has had to bring up her six children, the youngest of which is 3 years old.

"We Want Him Home So Bad."

This is the little girl's letter:

My Dear Governor—My papa is in prison in Sing Sing and we want him to come home so bad. My mamma had to put four of my sisters and brothers in the Children's home. O, how she cries for them and papa every night, which makes our home unpleasant. I am trying to help my ma by writing you, for mamma says you can let pa come home to us if you want to. O, I want to ask you to please let him come to us, as he always was a good papa and always kind to ma and us.

Mamma has five younger children besides me. She always is crying. I think if some kind people had not helped her she would have died. My little brother Frank's fingers and toes were frozen last winter and he nearly lost one foot. I hope your little girls won't lose their papa like I lost mine.

I pray every night for Dear Papa and I am going to pray every night and morning so that God will let you give us our papa again. Please excuse my writing, as I am only a little girl 12 years old.

Hoping you will answer this with love from us six helpless children—Jenny, 12; Joe, 11; Frank, 9; Elsie, 8; Gladys, 5; Helen, 3. Yours truly, JENNY O'ROURKE.

Child's Faith Is Rewarded.

Mrs. O'Rourke and her two children who are at home were overcome by joy when informed last evening by a reporter of Gov. Higgins' action in releasing their father and husband from Sing Sing.

"I just knew the governor would do it," cried Jenny, clapping her hands together excitedly, while tears of joy streamed down her face. "Didn't I tell you so, mother? You know I wrote to the governor twice," explained Jenny, "the second time last spring. He wrote me a real nice note and said he would do what he could for my pa. You know if papa had been a mean man it would have been different, but he was such a good father."

O'Rourke was convicted in Dutchess county of burning a stable containing a span of horses owned by him, upon which he had carried insurance.

MRS. JEFFERSON DAVIS ILL.

Daughter Leaves Colorado Springs for Bedside of Mother, Who Is at New York Hotel.

New York, Oct. 9.—Mrs. Jefferson Davis, widow of the president of the confederacy, is ill with a cold at the Hotel Majestic.

by a chilling wind and cold gray clouds denied the sun more than a single fleeting chance to light up the picture. These conditions, far better suited to gridiron than to a diamond battle, combined with the belief of many fans that it would be useless to attempt to get inside the grounds without the hardship of spending nearly all day to get a seat, doubtless kept many enthusiasts away. The attendance figures, announced by representatives of the national commission who have charge of the receipts, were 12,963, considerably below expectations. But these same figures indicated the accommodation had been overestimated, for it would have been impossible to crowd many thousands into the spaces left vacant in the deep left field bleachers and the benches on the field.

Wait Long in the Cold.

Many of the 12,000 who braved all kinds of bacilli waited hours before the gates were opened at noon and then waited other hours before the game started. Not many of them escaped suffering from the cold, but there were some who came prepared for the weather man's worst. Fur coats, fur blankets, buffalo robes, steamer rugs, and other paraphernalia, familiar enough at football games, were brought by the wisest of the spectators, while heavy winter overcoats and wraps were indispensable to even a moderate degree of comfort.

It was a jolly, good natured crowd, however, with infinite patience and without bitter partisanship. The White Sox seemed to have the greater number of sympathizers, but that was because they were winning at all times, and the other thousands who were rooting for Chance and his record breakers had only an opportunity or two to make demonstrations.

Every member of the two teams was given a hearty greeting by the opposing bands of rooters as they appeared for preliminary practice—it would be a serious misnomer to call it "warming up." Sweaters were a predominating feature of the players' uniforms while limbering up, and heavier clothing than that concealed them when on the benches. Every move in the field was watched and applauded with outbursts here and there, while a continuous murmur of anticipation drowned out the ordinary sounds of the diamond.

Slagle and Davis Missing.

The roar which greeted the signal for starting the game was so terrific no attempt was made by the umpires to announce the batteries, and when the players took their positions it soon was discovered neither had its regular lineup intact. Jimmy Slagle, although on hand in uniform to share victory or defeat was not able to play center, and in his place was Artie Hofman, who was to shine later in the defense by a magnificent throw to the plate which cut off a Sox run after almost every one had conceded it to the invaders. Jones' team was without its infield leader, George Davis, and at his post was Tannehill, a convalescent, making room for Rohe, the hero to be, on third.

Just before the flag dropped President E. C. Wetten of the Hamilton club presented each team with a silver loving cup, a donation from that organization in recognition of the honors the players had brought to Chicago. With diplomatic impartiality the trophies were twins in design and were presented at the same time to Managers Chance and Jones, backed by the rival champions, who rushed quickly to the center of the stage as soon as they scented prizes.

Then the struggle began, and for the better part of an hour it was fought without advantage to either side. So well were Altrock and Brown pitching, so steady and fast was their support, that in four innings not a White Stocking reached first base at all, and only one Spud was allowed there, on a hit which did not pass the infield.

Break Comes in Fifth.

Then in the middle of the battle the strain began to tell. Chance's defense broke first, and, quick to take advantage of their opening, the south side champions gained a lead of one run. That looked to be enough the way the teams had been playing, but it proved otherwise. Again in the sixth Jones' men were given a chance by a pass to Altrock, and before the hole was closed they pulled through it the run which eventually won. In their half of that sixth Chance's men, fighting gamely to avert defeat, scored their only run. But for a wild pitch they would have been denied even that solace.

That battle and its result showed the west side fans how the Sox won their pennant while trailing all other clubs in their league in batting. The game was won by a determined fighting defense, which held back the heavy batting Spuds, and by a dashing, heady attack which took full advantage of every opening and every bit of the luck of the game.

Schulte was the first man on either team to reach first base, but there were two out in the fourth when he got there and, although he stole second, Altrock speared Chance's hot bounder and retired the side.

Rohe's Great Drive.

Rohe led the first successful attack in the fifth with a drive to left which barely eluded Sheckard as he ran over to keep it from bounding into the seats. Ground rules gave Rohe three bases, and he probably could not have been held at second anyway after Sheckard failed to stop the ball. A run seemed certain with none out, but Brown worked Donohue in brilliant fashion with low curves, striking "Jiggs" out in the pinch. Dougherty went up to score the run with a long fly, but instead hit a soft roller just to the left of the plate. Rohe dashed for home and finished with a slide, while Kling, in his eagerness to get the ball on the runner, dropped Brown's quick toss. This upset Johnny and he let a curve escape him a moment later, giving Dougherty second base, but Tinker disposed of both Sullivan and Tannehill and one run was the limit.

In the sixth Altrock refused to be tempted by the choice viands Brown offered him and drew the only pass issued to the Sox. Hahn sacrificed perfectly, and Jones slammed a low fly just out of Evers' grasp in short center. Altrock rounded third and dug for home. Hofman dashed in, scooped the ball on the bound, and without recovering threw straight as a rifle shot to Kling, who flagged Nick a yard from the plate, cutting off a run. But another short passed ball let Jones to third, and when Isbell deposited a short fly safely in left field Jones sprinted home with the run that won.

Nationals' Only Score.

Undeterred by this lead, which looked big to every one with the game more than half done, Chance's men came back in their half of the sixth and threatened to wipe the Sox off the map completely. Kling worked Altrock for a pass as a starter. Brown bunted two fouls and then hit a bounder over Altrock's head. Neither Isbell nor Tannehill got to it, and both runners were safe. Hofman laid down a neat sacrifice, advancing the Spuds to where a single would tie up the game. Altrock selected this situation to spring one of his justly celebrated subway curves, which hit the ground and escaped Sullivan entirely, letting Kling score and Brown to third. Sheckard raised a high fly to short left center, and it seemed out of reach, but Tannehill ran back and caught it brilliantly as the ball came down over his head, holding Brown at third. Then Schulte hit sharply to Rohe, whose wild toss to first gave Donohue his chance to save the game, already related.

Jones' Joyful Antics.

Both teams threatened runs in later innings, but the defense was too strong and perfect. Chance's best batters were up for the ninth and, his stanchest rooters were clamoring for one of the old ninth inning rallies. Moran was sent to bat for Sheckard to give a right hander a crack at Nick, but flied out. Tannehill disposed of Schulte's roller, but Chance, game to the spikes, tried to lead his club to an eleventh hour victory with a clean, whistling single to center. Steinfeldt was the last hope, but he had no fresh chew left for the occasion and lifted the first ball pitched high in the air over center.

The instant the ball was hit Jones began a crazy war dance of joy, for his keen judgment told him it was coming down right where he stood. Jumping in the air and waving his arms above his head the man on whom devolved the task of clinching the victory waited impatiently for the ball to come out of the clouds. Spreading wide his arms in welcoming attitude he slowly brought his hands together again only an instant before the flying sphere settled securely into them.

Idols of the White Sox: Altrock and Rohe.

NOTES ON THE SIDE AND COMMENT ON THE GAME.

Venturesome scalpers dotted the main avenues of approach, keeping on the move and soliciting prospective customers as they passed. Eight of them were gathered in by plain clothesmen, but one, a hunchback, made his escape. Detective Joe Barry spotted him and was about to arrest him when a woman dropped her eyeglasses in front of the policeman. It was the luck of the hunchback, as during the momentary divertisement he spotted the officer and back pedaled towards the county hospital.

Seated in two boxes on the third base side of the diamond were the wives and sweethearts of the White Sox, armed with cardboard megaphones and Sox banners. Miss White, a sister of Dr. Harry White, carried a small sized cub, whose hind feet were encased in white sox. After the victory was clinched the cub was inverted and the white sox showed on top. "We stood them on their heads," was the comment of the owner as the party moved homewards.

During one of the spasms of excitement one excited fan shouted "Touchdown." The mistake doubtless was due to the temperature.

The most frequent cry was "Sit down."

Dangling from the front of a box on the top of the grand stand was a small sized imitation cub, all wool and two feet long. In the front seats of the box were three feminine friends of the Spuds, the one in the center handling the strings of the cub. The aerial dances of the animal were few, and when Rohe scored the Sox supporters shouted to the owner of the bear to "Pull him in."

Spectators standing on the rear seats in the grand stand fenced an ice blast whistling through the open spaces. A number of them inserted their programs in their collars, while one chilly mortal wrapped a newspaper around his neck.

Men famous in many branches of athletics filed into the gates. Walter Camp came with Everts Wrenn, and H. Chandler Egan and Walter Egan of golfing fame brought a party of friends from Highland Park, while Fred McLaughlin appeared with a number of Onwentsia polo players. Jesse Van Dooser, Arthur Pixley, and "Snake" Ames were among the gridiron stars present. James McLean, who with H. Steers won the two man bowling championship at Buffalo, headed a large party of board of trade men.

Students of the American Dental college Joshed the crowd as it went by. One chilly looking spectator was reminded he had left his hot water bag at home.

The spirit of the day was typified well by the musicians who accompanied the Hamilton club rooters to the game. After the loving cup had been presented to the clubs the two cornists remained near the plate and played "Auld Lang Syne" while those of the fans whose pipes were not frozen joined in with their voices.

There was little kicking, considering the strain on the players, and the White Stockings made the majority of the protests. Once Umpire Johnstone put Manager Jones off the coaching lines, but no other penalty was inflicted.

President Murphy had his stands decorated suitably with American flags, which showed through wherever the crowd was not too thick.

Steinfeldt tried to knock the ball out of Altrock's hands when Nick touched him out, after fielding his grounder close to the first base line in the second inning, but it is doubtful if he could have got away with the trick, as both umpires saw it.

Evers barely missed being spiked in a close play at second when Hahn tried to steal in the eighth. Hahn hurt Evers' foot, so that he limped through the rest of the game. Before it was known whether or not the injury was serious the players of both teams gathered solicitously around Johnny.

The dispute over the number of umpires resulted in a draw. O'Loughlin and Johnstone will officiate through the series unless unable to do so, but Sheridan and Emslie will be kept in reserve by the commission ready for duty if occasion demands a substitute. This result was not reached until after a wordy but bloodless clash between Presidents Johnson and Murphy at the commission's headquarters at the Annex yesterday morning.

"One swallow does not make a summer," said President Murphy as smilingly as ever after the defeat. "I might add one snow storm does not make a winter, but it keeps fans away from ball games. The Sox licked us squarely today, but we will be at the south side grounds at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow just the same."

"I knew how that game was coming out when I saw whom Fielder had chosen to pitch it," said President Comiskey. "They'll never beat us now, and I have heard two pennants flapping out in the south side center field for some time."

"I was not surprised by the result," said Manager Jones. "I don't know whether Davis will be able to play tomorrow or not. Does it make any difference? We have played along without star men all season and have kept right on winning. It seems to be our luck to have everything break right for us when it looks darkest."

The chill in the air has made The Hub busy as a bee hive and the special festival offerings have been seized upon with eagerness and material profit. The special which is particularly seasonable is the Louis XV. fall overcoat which we are offering at a special low price in honor of this opening event. These particular garments were intended to retail at $18 and $20, and a certain number of them have been reduced for this week only to $13.50. After this week all these special prices will be withdrawn so it is, perhaps, needless to quote the old adage about "the early bird," etc.

DRYDEN'S STORY OF SOX TRIUMPH

Burning Pinwheels Keep the Brains of Chivalry and Beauts from Congealing.

ARDENT ESTEEM OF NICK.

Homage Paid Handsome Cincy Boy; Cubs Get the Rickets in Fifth Inning.

BY CHARLES DRYDEN.]

Twelve thousand and odd pin wheels burning in their ribs kept the brains of the chivalry and beauts from congealing at the opening of the world's series in the west side yard. First honors went to the Sox by a 2 to 1 score, and much homage was hurled upon Mr. Altrock.

In fact, so ardent was the esteem in which the handsome and talented Nick was held that the police had to rescue him from the clutches of his south side admirers. The frenzied fanatics wanted to rend Nicholas and keep the pieces for souvenirs of the happy event. Great honor comes to one who can trim the sassy Cubs in their own yard.

Fast but Not Clean.

Like the lunch hour in local chop houses the action was fast and effective, but not so clean as it might have been. The Cubs blew up on Mordecai Brown and the fingerless wonder detonated once himself. There were but four hits on a side, and both pitchers shone as high class men in the battle for the blankets. But the Sox made their four swats count and they also realized on the miscues of the Cubs.

The idea of being touted to lose on a 2 to 1 basis in the betting stung the Sox and they beat it while their ire was up. That they should slam the favorites by a score equal to the odds against them, is what the bards would call poetic justice as she is meted out. That the Cubs should lose with Brown and Kling burning the soft coal stings the west siders much. But it is not always the big smoke that suffocates.

Cubs Get the Rickets.

From the first until the fifth round the show was swift and brilliant. Then the Cubs got the rickets. Rohe poled a triple under the field seats in left and scored later on Kling's muff of Brown's scoop throw to the plate. That first run broke some real ice and sent a hot wave of south side enthusiasm rippling through some real snow falling at the time. In the sixth a pass, two singles, and a passed ball put Jones around the circuit, and the air seemed a trifle warmer. At this point the Sox paused in their mad career and permitted the Cubs to eke out one tally just for the sake of appearances. It wouldn't look well to bottle the favorites early in the series.

The pedigree of this west side tally is not without thrills. Mr. Kling walked in the sixth on the only pass Mr. Altrock had in his repertoire. Mr. Brown combed a single and Mr. Hofman sacrificed. Then Sullivan missed one of Nick's high grade curves and the passed ball counted Kling. That's all there was to it, though the Cubs had some narrow escapes from scoring. The good work of the Sox spiked the chances. While one game is not the whole series, Jones showed Chance that he is not an easy mark.

Nick a Clean Twirler.

Altrock had every incentive to push him along. He won the only game in the series last fall. With this little dab of prestige to bear him, Nick entered the arena arrayed in clean white socks and a couple of pounds of loose sawing stowed in his sport cheviot. These items alone did not sustain him throughout the trying ordeal. Nick's venerable papa was there from Cincy to see his curly haired child throw stunts. Pitching for papa and for glory, for gate receipts, and for horse blankets should gear any athlete to the highest notch. The elder Altrock has never been away from Cincy in his life. He wouldn't have been among those present had not a bunch of rooters blindfolded the old gentleman and backed him into a sleeping car late Monday evening. From all accounts of the doings Mr. Chris Altrock was shanghaied.

Ideal Day for Packing Ice.

The air in the ball park was ideal for putting up ice. Snow fell in lady like quantities, yet it was the real goods. The fans are brave men and women, and 12,693 of them took the long chance. These figures fall far below the preliminary dope, but as double prices were charged the money was there. Everybody gets his per cent just the same and that is the main issue. If the national commission could stretch a point and advance the world's horse blankets the athletes would deem it kind. They could use the robes on the bench.

As usual, the crowd came early and remained until it was over. The time honored custom of arising to stretch the weary limbs at the end of round five was amended to include each inning. From first to last the populace arose between rounds and wiggled to prevent the joint water from freezing solid. Great hold has the national pastime obtained in this city.

Wise Fans Look Like Pearyites.

Wise fanatics came in rigged out like Peary parties. Men in bear skin coats and carrying extra wraps squatted in the boxes and on the open field seats. There was no hint of summer. The scene suggested one of those fooling The North Pole automobiles about to call in charge of a gentlemanly megaphonist.

In the morning a little private business was pulled off at the Auditorium Annex. The squabble between Ban Johnson and C. Murphy over the appointment of extra umpires was amicably settled. After two rounds of words at close range, Byron Bancroft said he would chuck the little man out the window. Charles Webb responded by threatening to kick the banquet repository off Ban. As Murphy had no parachute and as the portly Johnson expects to eat again, both withdrew their offers and dispersed. The extra umpire incident was thereby officially closed.

Crowd on Hand Early.

An hour before play time the works were pretty well filled. President Murphy has made excellent arrangement for press and public and there was no hitch in any department. Details of police held the crowd in check and nothing worth seeing was missed.

Among the noted citizen athletes seen entering in the throng was Mr. A. C. Anson, now the suave politician. A wave of popular and high priced noise crashed around the yard when Pop squeezed into the rear of the press stand. The folks never will forget how he used to rip the seams a score of years ago. As a pinch hitter Pop was without a peer and his fame grew until he aspired to be sheriff. But the voters of Cook county didn't care to have Mr. Anson pinch for them at this late day and the idea collapsed. However, the populace yelled for a speech, but the grand old warrior declined with the plea that never come off. He lifted his shapeless hat and bowed to the constituents.

So Easy for the "Umps."

"Hank," O'Day and Bob Emslie came out to see how "Silk" and Johnstone behaved under fire. The umps found it so easy they decided to let their life insurance lapse.

Besides fanfares with flags, banners, and noise at in bunches, and when one faction would scare the other piped up. After the fifth round most of the loud noise came from the Jones contingent. When the game ended an attempt was made to carry Altrock from the field, but his quid was in the way. Nick jumped over on that side when the south siders tried to get him. They did shoulder Eddie Hahn and pack him part way to the gate. On the last play of the game Isbell pulled off his cap and his hair came with it.

Loving Cups Presented.

Anyhow, the rivals split even on tokens of esteem. That the Sox and Cubs may continue to love one another no matter what happens this week, the Hamilton Republican club presented a chaste silver loving cup to each team. It is said the cups will be chased whenever the owners deem it necessary. While the presentation was taking place at the plate the snapshotters fired a volley at the unchased chaste cups. Music followed this cordial event. A one man band playing one night stands in the daytime tooted "Old Lang Syne" on a cornet. That means there will be something doing around the cups later on.

Too Chilly for Dr. White.

Rare executive skill and bravery were observed in selecting the hurling heroes. It was necessary to conquer climatic conditions. Leader Jones intended to pitch Dr. White, the urbane and willowy dentist, but the sudden drop in temperature made the risk too dangerous. In the chill and wintry blast that swept across the yard the doctor's arms and legs might have snapped off like frozen macaroni. The more rugged Altrock, reared in the pretzel districts of Cincinnati, looked good to Jones so Nick mounted the hill in defense of his country and the horse blankets. The weather also switched big Ed Walsh out of the program. It was feared his spit ball would freeze in transit to the plate. The playing rules do not permit the pitching of icicles even in a world's series.

Brown has been carefully hoarded away and saved intact like cake for company day. The miner was great at the outset. He fanned five men in the first three rounds, using a fast underground curve he learned in the mines. But the Sox would bump it at the wrong time and those selected swats and battery errors threw Mordecai down.

Schulte Gets First Hit.

Schulte landed the first hit, a grounder to Isbell in the fourth after two were out. The fleet German stole second and Chance bumped to Altrock. In the fifth Rohe led with a triple down the left field line. Donohue struck out. Kling threw to nip Rohe off third. The ball hit George on the back and jarred a quart of goose flesh off his spine. Luckily the ball rolled to Tinker and he held Rohe on the bag. Dougherty hit to Brown, who made the play to the plate for Rohe, but Kling dropped the ball. Sullivan and Tannehill went out on grounders to short.

Altrock walked in the sixth and Hahn sacrificed. Nick tried to score on Jones' single to center and was nipped on Hofman's fine throw. Jones reached second on the play. A passed ball put him to third and Isbell's single sent in the run. Izzy stole and Rohe hit to Brown.

Cubs Score a Run.

In the Cubs' half Kling walked and Brown singled. Hofman sacrificed. With Sheckard up a wild pitch sent in Kling. Sheckard flied to Tannehill, and Schulte was thrown out by Rohe. Jiggs made a grand catch and fell that saved the tie.

ARREST OF TICKET PEDDLERS.

Eight Men Taken on Charges of Offering to Sell Admission Cards at Advanced Prices.

Eight men were arrested near the entrance of the baseball park yesterday on charges of offering for sale at advanced prices tickets to the national championship games. The names given by the men arrested are:

|---|---|
| C. H. Barnard, | Edward Lankin, |
| George Davis, | John Martin, |
| J. Edwards, | A. E. Matheny, |
| Frederick Elsner, | James N. Rabbitt. |

The arrest of the men caused some excitement in the crowd of persons near the baseball grounds.

It was estimated by managers of the nine principal hotels in the loop area that more than 2,000 visitors were registered for the purpose of witnessing the games. They came from every section of the United States, from Mexico, Canada, and many points in Europe.

"It is the biggest bunch of baseball fans I ever saw," said Clerk Burke at the Auditorium Annex, "and they came hundreds of miles to see the seven games.

Clerks Reul and Calvey at the Auditorium, Gregory of the Grand Pacific, Jackson at the Wellington, Denehy at the Sherman house, and Rothman at the Palmer house told similar stories.

"I desire to witness the great American game," said Col. Phr. Sanjorius of far away Manchuria, at the Great Northern hotel, "and have come from New York to see the world's championship series here."

"We will see those games or never go home," said Miguelo Enrique, who is at the Palmer house with a party of friends from Mexico City, Mexico. "We may learn enough about it to start ball playing in Mexico."

TOASTS AT BASEBALL BANQUET.

George Ade to Talk of the Game Abroad—Anson to Give Reminiscences of His Career.

George Ade, confessedly a ball fan, has consented to respond to a toast at the banquet to be given the Spuds next Tuesday evening at the Auditorium hotel. His topic will be "Baseball Abroad."

"Those Japs," said Mr. Ade last night, "are bully boys on the bases, and they can pitch like a house afire; but when it comes to hitting they are not one, two, eight. The curved ball frightens them."

Despite yesterday's defeat—and all possible defeats yet to come—plans for honoring the world's record breakers are rapidly nearing completion. Four hundred seats will be placed at the diamond shaped table, and of this number almost 350 have been engaged. James Hamilton Lewis will act as toastmaster. "Cap" Anson will give reminiscences of his long career in baseball; "Billy" Sunday, the evangelist, will talk of the moral influences of the national game; Gov. Deneen will tell all about the walloping the Springfield team gave the Spuds; Judge Cutting will deal with the game from the bench, and others, not yet definitely settled upon, will talk on appropriate subjects.

"Mashed Potatoes," or Views of the Result by Tribune Artists.

The First Ball Pitched in National Championship Battle.

FANS IN HALLS SEE GAME.

"TRIBUNE'S" GUESTS CHEER IN AUDITORIUM AND ARMORY.

Enthusiasm as High as in the Grand Stand in Presence of Players—Every Move on Diamond Faithfully and Instantly Reported by Voice and Shown on Board—"Show" Declared as Good as Real Thing, and a Great Deal More Comfortable.

For the benefit of its readers "The Tribune" will "reproduce" the ball game at the First Regiment armory today and every succeeding day during the series. Doors will be opened at 2 o'clock. No tickets are required for admission.

"The Tribune" was unable to secure the Auditorium today because of the regular matinee.

Tickets to the Auditorium for tomorrow and Friday will be distributed today at the business office of "The Tribune."

Three long cheers and three times three long cheers for THE TRIBUNE followed the ear-breaking cheering for the victorious White Sox at the Auditorium and at the First Regiment armory yesterday when the news was flashed over THE TRIBUNE'S wires that Jones had swallowed up Steinfeldt's fly and landed the "hitless wonders" a peg nearer the world's championship. Thousands of real fans and near fans availed themselves of the opportunity of witnessing the first game of the great series as it was reproduced by THE TRIBUNE step by step and play by play at the Auditorium and at the big armory.

Long before the doors of the Auditorium were thrown open the entrance was thronged with the readers of THE TRIBUNE, and by 2 o'clock the line of ticket holders extended along the sidewalk in Congress street to Wabash avenue. Down at the First Regiment armory another throng waited patiently for the doors to be opened, then crowded into the big halls, cheering for the Sox, for the Cubs, and for THE TRIBUNE. Tickets were not required for admission to the armory, but all the fans who came were comfortably seated before the first bulletin was sent over the wires from the ball park.

Readers Are Appreciative.

Those of its readers who accepted the invitation of THE TRIBUNE to witness the progress of the great game from the comfortable seats of the Auditorium and the armory were unsparing in their expressions of appreciation of THE TRIBUNE'S unique enterprise. Cheers for THE TRIBUNE mingled constantly with cheers for the Sox and the Cubs, and after it was all over several of THE TRIBUNE'S readers were so enthusiastic over the way THE TRIBUNE had reported the big game that they sat right down and penned letters of thanks.

The great score board, with its numbers and signals, its system for moving the players around the bases on the board, and recording every play the instant it happened out on the park, worked beautifully. The interest was intense. At times partisan feeling ran so high that the adherents of the Sox and Spuds engaged in wordy wars across the biggest playhouse in the west—and the others roared their enjoyment.

Enthusiasm in the Auditorium.

When Schulte finally broke the ice with his base hit, the first of the game, the Spud admirers went wild. Then came the news of Rohe's terrific drive, and as the figure flashed around the bases the Sox admirers went into a frenzy of excitement that stilled a little when strike after strike was flashed up, until it was shown that Brown had disposed of Donohue. When Rohe slid home in safety and the first score of the great series was registered the enthusiasm broke bounds.

Then, when the Sox added another, the crowd, which had been favoring Chance's team, began screaming for victory for the Sox. The sixth came, and with it the chance for the west side rooters to even up with the Sox admirers. The score board showed men on third and second and one out. Then the score was made with a man on third.

The Sox admirers were keeping quiet and trembling, but when the next two went out, leaving Brown helpless on third, the Sox admirers regained control.

The finish came amid intense excitement. Every ball, every strike, every move on the board brought a staccato yelp of joy, and when Steinfeldt finally ended it a yell of delight was heard that shook the walls of the Auditorium.

At First Regiment Armory.

Close to 1,500 fans, White Sox enthusiasts mingling with adherents of the Cubs, saw the game as played on the score board at the First Regiment armory. It was a wild, cheering crowd, which was possessed of enthusiasm galore, but the White Sox fans outnumbered the Cubs' followers. The crowd was good natured in the extreme and finally, when the finish came with a victory for Comiskey's loyals, war dances became the popular method of displaying the glee of the Sox admirers.

BASEBALL NOTABLES AND FANS DISCUSS GAME AT THE HOTELS.

Pulliam Says "Two More Finished Nines Never Before Came Together"—Cincinnati Has Big Delegation, Headed by Garry Herrmann—Connie Mack Passes Along a Good Word for Commy—Pro-Spud Sentiment Prevails Among Visitors.

The game was replayed last night by big men of the two leagues, who gathered together at the Auditorium Annex and set the fans in motion explaining how it happened.

Norchaian, arc with a laverder aster in the lapel of his dress coat, Harry C. Pulliam, president of the National league, was the center from which a group of baseball magnates radiated. The chief of the league, referred to admiringly by his associates as "the daily hint from Paris," was to be the host to President Dreyfus of the Pittsburg club and others at a theater, and he expressed himself while awaiting the rest of his party.

"The result of today's game was somewhat of a disappointment to me, naturally, as I had hoped the Nationals would win," said Mr. Pulliam, as he dexterously opened and closed his opera hat. "However, we can but hope for better things in the games to come. Whichever takes the world's title will have achieved greatness hitherto unapproached in baseball, as two more finished nines never came together before in a final series. Comiskey and Jones have a wonderful team and Murphy's players were not disgraced in losing to it."

Lively Delegation from Cincinnati.

A prominent out of town contingent was the Cincinnati crowd, headed by "Garry" Hermann, president of the national commission. The party, which came in a special car as guests of Mr. Hermann, will remain in Chicago until the ownership of the flag is decided. While slowed up some in their enthusiasm through the defeat administered to the representatives of their league, the National leaguers from the Ohio city found some comfort in the fact that Altrock, Rohe, Tannehill, and Hahn of the victorious team were Cincinnati boys, and credit for winning was claimed for the quartet.

Connie Mack, manager of Philadelphia's ex-championship team of the American league, did some early fanning with the baseball men before leaving for California later in the night. "The championship mantle fell on to worthy shoulders when Comiskey's team won it," said Mr. Mack. "If they play as well during the rest of the series the world's title will come to the American league."

Masterly Exhibition: Powers.

P. T. Powers, president of the National Association of Ball Clubs, came from New York to see the opener and returned east last night. The head of the minor organizations expressed himself as well repaid for the trip, and said he had never witnessed a more masterly exhibition.

The treat of the out of town men at the Annex showed a pro-Spud sentiment, but conceded all credit to the Sox for yesterday's great victory. Among those here for the series are H. H. Medicus, owner of the Brooklyn Nationals; Manager P. J. Donovan of the same team; D. M. Shively, president of the Western association and member of the national board of arbitration of minor leagues; Joseph Merrick, vice president of the Western; "Mike" Reagan, "chief rooter" of Boston; John C. Gallagher, Thomas J. Cogan, and William Bodeman of Cincinnati; J. Ed Grillo of Toledo; Mike Sexton, a member of the national board of arbitration from Rock Island; and "Bobby" Quinn, business manager of the Columbus team. One party from Kansas City numbers 115.

The men's fashion journals are predicting a great demand for "Automobile" Coats this fall and winter. Some of the better clothes shops are already displaying models. The best shown is reproduced herewith, front and back.

It is an "Automobile" coat but it will be more generally worn for cold weather wear, instead of the old time ulster.

It is cleverly made and well tailored in cheviot. It is loose in front but not "baggy." The back is draped and gathered and held in shape by a belt of the same material, which fastens in the front in the inside.

JURY OF FARMERS TRIES OIL TRUST.

First Clash in Great Battle Opens at Findlay, Ohio; Prosecution Scores.

STATE PRESENTS ITS CASE

Country Lawyers "Amuse" Big Gun for Defense, but Judge Decides for Them.

Findlay, O., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Ohio's fight on the Standard Oil trust began here today with the selection of a jury composed chiefly of farmers and the presentation of the state's case against the company for conspiracy against trade in violation of the Valentine anti-trust law.

The actual defendant in the case is the Standard Oil Company of Ohio, but the suit is aimed at the trust and its developments will form the basis for proceedings designed to smash the monopoly which for more than a quarter of a century has controlled the oil business of the country.

The penalty prescribed for violation of the Valentine anti-trust law, under which the suit started today was brought, is a fine of from $50 to $5,000, or from six to twelve months' imprisonment. John D. Rockefeller was made a defendant in the suit in the original mandate, but was granted a separate trial, the date of which will depend on the outcome of the present proceedings. Mr. Rockefeller will not be a witness in the case in order to obviate the possibility of immunization. The Buckeye Pipe Line company and the Manhattan Oil company, state corporations and alleged children of the trust, also were defendants in the original suit but were granted separate trials.

Jury of Farmers Trying Trust.

The guilt or innocence of the richest corporation in the world will be decided by a jury of toilers who burn the oil supplied by the trust and pay the price it controls. Nine of the jury are farmers, one is an independent oil man, one an implement dealer, and one a real estate dealer. These are the men: William Sharp, farmer; C. O. Myers, farmer; Joel W. Shuck, farmer; John P. Oman, farmer; A. L. Bailey, farmer; Judd Bushong, farmer; C. W. Daimon, real estate dealer; Ellsworth E. Huston, farmer; Grant Gibson, farmer; R. W. Bennett, farmer; Preston, B. Cathers, oil man; H. J. Rutledge, implement dealer.

The jury is a solemn, solid body, rugged and uncompromising in its appearance, and serious in its intent beyond words. Not gifted, perhaps, with an inordinate capacity for assimilating quickly the maze of intricate facts, figures, and deductions, of which it got its first taste today, nor trained to think in the complex subtleties of Standard oil finance, it is supremely indifferent to everything but the main issue—the honesty or dishonesty of the concern on trial.

Jury Deeply in Earnest.

The judge who presides over the trial is G. C. Banker. County Prosecutor W. L. David and a local attorney, George F. Phelps, are at the helm of the prosecution. Opposed to them the company has placed some of the keenest wit and strongest legal argument in the persons of F. M. Elliott, New York; Virgil P. Kline of Cleveland, and James O. Troup of Bowling Green, O.

It was shown before the first day's work was done that the trust lawyers are disposed to treat flippantly the legal talent of the oil opposed to them. Attorney Kline gave this little fact away when he chose to laugh to the stolid jury at the painstaking effort of Prosecutor Davis who presented the state's case, in which he epitomized the history of the oil trust. The jury was too deeply engaged in its own mental exercise to join even with a smile in Attorney Kline's effort.

Just what the state expects to prove was covered in detail in a long address by Prosecutor Davis as soon the the jury had been selected and the court convened.

What State Seeks to Prove.

Never in Ohio, he began, had a jury been called upon to try a defendant for violation of the state anti-trust laws in the Probate court, and never before had a case of the kind been tried in Hancock county. The evidence the state would adduce, he said, would be principally documentary. Mr. David gave the jury a detailed explanation of the Valentine anti-trust law, and then read the information against the defendant setting forth the ground of action. He followed this with a history of the Standard Oil trust from its organization in 1882 down to the present time.

The Standard Oil trust, he said, was organized in 1882 by John D. Rockefeller, William Rockefeller, Henry M. Flagler, H. H. Rogers, John Archbold, and a number of associates. The object of the trust was to control the oil business, and 90 per cent of the capital, skill, and property engaged in the oil business in the United States was gathered into the trust, which was controlled by nine trustees. This arrangement continued for ten years, during which time nineteen companies subsidiary to the trust but controlled by it were organized. Included in these were the Standard Oil company of Ohio, the Ohio Oil company, the Buckeye Pipe Line company, and the Solar Refining company. These latter companies, he said, were controlled by the Rockefellers, Flagler, Rogers, Archbold, and Wesley H. Tilford. In 1892 the total capitalization of the companies was $102,233,700, with a surplus of $30,000,000.

The suit of Attorney General Wilson of Ohio in 1892, charging that the trust agreement created a monopoly, was next explained by Mr. David. The Valentine act was not then in existence, and the action was brought under the common law. The Supreme court of the state found the Standard Oil trust to be monopolistic and against public policy and ordered the trust dissolved.

State Supreme Court Defied.

Mr. Davis here asserted that the state expected in this trial to prove that the board of trustees of the local companies he had named never did and never intended to comply with that order of the court "although technically they may have observed the same in the letter."

At a meeting of the board of stockholders of the trust, called to dissolve the trust in compliance with the order of the court, he said there was present for the company "a great and learned lawyer by the name of Dodge, who introduced a resolution formally setting out a new plan of organization." In explaining this new plan, which was adopted, Mr. Dodge was quoted by Mr. David as saying to the stockholders: "your interests will be the same then as now. The various corporations will continue to do business as heretofore and your proportion of their earnings will not be changed. You will understand that A will not get stock in one corporation and B in another, but each will get his due proportion in the stocks of all."

At this same meeting, Mr David continued, arrangements were made for winding up the affairs of the trust and liquidating. Trustees were chosen, being the same as the old trustees, which he again named. Seven years later, in 1899, he said John D. Rockefeller and the same trustees were still controlling the policies and business of the Standard Oil trust, and at that time only about 60 per cent of the trust certificates had been exchanged under the terms of the Dodge resolution.

Rockefeller Real Head of System.

The contempt proceedings instituted against the trust in 1898 by Attorney General Monbett of Ohio, but which the Supreme court of the state dismissed, were here explained to the jury. It was during the pendency of these proceedings, Mr. David said, that another form was given the organization. The Standard Oil company of New Jersey was organized as a "holding company" with capital stock of $110,000,000, and increased corporate power, which included the right to buy, hold, and vote the stock of the other corporations.

John D. Rockefeller, he said, was the largest stockholder and was president of the corporation. Between the years 1899 and 1901, Mr. David said, the New Jersey organization issued $98,000,000 of the capital stock and purchased nearly all of the stock of the subsidiary companies in the trust, including the Ohio companies heretofore named, and from that date until the present time the same directors have dominated these state companies, have "voted all the stock of all the companies, elected the officers, and controlled the policy of the same for the same effect and purposes as they did while they were in the original trust formed in 1882."

No Competition in State.

In conclusion Mr. David said: "The state in this case claims that notwithstanding the numerous makeshifts and changes made by these men from 1882 until the date of the filing of the information in this case John D. Rockefeller, William Rockefeller, Henry H. Fagler, John Archbod, and H. H. Rogers continuously, purposely, and unlawfully have maintained and operated a so-called trust, monopoly, or combination, and that the Standard Oil company of Ohio is a member of that trust or monopoly or combination, and you were called here today and sworn to try the issue between the state of Ohio and the Standard Oil of Ohio and to find in your verdict whether or not the Standard Oil company, organized under the laws of Ohio, is guilty of belonging to this trust."

Before Mr. David had proceeded far in his presentation Mr. Kline interposed an objection. The statement being made to the jury he said was argumentative. He said the present case has nothing to do with the formation of the trust in 1882 and nothing to do with the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, New York, Kentucky, or Indiana. It was for an alleged violation of the Valentine law that jurisdiction had been assumed and the jury called. The only thing competent to present to the jury, he maintained, was an explanation of the charges made. Mr. David replied that it was necessary for the jury to understand the ramifications of of the Standard Oil organizations that it might intelligently listen to the evidence.

Judge Banker saw nothing improper in the statements of the prosecutor.

All Most Amusing, He Finds.

When Mr. David had concluded Mr. Kline addressed the jury, saying the prosecutor's statement had amused him greatly, especially the long recital of ancient history. The simple facts were, he continued, that the Standard Oil company of Ohio refined oil and sold it wherever it could. It sold a small quantity in Hancock county, but he could not believe this a violation of the Valentine anti-trust law.

The company was and at all times had been dominated by its stockholders. Referring to the trust agreement of 1882, he said that Mr. Rockefeller and the others who formed it then owned the majority of the stock of the companies which had entered it. This agreement by its own terms had expired in ten years from its formation. He made brief reference also to the supreme court decree, one ordering the agreement dissolved and the other declaring it had complied with the first order.

The documentary evidence which the prosecution began submitting and which is stated constitutes the bulk of their case is contained in a document authenticated by the supreme court of the state as the history of the Standard Oil litigation before that body. It was all objected to by the defense as irrelevant, but allowed to go in by Judge Banker, presiding.

URGE MORE RAILWAY TAXES.

Attorneys Representing Corporation Counsel of Chicago Make Pleas Before State Board.

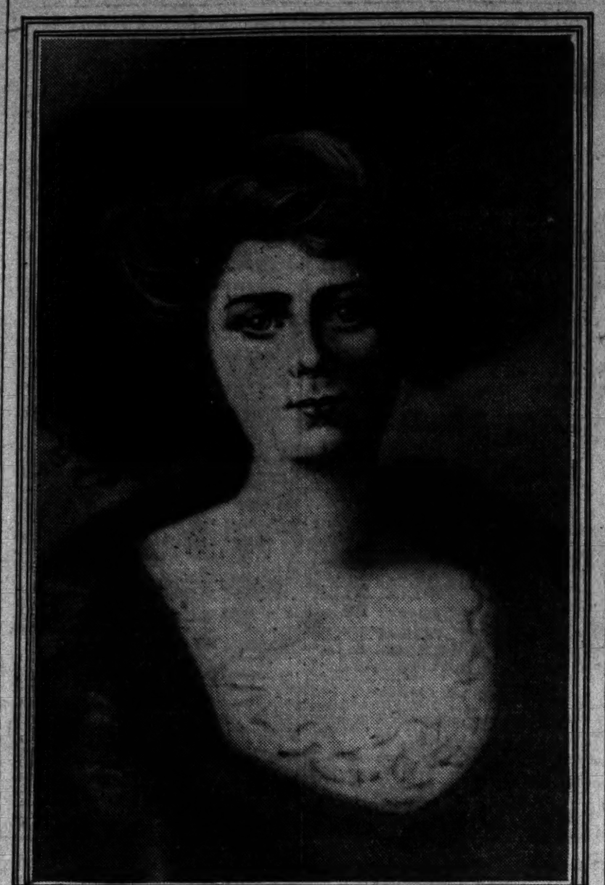

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—W. B. Fleming and J. M. Duffy, representing the corporation counsel of Chicago, appeared before the state board of equalization today to urge an increase in the assessments of railroads. It is claimed the city of Chicago lost $1,000,000 last year and the state more by failure to assess the capital stock. It is claimed the law has been ignored since 1876.

The speakers did not charge the board of equalization with bad faith, but said they could not understand seeming inaccuracies unless the board had failed to consider the debt of the roads as a part of their capital stock and franchise values. Judge Fleming said the omission of debt in the assessment of of a railroad was a direct violation of law and of decisions of state and United States Supreme courts.

The speakers presented details of only two roads today, but will be given an opportunity to file data in regard to what they claim should be assessed against railroad companies in the state of Illinois.

Subject of the Latest Gould Gossip.

MRS. FRANK J. GOULD

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—The report that Frank Jay Gould, the youngest son of the late Jay Gould, and his young wife, who was Miss Helen Kelly, had separated and that the husband was going to make a tour of the world alone on his yacht, the Helenita, was denied emphatically today at the offices of Frank Jay Gould and his brother, Howard Gould. The report had it that proceedings looking to a separation had been drawn up by lawyers, but that through the influence of Howard Gould and Miss Helen Gould a reconciliation had been brought about.

It was said at the office of Howard Gould that Frank and his wife had lunched at Delmonico's Monday afternoon and that they were and had been on the best of terms. She left on Monday night for Hot Springs. Her husband went aboard his yacht and sailed for Richmond today, where, after transacting business needing immediate attention, he will go to Hot Springs.

It is said the fact that Frank Gould is traveling alone in his yacht and that his wife is going without him to Hot Springs was responsible for the rumor there had been trouble between the pair.

INSANE WOMAN EXPIRES WHILE ON WAY TO KANKAKEE.

Miss Minnie Leggett, Many Times Subject to Hysterical Attacks, Passes Away in Arms of Caretaker, Who Is Hurrying Her to Asylum, When Almost in Sight of Destination—Companion Thinks Her Only in Faint.

Kankakee, Ill., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—While in an automobile hurrying her from Morris to the Illinois eastern insane hospital Miss Minnie Leggett, aged 51 years, died today in the arms of Mrs. James Derensy, wife of the county agent of Grundy county, who had her in charge. A coroner's jury later decided the cause of death was heart disease.

When the automobile left Morris on the forty-two mile run to Kankakee Miss Leggett was weak, but her condition was not considered serious.

Suddenly Finds Woman Dead.

The trip was without event until Bourbonnais, a suburb of Kankakee, was reached, when Mrs. Derensy discovered that the woman had become a dead weight in her arms.

She called her husband's attention to the fact that Miss Leggett was turning blue and was strangely silent, Derensy suspected that the woman was dead, but to quiet his wife's fears told her the woman had only fainted.

Holds to Lifeless Body.

Mrs. Derensy continued to hold the woman in her arms while the auto ran at full speed to the hospital in the hope that there was a chance that life was not extinct, but there physicians pronounced the woman dead.

Miss Leggett had lived in Morris and vicinity for forty years. At different times in the last few years she had received treatment in hospitals for hysteria.

Miss Kate McLean, her niece, is employed in the Chicago public schools and a sister lives in Fairmont, Minn.

OHIO "BUSTS" BRIDGE TRUST.

Eleven of the Twelve Companies Admit Wrongdoing and Surrender Rights—Others to Fight.

Bellefontaine, O., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—The bridge trust is a thing of the past in Ohio. Attorney General Ellis today reduced the trust, originally a combination of twelve companies, to a single company, and this one remaining defendant, the Mount Vernon Bridge company, expects to fight the ouster proceedings to the last ditch.

The quo warranto proceedings of the attorney general came on in the Circuit court here today. Five of the defendant companies were ready to give up, acknowledge their wrongdoing, and pay the penalty. These penalties are the surrender of their corporate rights and dissolution of their business by trustees appointed by the court to wind up the affairs of each company.

The companies ousted are the King Bridge company of Cleveland, Champion of Wilmington, and the Bellefontaine, Massilon, and Canton companies. Prior to the surrender of these five, seven others have left the state or gone into bankruptcy since the suit was instituted.

REPORT STEAMER AND 8 GONE.

Houghton, Mich., Hears That an Unknown Vessel Has Sunk in Huron Bay—Storm Causes Many Wrecks.

Houghton, Mich., Oct. 9.—An unconfirmed report was received tonight that an unknown steamer had sunk in Huron bay during the storm and that eight lives were lost. Owing to the inaccessibility of the place it is impossible to verify the rumor.

The barges S. H. Foster and Wayne, which were driven ashore forty-two miles west of the Portage Lake canal after breaking away from the steamer Barth in the storm, are reported to be going to pieces. The crews of both boats escaped.

The spars of the barge Pasadena, which was wrecked near the canal, are sticking out of the water. Wreckage from the boat lines the beach for three-quarters of a mile. One of the three men first reported as missing reached the canal early this morning, but the other two lost their lives. Marine men say the storm here was the worst in twenty-six years.

ROOSEVELT PLANS BIGGER TRUST WAR

Campaign Mapped Out for Battle on All Monopolies Like Standard.

LASH FOR TOBACCO LORDS

That Combine Found "as Monstrous" as Oil; Steel Corporation Next on List.

BY JOHN CALLAN O'LAUGHLIN.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt is preparing for another and sharper onslaught on the trusts. The dissolution of the Standard Oil combination is at present on the tapis; it was the subject of a conference at the White house today, in which participated the president, Secretary Root, Secretary Bonaparte, and Attorney General Moody.

But the Standard is not the only corporation at which President Roosevelt has sighted the government's guns. Commissioner of Corporations Garfield is putting the finishing touches on his investigation of the tobacco trust and early in the new year will submit his report on the monopolistic character and operations of the steel trust.

The most extraordinary thing which will be shown about the tobacco trust is that it has practically no valuable assets save trademarks. The steel trust, on the other hand, has plants of immense value which furnish some excuse for a vast quantity of the water injected into its stock. The tobacco trust has no such excuse.

Treat Oil Trust as Worst Case.

The prosecution of the Standard Oil company under the Sherman anti-trust law will be absolutely independent of proceedings now under way, alleging that the Standard gave and received rebates for the transportation of its oil and products, which necessarily was an injury to independent shippers. The report of Messrs. Morrison and Kellogg of Chicago and St. Paul, respectively, was submitted some days ago to the attorney general. Copies of this report were made and one was given Secretary Bonaparte, who is to succeed Mr. Moody as attorney general, and the other is retained by Mr. Moody. A third copy will be made and submitted to Secretary Taft for examination upon his return to Washington.

The conference today is one of a number that will be held for the purpose of establishing a solid foundation on which the government can proceed. There is no inclination on the part of any of the government officials to minimize the work of Special Agents Morrison and Kellogg. They made an exhaustive investigation of the operations of the Standard from the time of its inception more than a quarter of a century ago.

They have shown that the first stage in the development of the trust began in 1872, when the Rockefellers and several business associates organized a combination of oil refiners. For ten years this combination conducted business, but dissension occurred and refiners who were dissatisfied with their share of profit withdrew and entered into competition. To end this ruinous procedure the trust was formed in 1882, and for a decade it flourished, the Supreme court of the state of Ohio ordering its dissolution in 1892.

Aim Is to Smash It Up.

Seven years were required to liquidate the affairs of the trust and then the Standard Oil company was organized under the laws of the state of New Jersey, the capitalization at first being $3,000,000. The present capitalization is $110,000,000. The Standard has pursued it brutal policy in crushing independent refineries, and evidence has cropped up which the president and his advisers are convinced proves conclusively that the company is an organization in restraint of trade and commerce and that its dissolution should be ordered.

The president does not want to obtain a decree which will dissolve the Standard, only to permit its reorganization under a new name. He wants a decree so comprehensive in character that it will be impossible for it to continue in business as one organization, but will require its separation into a number of concerns which actually will compete against one another in the production and sale of oil and its products.

Since the decision of Judge Humphrey in the beef trust case, the president has been alive to the importance of having the Standard anti-trust case brought before a judge who will not be amenable to influence of any kind whatsoever. When Mr. Taft returns to Washington this point will be carefully considered. It is not at all certain that the case will be begun in Cleveland.

Tobacco Trust Just as Wicked.

The investigation of the commissioner of corporations into the operations of the tobacco trust has revealed abuses as monstrous as those which the Standard Oil investigation established. Not only has the trust control of the output of tobacco, but it has made every effort to put its halter around the neck of the licorice industry, which is allied to that of tobacco. As a result of the prosecutions instituted against the tobacco trust in New York some time ago, Attorney General Moody was able to wring important concessions from the tobacco trust in the interest of the independent tobacco men of the south, but the latter still suffer hardships which hamper them seriously in competing with their bloated rival.

Commissioner Garfield will be able to turn over to the president for the use of the attorney general a mass of information which will starfle the country. It will be shown, for example, that in one case the trust engaged in a cutthroat struggle with an independent concern which lasted four years. It fixed the price of its product at a low figure, but as soon as it reached an agreement with the independent concern, the trust securing more than 50 per cent of its stock, it issued a circular advancing the price 15 per cent.

By the coupon system which it has adopted the trust has exercised an effective means of injuring independents. In the opinion of the independents the coupon system is an even greater evil than the cutting of prices because it appeals to the cupidity of the people.

Same Evils in Steel Monopoly.

Evidence has been presented to show that in certain sections where there is competition the trust sells cigarets below cost, while in sections where it controls the situation prices are high. Bond and stock holders of the tobacco trust will be interested to learn the value of the trust factories and establishments, for from what can be learned it is ridiculously low in comparison with the immense capitalization of the combination. The trust places a high valuation upon its trade marks, which, indeed, seems to be its main stock in trade.

The steel trust has the same inherent evils as the tobacco trust, that of overcapitalization.

Charles M. Schwab, who is identified with the trust, called at the White house today and saw President Roosevelt, but the subject of their conference was not disclosed. In the frame of mind of the president at this time Mr. Schwab must have gotten cold comfort if he sought to induce Mr. Roosevelt to curtail the work of the commissioner of corporations. The investigation was ordered by congress, but under the policy the administration has adopted it is using the evidence obtained to prosecute all violations of law discovered. Above all, the president would like to place the officials of a trust behind the bars. If this could be accomplished further attempts at evasion of the statute probably would be prevented.

WEAVER'S SAD FALL BLIGHT ON UPLIFT

litical disappointment. Thus the mayor of this great city, who was so thoroughly advertised throughout the country, seems almost unable to comprehend the magnitude and dignity of the movement of which he was once a most conspicuous figure.

Part of the mayor's disappointed frame of mind is doubtless due to the unwise efforts of his closest friends when the fight for reform was at its tensest. Every man in such a position is surrounded by certain people who think it necessary to declare to him at frequent intervals that he is the greatest man on earth and that he is destined by heaven for the seats of the mighty. Your truly big public man always discounts this stuff. He knows that people about him find flattery a necessary means of securing his friendship. He doubts his own abilities and is apt to slse himself up by copious extracts from the opposition press.

But Weaver was not a great man. He was not even a reformer by instinct. He was an accident. He had been taken up by Philadelphia bosses because they believed he was thoroughly pliable. For while this was true, he was content to secure the dignity of the mayor's office, and he went to his Sunday school class at the beginning of each week unconscious of the debauch of knavery which tainted the Philadelphia administration, which always has tainted, and which apparently always would taint it, no matter who the mayor might be.

Huff Costs Him His Laurels.

Weaver was an easy going man. He did not leap into the battle for reform; he was pushed into it by force of circumstances. Once in he fought well, and he deserves the respect of the community for it. He broke with all his gang associates and he performed wonderful things in the way of deodorizing the city government. He drove bosses from place ruthlessly and he surrounded himself with good men. It is more than likely that some of these close advisers after the campaign for reform had attracted national attention practically promised him the nomination for governor. At one time they believed the regular republican party, after its serious defeat last fall, would recognize the handwriting on the wall and would head off further disaster by nominating Weaver himself. The mayor probably believed this in spite of the fact that the really strong men back of the reform movement understood the temper of Penrose and his crowd and were assured that nothing of the kind would take place.

Led Astray by Flatterers.

But at least Mayor Weaver was constantly told by his kitchen cabinet that he would surely get the nomination for governor from independents or Lincoln republicans and that he would be indorsed by democrats, so that he could go to Harrisburg as governor as a stepping stone to the White house.

Unfortunately for the mayor's cronies they could not deliver the goods. Lincoln republicans took the ground that the mayor was well placed where he was and they nominated Emery. The democrats followed suit, and the regular republicans, as had been predicted, nominated Mr. Stuart of Philadelphia, a member of the Union League club, an excellent citizen, and a respectable dummy candidate. This was the first bitter disappointment for Mayor Weaver. He showed his resentment at it, but if nothing else had come on to disturb him it is probable there would have been no open break with the reform leaders.

But Mayor Weaver was turned down once more and wholly through the force of circumstances. The mayor had set his heart on securing the nomination of district attorney for his personal friend and counsel. Unfortunately, there was in the field a young man by the name of Gibboney, who had been attorney for the Law and Order league and who had behind him overwhelming public sentiment.

Gibboney's Victory Last Straw.

Gibboney won in convention, and thereupon Mayor Weaver raised the cry of bribery, which was an extraordinary thing to do in a reform convention. Immediately an investigation was set on foot. The mayor seemed wholly unable to substantiate his charges. Meanwhile Gibboney had resigned because of the imputation, but when the convention was reconvened he was nominated by a majority of over 200.

This is the sum and substance of the trouble with Mayor Weaver. Because he failed to secure the nomination for governor and because his friend was not made district attorney he notified the Lincoln party people that he would make no speeches for them, and, as explained above, it has required the persistent efforts of the strongest and most public spirited man in Philadelphia to keep the mayor from going back to his old disreputable gang of associates.

HEARST ACCEPTS MACHINE AID.

Phonograph and Kinetoscope Will Conduct His Campaign in the Smaller New York Towns.

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Hearst's campaign managers are using every up to date method in conducting his canvass and the latest scheme will enable them to spread Mr. Hearst out all over the state, to be at several places at the same time, so to say.

One of the things Hearst did this afternoon was to talk into a phonograph. He made a corporation speech, which will be recorded on dozens of little wax cylinders and sent broadcast through the state. Kinetoscope pictures of the candidate making the speech have been prepared, and they will be used in connection with the phonograph speech.

At a number of small towns where Hearst would be unable to appear audiences will be entertained with a sort of Hearst vaudeville show, the moving pictures and phonograph working together. The Independence league managers claim credit for the new political stunt and believe the kinetoscope-phonograph combination will make a big hit in the rural communities.

Little Girl Thinks He Erred in Address, and Writes Again, Care Zoo.

BIG TUNNEL IS OPENED.

Party of Guests Goes Through Pennsylvania Bore Under North River.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE. New York, Oct. 9.

Thinks Stork Had Wrong Address; Writes.

Irene, the 9 year old adopted daughter of Druggist F. E. Blenckstone of Oradell, N. J., wrote a letter to the stork in the Central park zoo two months ago, asking that a little baby sister be left at her home as soon as convenient to the stork. No baby arrived at the Blenckstone home, but, Saturday night, a girl baby arrived at the home of Everett A. Haring, whose 9 year old daughter Margaret is a playmate of Irene Blenckstone.

The latter at once concluded a serious mistake had been made and she so told Margaret. But her playmate was obdurate and refused to give the baby away to the claimant. So Irene, on Monday, wrote another letter to the stork, addressing it Central park. She wants a baby sister before November.

To a reporter, who called to see Irene today, she said: "I love babies and I really want one. I am sure the good, kind stork meant Margaret's baby for me, but she loves babies, too, and won't give hers to me. So I wrote another letter to the stork and placed a blanket on the sofa over night, so the baby will have something to sleep on when she arrives. I have dolls and a cat and dog, but they are not babies. I want something to play with that can learn to talk. I have no brothers or sisters and if the stork knew how lonesome I get sometimes, I am sure it would send me a good little baby."

Irene is a bright little girl and one of the most apt pupils in the little school at Oradell.

The letter she wrote follows:

Dear Mr. Stork: I will please ask you again, please bring me a baby. You will find a blanket and pillow on the sofa, because I sleep there every night. So kindly bring it before November. I would like a little girl. I know a little girl who only got a baby last Saturday at 7:30 p. m.

Huge Tunnel Under River Officially Opened.

The south tube of the Pennsylvania tunnel under the North river was officially opened this afternoon, when C. M. Jacobs, chief engineer of the Pennsylvania system, and John F. O'Rourke, president of the O'Rourke Engineering and Construction company, took a small party through the 6,600 feet of subway that reaches from Manhattan to Weehawken, where the river tunnel joins the extension that is being bored through Bergen hill.

Work practically was suspended in the tunnels today, and the men spent the day in having their pictures taken and decorating the tunnel for the formal opening.

Mutual Charges Committee with Deception.

A protest against the action of the international policy holders' committee in mailing to New York Life policy holders a ballot urging them to vote at once for new company officials was forwarded today to Superintendent of Insurance Kelsey by James H. McIntosh, general counsel for the New York Life Insurance company. In his letter Mr. McIntosh points out that the company has observed the ruling of the superintendent of insurance, the purpose and meaning of which, it believed, was "that all material respecting the nominees on the administration ticket and on the international committee ticket should be mailed to the policy holders so that they could vote by mail on Oct. 18, and not before."

"The international policy holders' committee yesterday, the 8th inst.," says Mr. McIntosh's protest, "mailed to the policy holders a printed ballot and an envelope and accompanying statements in which the policy holders are urged in most emphatic terms to 'Vote now. Don't delay.'"

Mr. McIntosh charges the international policy holders' committee, in so doing, of open violation of the specific ruling as well as deception of the policy holders.

More Indictments for Sugar Rebating.

The federal grand jury today filed eight additional indictments against the New York Central railroad and several other corporations and persons for giving or receiving rebates on sugar shipments made by the American Sugar Refining company. The defendants have been summoned to plead before Judge Hough tomorrow morning when the New York Central will be called to the bar to stand trial on the first of the rebate indictments found. These now total sixteen.

The trial of the railroad company will not begin in earnest tomorrow, however. It was announced by one of the attorneys for the government that Judge Hough will merely set the formal opening of the trial for Monday.

Decides Hummel Is Not Entitled to Bail.

The Court of Appeals, in a decision handed down at Albany today, decided that Attorney Abraham Hummel, under conviction for conspiracy in the Morse-Dodge case, was not entitled to be out on bail pending the determination by the court of an application for a certificate of reasonable doubt, but, notwithstanding the decision, Hummel will not be obliged to go to jail.

District Attorney Jerome said that the case was taken to the high court merely to settle a question of law. He had contended that Justice Woodward had acted without legal authority in admitting Hummel to bail and decided to get a ruling on the point.

U. S. MARINES RUN FROM FEVER FOE

Americans Ordered to Quit Cienfuegos Owing to Yellow Jack Invasion.

AMNESTY STIRS ISLAND.

Taft's Intentions Praised, but Wisdom of Course Doubted in Some Quarters.

CIENFUEGOS, Oct. 9.—Col. Barnett today ordered the immediate removal of the American marines from the city on account of the appearance here of yellow fever. The marines were taken on board the transports. The yellow fever patient came from Cruces, where two other cases are reported.

Stir Over Amnesty Action.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

HAVANA, Oct. 9.—Secretary Taft, as provisional governor of Cuba, issued today a proclamation of amnesty applying to all accused of offenses in connection with the rebellion. Secretary Taft's action meets with universal favor in this case, but his wisdom is questioned because of the scope he will give to his act. It includes the persons implicated in the assassination by the moderates of Congressman Enrique Villuendas on Sept. 22, 1905, a year before the revolution broke out. It also includes those involved in the retaliatory attack by liberals on rural guards in their barracks at Guanabacoa in February last, when several were killed in their bunks.

Mr. Taft's idea is that one crime offsets the other and that there never can be peace until all concerned are pardoned. Many Cubans do not take this view of it. They point out that the murder of private citizens, especially in time of peace, is a crime against the individual and society, which under Cuban laws must be atoned for. It is not thought Mr. Taft can be condoning the private assassination to conserve peace, as the friends of Villuendas, if deprived of justice, will wreak their own vengeance. In fact, Cienfuegos is just now the most critical spot on the island, owing to the feud that has been started between the Villuendas supporters and the moderate party. Consul General Steinhart is now in that city trying to arrange a basis of settlement.

Taft Explains Policy.

Liberal lawyers are much worked up by the amnesty proclamation. They insist Mr. Taft has gone beyond his powers as provisional governor in intervening after a criminal case has been made out and a complainant is prosecuting it. They declare that the law of the land cannot thus be overridden and that not only will a vendetta follow but when Cuba is again under Cuban rule the act of amnesty will be set aside.

When asked about the matter Mr. Taft said:

"To my mind the cases of Villuendas and the murder of the rural guards in their beds are analogous. The revolution practically began with the first crime. We could never get peace unless we wore out all trace of it. To try the accused men would stir the country to the depths and keep alive rancor and secretly lead to another outbreak. The murder of the sleeping guards was an equally detestable crime. If one is forgiven the other must be, and we have got to let both go unpunished if we are to have the country settle down. We will try the broad mantle of forgiveness to all. If that don't work and there is a vendetta, which I hope there will not be, we will have to deal with it in another way."

A decree deciding the vexed question whether the late Cuban rebels have rightful title to the horses in their possession at the time the rebel forces were disarmed and disbanded was made public by Gov. Taft today. Where the plaintiff by proper evidence proves his title he may keep his horse, but shall establish that he was a member of the late forces in the insurrection and had possession of the horse on Oct. 1. He must show a certificate from his brigade commander turning over the animal to his custody. The courts are charged with the responsibility of fixing the value of horses at the time the cases are tried. No member of insurrectionary forces may claim more than one horse.

Taft's Orders to Funston.

Secretary Taft tonight issued an order to Gen. Frederick Funston outlining the duties of the American forces in Cuba. The officers of marines stationed in various localities are advised that they are not expected to take part, in an active way, in the suppression of disorder unless extreme emergency arises in which it is absolutely necessary for them to protect life and property. The duties of the marines are generally limited to rendering their good offices between the conflicting elements and the prevention of that friction which, in the high state of tension between the political parties, is inevitable during the present crisis. The order says it is expected that the presence of the marines in the community will create such a sense of security that the rural guards and the police will be able to suppress any disorder which manifests itself.

Gov. Taft said practically all the American warships now in Cuban waters soon would be withdrawn.

Gov. Magoon, Mrs. Taft, Mrs. Bacon, and Gen. Bell landed at 5 o'clock this afternoon and were received on the dock by a large crowd.

Record for United States Marines.

Adelaide Ristori, Famous Italian Actress, Who Died Yesterday.

Mme. Ristori as Queen Elizabeth.

QUEEN OF DRAMA IS DEAD

RISTORI, FAMOUS TRAGEDIENNE, EXPIRES IN ROME.

Actress Known All Over World for Her Capabilities Victim of Pneumonia in Her 84th Year—Came of Theatrical Stock and Made Her First Appearance on Stage While She Was Only Child — Favorable Impressions on English Tour.

ROME, Oct. 9.—The Marchesa del Grillo, better known as Adelaide Ristori, the celebrated Italian actress, died early this morning in her 84th year. She had been suffering from pneumonia for some time.

The king and queen of Italy and the dowager queen Margherita sent sympathetic telegrams to Ristori's daughter, who nursed her mother until the last moment.

Ristori's son, the Marquis Giorgio Capranica del Grillo, a gentleman in waiting in attendance on Queen Margherita, was in Paris when the great actress died.

Salvini's Last Grief.

FLORENCE, Italy, Oct. 9.—Tommaso Salvini, on learning of the death of Ristori, said:

"It is the greatest and perhaps the last grief of my old age."

Came of Theatrical Stock.

Like most well known actresses, Adelaide Ristori came of theatrical parentage. She was "born to the footlights," so to speak, for both her father and mother (Antonio and Maddalena Ristori) belonged to the dramatic profession, though in a small and unimportant sphere.

The picturesque little town of Cividale del Friuli, in the province of Veneto, in the north of Italy, deems itself proud in being the birthplace of Ristori, and amid the honors showered on the octogenarian actress it has valiantly held its own in offering her one of the first tributes of honor and affection (a bronze shield with a dedicatory inscription).

Needless to say the child followed in her parents' footsteps, and as early as 12 years did the future tragedienne made her bow to the world in which she was afterwards to do such good work.

On Stage at Fifteen.

Ristori's first important part fell to the young actress in her 15th year, when she appeared in the tragedy of "Francesca da Rimini." Her actual dramatic career began in 1837, when she joined the Royal Sardinian company. The young girl's real ability and talent were speedily realized in her native country, so keenly critical in matters of art.

After much study and hard work Ristori played in various cities; and in every Italian city she visited her success was assured. From this time her series of triumphs began —triumphs which only ended with the tragedienne's retirement from the stage. Her fame became world wide; every European capital opening its arms to the talented young "artiste," the greatest living exponent of classic drama, whose exquisite charm and naturalness vied with her genius in captivating all hearts.

English Admired Actress.

The English people always proved fervent admirers of the great tragic actress, and some of the records of her great successes were in England. One of Ristori's performances was attended by Mazzini (at that time an exile in England), and in an interview with the tragedienne the Italian statesman assured her that her marvelous histrionic powers had evoked from him a tribute which not even the wrench of parting from his beloved country called forth—that of tears. Adelaide Ristori was always an untiring champion in the cause of Italian liberty and unification, and eloquently pleaded her country's cause in many lands with unfailing success.

Among other memorable achievements of Ristori was the rendering (after years of study) of "Macbeth" in English, at Drury Lane in 1882.

Ristori's repertoire of plays was one of the most varied perhaps ever undertaken by an actress, her masterpieces including "Medea," "Mary Stuart," "Macbeth," "Marie Antoinette," "Judith," "Phædra," and "Lucretia Borgia."

Last Public Appearance in 1898.

Her marriage to the Marchese Giuliano Capranica del Grillo took Ristori a short time from her art, but her private happiness never marred or interfered with her great abilities. Since Ristori's retirement from the stage, in 1885, she had made few appearances in public, but at any time her services were asked on behalf of charity or for some commemoration her generous aid had never been refused.

Her last public appearance was in 1898, at the national dramatic exhibition at Turin, where, in the Carignano theater (where she had first appeared at the age of 16), Ristori recited the fifth canto of Dante's "Inferno."

The anniversary of Ristori's 80th birthday in 1903 was a memorable one. Greetings and congratulations literally poured upon her, for the whole of Italy, faithful to the memory of her greatest dramatic "artiste," laid a tribute of heartiest homage at her feet. The young king of Italy was the first visitor to pay a meed of affectionate esteem to the venerable actress, going to her in person and congratulating her.

Honored by Royalty.

The queen-mother, Queen Margherita, sent Ristori a splendid bracelet with a loving dedication engraved upon it, and costly offerings and floral tributes came from all sides of Italy. Even the great world beyond joined in Italy's homage to the queen of art.

The tribute most touching to the tragedienne on her eightieth anniversary was the gala performance on the evening of her birthday in the Valle theater, Rome, the scene of many of her triumphs.

Ristori not long ago said she always cherished her visits to America as the happiest recollections of her career.

OBITUARY.

ARCHBISHOP BOND of the Anglican church, primate of Canada, died yesterday in Montreal. Though not in the best of health, he was able to attend to his duties up to the last. He was 81 years of age.

Invitations Issued by Panama Commission Do Not Confine Bidding to Americans—$3,000,000 Bond Required.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—Invitations for proposals to complete the Panama canal were issued today by the canal commission and the form of contract under which the work is to be done was made public by Chairman Shonts, who also gave out a letter written to the secretary of war giving the commission's reasons for contracting the work.

The contract provides that each bidder must undertake the entire work of construction. No bar will be offered to corporations associating in the undertaking, but they must be legally organized into a single body with which the government can deal. Bidders will not be considered who do not have available capital of $5,000,000. A certified check for $200,000 is required with each proposal and a bond of $3,000,000 will be required from the successful bidder. The bidding is not limited to American contractors. All proposals are to be in before noon of Dec. 12, when they will be opened.

Proposals are to be expressed in terms of percentage upon the estimated cost of construction, which is to be fixed by a board of five engineers three representing the government and two representing the contractor. The chief engineer of the canal commission is to be chairman of the engineering board. The engineering board also will estimate a reasonable time for the completion of the canal and will agree upon a system of premiums and penalties, to be paid to the contractor according as the work is completed within or beyond the estimated cost and time. All the government plant for actual construction work, including the railway, is to be placed at the disposal of the contractor and is to be maintained by the government.

NURSE IS BIG AID IN MURDER CASE

Tells How Dr. Brouwer Gave Wife Suspicious Looking Milk and Medicine.

NOTED JERSEY TRIAL ON.

State Strikes Hardest Blows at Accused at Beginning of the Hearing.

Toms River, N. J., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—The prosecution today struck its heaviest blow against Dr. Frank Brouwer, charged with the murder of his wife, at the first day's taking of testimony. The evidence on which the state places its chief reliance for conviction was all made a part of the record of the case today.

In his opening statement before the jury this morning Prosecutor Brown said:

"We charge this man with deliberately poisoning his wife, Mrs. Carrie Brouwer, under the guise of ministering to her as a physician. We will show that arsenic was the poison he used. We will bring forth further evidence to show that while his wife was suffering from the effect of the first dose of poison the defendant gave a nurse in charge more poison in the shape of medicines with an order that this be administered to his wife."

To prove these two contentions on which the prosecution will rest its case, attorneys for the state called Frederick A. Genth, an expert chemist of Philadelphia, to show he found arsenic in the body of Mrs. Brouwer after it had been exhumed by order of the grand jury of Ocean county.

Then, with Miss Una Dudley, a trained nurse of Philadelphia on the stand, the prosecution drew forth testimony showing that while Mrs. Brouwer lay ill in her home in September, 1905, her husband repeated the poisonous doses that finally killed her.

Milk Causes Sickness.

"When I was called to attend Mrs. Brouwer Dr. Brouwer told me she was exceedingly ill," said Miss Dudley. "On the first day I found her resting easily. On Friday—the Friday before she died—she seemed to be getting along well, when the doctor told me to put a peptine powder he gave me into her milk."

"What effect had the milk on her?" asked Assistant Prosecutor Brown.

"She vomited immediately and said it tasted bitter."

"Should it have tasted bitter?"

"No, it should not."

Then the nurse told how she herself had prepared a bottle of peptonized milk. After taking it the patient neither showed signs of vomiting nor complained of a bitter taste. Mrs. Brouwer improved.

"On the following Saturday," said Miss Dudley, "she was feeling much better and had a normal pulse and strong heart action."

On that day Dr. Brouwer announced he had to go away, but he left a nutritive injection to be administered to the patient, composed, he said, of milk, eggs, and whisky.

"Was there anything peculiar about the injection?" asked the attorney.

Injection Suspicious Looking.

"Yes; it was thick, dark, and curdled—not like such injections should be," replied Miss Dudley.

"What happened after you administered the injection?"

"Mrs. Brouwer became nervous rapidly. Then she screamed in agony, drew up her legs, clasped her arms across her breast, and threw her head back. Her whole body became rigid."

"Show the jury, Miss Dudley, just how she acted," said Attorney Johnson.

The nurse threw her arms across her chest, tipped back her head, and drew her face into a horrid grimace.

Then the witness told of a succession of paroxysms that racked the patient all night. She said that on the next day, Sunday, Dr. Brouwer ordered her to give the patient another nutritive injection and stood by to see it done. She said she allowed the liquid to slip away in the bed clothes.

She was off duty when Mrs. Brouwer died early the next morning, Miss Dudley said.

Dr. Genth of Philadelphia said that in eleven and one-quarter pounds of matter submitted to him for test he had discovered .03319 grains of poison. Dr. Genth sprung a surprise when he said he had found glass in parts of the viscera submitted to him—three small fragments in the stomach and eight or nine in the bowels. He said the bits of glass were about the size of a pinhead at the largest. He submitted in evidence a corked tube containing bits of glass.

Expert Opinion Unshaken.

Dr. Genth was put under a grilling fire of questions by Attorney Wilson.

"Was it not possible that, in screwing the tops on the fruit jars used to carry away portions of the dead woman's vitals, some particles of glass were ground off the necks and so found their way into the contents?" he was asked.

The witness said it was within the bounds of possibility, but he did not think it at all probable. Nothing could make him modify his attitude. After three hours on the stand he was released. Before he left the stand he said he had tested some embalming fluid used to preserve the body of Mrs. Brouwer and that it contained no arsenic.

During all the strain of today's trial Dr. Brouwer sat behind his attorneys, calm and unmoved. Only once did he show emotion. When Miss Dudley told of the struggles of his wife his eyes filled with tears.

After Wooing Nellie Sandstrom, 5901 Sangamon Street, Three Years He Plays Trump Card, Loses, and Then Seeks Death — Woman Swallows Acid and Coroner's Jury Decides She Mistook It for Medicine—Another Drowns Herself in Bathtub.

Having put forth every effort to make Miss Nellie Sandstrom, 5901 Sangamon street, his wife, John J. Johnson committed suicide early yesterday morning by throwing himself on the tracks of the Western Indiana railroad before an approaching Wabash train near Forty-second street.

Johnson, who lived at 6001 Morgan street, a few blocks from Miss Sandstrom's home, had been paying attentions to her for three years. He had offered his hand to her on many occasions, but she had steadfastly refused. Several days ago he drew $525 from his $1,100 savings and purchased two lots at Sixty-first and Bishop streets. With the deeds in his pocket he walked over to Miss Sandstrom's home Monday and told her that the lots represented the site of her future home if she would become his wife. His pleadings met with the customary refusal and he left.

The deeds still were in his pocket when his body was found, mangled, upon the track. After hearing the story the coroner's jury returned a verdict of "suicide while temporarily insane."

William Wasserman, 35 years old, a commercial traveler, was found asphyxiated in his room at the Hotel Revelstoke, 3585 Indiana avenue, in the afternoon. It is believed he committed suicide.

Miss Maude Rappleye, 40 years old, 6237 Indiana avenue, sister of Nicholas M. Rappleye, a real estate dealer, was found dead at her home early in the morning. She had taken carbolic acid. A coroner's jury found that she took it by mistake, thinking it medicine.

Mrs. Susan Warner, 38 years old, 538 Fiftieth place, committed suicide at home by drowning herself in a bath tub. She had been ill and despondent.

DOCTOR'S WORDS

Talks About the Analysis of Postum Food Coffee

See Below

To the Doubting Thomases, the endorsement of a physician as to the wholesomeness of Postum Food Coffee may be comforting.

When coffee causes nervousness and dyspepsia, it's time to stop it. And there is where Postum is a true comforter. It is a warm, palatable and wholesome beverage and at the same time is a liquid food.

Coffee does harm, not because it's well or poorly made—not because it's high or low priced—but because of the alkaloid—drug—caffeine, it contains. The habitual use of coffee, therefore, forms a drug habit.

A Buffalo physician said recently, "I have used Postum Food Coffee in my family and find it to be all that is claimed for it—a most wholesome, delicious beverage. When made and served according to directions it is certainly delightful and refreshing.

"I have read carefully Dr. Davenport's analysis of Postum Food Coffee, as printed on the pkg., which I most heartily endorse. I have been prescribing it to my patients."

The Dr. is right and there's a reason. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Postum is served in the cafes of the prominent Dry Goods Houses on State St.

RUSSIANS URGED TO DESTROY JEWS.

President of Union at Odessa Appeals to Armed Band in Name of Autocracy.

INCITES TO MASSACRE.

Energetic Steps by the Prefect Prevent Carnage by His Followers.

ODESSA, Oct. 9.—President Dubrovin of the Union of Russian People made a remarkable address here today. He spoke to a band of 300 armed members of the union who had carried him on their shoulders to the railroad station on his departure for Kiev and said:

"In the name of our beloved emperor, I bless you. The holy Russian cause is the extermination of rebels. You know who they are and where to find them. Clear the Russian soil of them. The Russian people want neither constitutions nor parliaments, but orthodoxy and autocracy. Go ahead, brothers; death to the rebels and Jews!"

After his train had left the band of 300 rushed down the principal streets of the city, shouting: "Death to the rebels!" "Death to the Jews!"

All shops were at once closed and the Jewish population was in a condition of panic and terror throughout the night. Measures taken by the prefect, however, prevented further disturbances.

Mutinies Blamed on Officers.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 9.—The commission appointed by Emperor Nicholas to investigate the causes of the Sveaborg and Cronstadt mutinies have found that the blame was largely attributable to the negligence and inefficiency of the officers. It is considered probable that several of the latter will be tried by court martial as a result of the investigation. An idea of the lax discipline prevailing at Sveaborg fortress may be formed from the fact that the officers allowed the agitators who organized the mutiny to live in the barracks with the soldiers and distribute revolutionary proclamations. The sedition which permeates the whole fortress, artillery as well as the engineers and other special branches of the service, is considered to be mainly due to the license allowed the agitators.

Strikes Due to Court Martial.

YOUNG VAN SCHAACK MISSING AGAIN FROM HIS RESIDENCE.

Truant Lad, Who Disappeared in a Similar Manner Last Month, Is Believed to Have Started to Cuba.

Byford C. Van Schaack, 15 years old, son of C. P. Van Schaack, vice president of the wholesale drug firm of Peter Van Schaack & Sons, is missing from his residence in Wilmette for the second time within a month, and the police have been asked to aid in finding him. It is believed he may have started to join some of the regiments now doing duty in Cuba.

Byford early in September left his home and asserted that he intended "taking a run around the world." He was caught the next day in Englewood. According to the police Byford has been taking military instructions from a Fort Sheridan teacher, and was enthusiastic in the lessons.

It Hurt Them!

"Millionaires" have feeling when you touch their bank accounts. Last week I exposed the fancy profits made in the clothing business where they sell high-priced clothing. Their average profit

On a 10.00 Suit or Overcoat is 4.00
On a 15.00 Suit or Overcoat is 6.00
On a 20.00 Suit or Overcoat is 8.00
On a 25.00 Suit or Overcoat is 10.00

They must make these enormous profits to take care of carried over stock and bad debt losses.

The millionaires got back at me!—my, but how they did advertise on Friday about "the golden extraordinary opportunities of a lifetime," "the colossal, most wonderland bargains in clothing at 10.00!" My, but what a trade I did here next day (last Saturday).

These merchants never before until after the season is over—when you do not want to buy—gave any prominence to what they would sell in clothing at 10.00. It would look to me as if they intended to stop Tom. If they "stop" Tom they must "stop" asking fancy profits; they must stand back and see their sales on 15.00 to 20.00 clothing "stop."

Can they make the public believe they are selling clothing at 10.00 worth 15.00 to 25.00, and in same breath offer you clothing at 15.00, 20.00 and 25.00? That will not do. They must be honest with you—do one thing or the other—I am doing the "other," it is new. I don't "do" you, for I ask but 10.00, I take no less, I sell at 10.00 clothing good enough for me to wear, good enough for you. # ATTORNEYS POINT NEW COURT PERIL

Say the Democratic Platform Promises Chaos and Delay in Trying Cases.

NO AUTHORITY IN LAW.

Attack Plan for Whole Bench to Hear Appeals and Bureau of Justice.

The proposition to make the new Municipal court a court of appeal, in which a majority of the judges may vacate the judgment of any one, is opposed strongly by a majority of members of the Chicago bar, if there is any significance in the unanimity of opinion expressed yesterday.

The proposition emanates from Hiram T. Gilbert, democratic nominee for chief justice of the Municipal court. It was set forth fully in the platform adopted by the democratic nominees for municipal judges. Mr. Gilbert drafted the platform.

Such a court of review, attorneys say, never was contemplated by the law. It would result, they say, in chaotic conditions, endless litigation, and the judges would have no time to look after their individual calendars. The Municipal court, under such a system, in their belief, would not be any improvement over the present justice courts. The city would be going backward instead of forward.

Another feature of Mr. Gilbert's platform which meets with the disapproval of attorneys is that relating to the establishment of a bureau of justice by the Municipal court and to be conducted under its supervision.

Platform Proposes the Plan.

Mr. Gilbert has expressed himself so clearly on the proposition to take away the individual responsibility of each judge and make of the majority of the bench a court of appeal that there is no mistaking his position. In section 8 of his platform he says:

It will also be the duty of the judges to adopt such rules and regulations as will enable a majority of them to cause to be vacated any judgment, other than one of acquittal in a criminal case, which, in their opinion, is so plainly and palpably unjust and contrary to law that it ought not to be permitted to stand, and it will be the duty of each judge in every such case to yield to the views of the majority.

Mr. Gilbert's Statement.

That there might be no misunderstanding of his position Mr. Gilbert on a succeeding date made a public statement as follows:

The right of a majority of the judges of the new Municipal court of Chicago to cause to be vacated any judgment, other than one of acquittal in a criminal case, which in their opinion is so plainly and palpably unjust and contrary to the law that it ought not to be permitted to stand, is undoubted. The law imposes upon the judges the duty of receiving and investigating all complaints presented to them pertaining to the court and of taking such steps as they may deem necessary or proper with respect thereto.

It declares that they "shall have power and it shall be their duty to adopt, or cause to be adopted, all such rules and regulations for the proper administration of justice in said court as to them may seem expedient." Manifestly this authorizes a complaint with respect to an unjust judgment, and likewise authorizes the adoption of such rules and regulations as may enable a majority of the judges to grant relief against an unjust judgment at any time before that judgment becomes final. This was certainly the intention of the framers of the act, who realized that the power thus given was absolutely necessary.

It would never do, in a large city like Chicago, to have twenty-eight judges of the Municipal court, each one of whom was completely at liberty to follow his own inclinations in the trial and disposition of cases. Out of a number so large necessarily there will be danger that some, from ignorance or otherwise, will do that which ought not to be done. There is little danger, however, that out of a body of twenty-eight there ever will be found a majority who will knowingly do wrong or knowingly sanction a wrong perpetrated by another judge. This power of the majority of judges is one of the most important and useful provisions of the Municipal court act.

Bureau of Justice Proposition.

On the subject of the bureau of justice Mr. Gilbert set forth his views in section 3 of his platform in this manner:

Bureau of justice—It will be the duty of the judges of the Municipal court to establish and conduct, under the supervision of the court, either independently or in cooperation with some existing organization, a bureau, to be known as a bureau of justice, the duties of which shall be first, to investigate claims of poor people who may be unable to secure the services of competent lawyers and whose financial circumstances are such that the advance payment of costs would be unduly burdensome or oppressive to them; second, to assist in the prosecution of all such claims as upon investigation seem to be meritorious; third, to investigate cases of poor persons charged with criminal or quasi-criminal offenses and to secure to such persons fair and impartial trials; and, fourth, generally to aid in securing justice for all persons who, because of their financial circumstances, or otherwise, are unable to protect themselves.

A systematic effort was made yesterday to ascertain the views of local attorneys on these two propositions, which stand out from all the others promulgated in the platform. Not one was found who agreed with Mr. Gilbert.

John S. Miller and John P. Wilson, who were joint authors with Mr. Gilbert in framing the Municipal court act, said the law did not contemplate giving a majority of the judges jurisdiction as a reviewing or an appeal court.

Summary of Objections.

The objections to the "majority rule" of the court as expressed by the various attorneys interviewed may be summed up as follows:

The new court has no legal authority to create a board of appeals.

Such an appellate bench would take away the individual responsibility of each judge.

It would result in interminable litigation, for every attorney might claim that some individual judge had decided improperly and appeal to the whole bench.

The judges would be so occupied with appeals that they would have no time to look after their individual calendars.

Criminals and unscrupulous attorneys would have opportunity to exert improper political or other influence.

The Appellate and Supreme courts may be trusted to correct errors in this court, as they now do in Circuit and Superior courts.

The objections to the bureau of justice as proposed by Mr. Gilbert are as pronounced as those advanced with reference to the court of appeals proposed. They include the following:

Judges would become partisan in cases brought by a bureau of their own creation.

It is the duty of the court to hear and decide cases, not to bring and prosecute cases.

Politicians would seek the influence and protection of judges in behalf of constituents.

Judges will have enough to occupy their attention without looking after matters outside their jurisdiction.

Scheme Lacks Legal Sanction.

"Without desiring to criticise Mr. Gilbert's rules," said Mr. Wilson, "I will state that the law does not contemplate that a majority of the judges should act as an appeal body to review the judgments of any particular judge. We had no such idea when the law was framed. Such a system would be impractical and open to serious objections. The judges would have little time for anything else but passing on appeal cases, and the court was not established for that purpose.

"I have not studied the proposed rules, especially that part providing for a bureau of justice sufficiently to pass an opinion upon them. It should not be forgotten, however, that the Supreme court finally will pass upon the rules and may be trusted to keep within the law. I have no idea that the court ever will be given authority to form itself into an appeal body."

Mr. Miller agreed with Mr. Wilson.

"The act gives the judges authority," said he, "to establish rules of practice that shall give them the power to act together and be binding on all the judges, but goes no further. The Circuit and Superior courts do not possess this power to adopt rules that will bind a minority of the judges and each judge can disregard rules adopted by the majority. This is open to objection.

"The new court, in my belief, cannot adopt any rules that will create a board of review out of a majority of the judges. That would not be practical and as has been stated, would result in endless litigation, which would defeat the purposes of the court."

Opinions of other lawyers follow:

Frank Asbury Johnson's Criticisms.

Frank Asbury Johnson said:

"There are many reasons why an appeal should not be taken from the judgment of one judge to that of a majority. The law does not contemplate such an appeal and it would be cumbersome, burdensome, and unsatisfactory in many ways. It would be necessary to take down all evidence and rulings and instructions to the jury, and it simply would convert the new Municipal court into an Appellate court.

"Each individual judge should be held responsible for his decisions. The judges never would get through the trial dockets. It would be proper for the judges to consult with each other as they now do in Circuit and Superior court.

"Without going further into the matter of the bureau of justice I should say that the judges would have all they could do with trying cases.

Opinion of Harrison Musgrave.

Harrison Musgrave said:

"That part of the announced platform of the democratic candidates for the Municipal court, which provides that a majority of the judges may vacate any judgment of conviction in a criminal case, contemplates, in my opinion, a most serious and unwarranted departure from well established rules of procedure. It is suggested that twenty or more judges in a general meeting, none of whom has seen the witnesses or heard the evidence in the case, or has had the benefit of arguments by opposing counsel, may set aside a verdict and judgment of conviction which have been entered after a trial in due form of law.

"There is certainly no express provision in the act for such procedure. It seems to be in the nature of a Court of Appeals without any of its advantages. An Appellate court has before it the complete record of the trial below, abstracts and briefs of counsel, hears oral arguments, and is compelled to file written opinions.

"The method suggested is that this large number of judges, in town meeting assembled, by a majority vote may vacate the verdict of a jury and the judgment of a judge which have been entered in accordance with a procedure established by hundreds of years of experience.

Would Pervert Justice.

"The practice would tend to destroy the independence and feeling of responsibility of the individual judge. It would increase the great delays now attending the prosecution of criminal cases. It would cause another difference in methods of procedure between the Municipal court and the Superior and Circuit courts. It would be hard to hold such a court—if it is to be called a court—accountable for its actions, however flagrant. Opportunities would be afforded to criminals and unscrupulous lawyers to exert improper influences, political or otherwise.

"This proposed practice may meet the favor of the criminal classes and attorneys in the habit of defending criminals. It surely will not be approved by the majority of practitioners at the bar or by those persons interested in maintaining law and order. If good judges be elected the plan has no excuse. If poor judges be elected such a town meeting court will become a disgrace to the community."

Hits Bureau of Justice.

"The platform of the democratic candidates says that it will be the duty of the court to establish and conduct a bureau of justice. There is no provision of law warranting any such action. The duty of the court is to hear and decide cases presented to it, not to bring and prosecute cases. A bureau of justice is a commendable institution, but no court should have any connection with it.

"If the court established the bureau it would, of course, appoint its officials, whose duties would be to investigate controversies and bring or defend actions. It can be readily seen that persons having suits prosecuted by such a bureau would come into court with their cases already prejudged in their favor.

"Such a plan would entail upon the judges work of much responsibility not of a judicial character and subject them to demoralizing influences. Every ward politician would have many constituents who would seek the influence and protection of the judges under such a system of procedure."

Scheme Goes Beyond the Law.

N. C. Sears expressed his views thus:

"I know of nothing in the act that authorizes a court of review. Some states have such laws, but there is no such provision in our statutes. In the absence of any such provision the Municipal court could not by the adoption of any rules give itself the jurisdiction of an Appellate court.

"As to the proposition that the judges are to assist in the prosecution of claims, its effect would be to make out of the judges partisans of one of the litigants, which hardly would be conducive to the impartial administration of justice."

John M. Oliver said:

"To subject the judgment of any judge of the Municipal court to a review by a majority of the bench would be impractical, and most of the members of the bar, in my belief, would be opposed to such a rule. Every case would be appealed. Litigants would appeal simply because they could do so without any cost to themselves, and the judges never would get anywhere.

"I should not be in favor of a bureau of justice composed of Municipal court judges. The judges who passed on the merits of a case in the bureau could not be expected to pass an unbiased opinion when it came before them in their judicial capacity."

Paul Brown Against the Plan.

Paul Brown said he had not studied the new Municipal court act sufficiently to express an opinion as to whether it contemplates what Mr. Gilbert sees.

"I sincerely hope the law will not be given such construction," said Mr. Brown. "If it is another Appellate court, a sort of 'Appellate division' will be created, of which all defeated litigants will attempt to take advantage. With the machinery of the court clogged the speedy disposition of causes will be prevented and the object of creating the new court in a large measure will be defeated.

"As to the bureau of justice, an institution for the purposes mentioned might accomplish much good, but to create it as proposed would be improper for self-evident reasons."

John T. Richards said:

"There would be no end to litigation if the majority of judges constituted an appeal body. There would be continuous appeals, and instead of lessening litigation it would be increased. The day of ultimate decision in the court of last resort would be postponed correspondingly.

"The worst feature is that proposing to submit to the judges who never have investigated a case the points which have been thoroughly thrashed out by the trial judge.

"I am decidedly opposed to the proposed bureau of justice to be composed of Municipal court judges. A man cannot be a lawyer and a judge at the same time. It is certain that a judge would find it exceedingly difficult to do anything but lean in the direction of the client he had advised to sue."

Kickham Scanlan Sees Chaos.

Kickham Scanlan believed the proposed plan would bring chaos.

"To make an appeal body of the Municipal court would result in a chaotic condition of affairs," he said. "Whichever side was defeated would appeal. The losing attorneys would consider it their duty to their client to take an appeal. The judges would be passing upon appeals continuously, and instead of the new Municipal court being a help there would be a worse condition of affairs, if possible, than at present.

"How do you propose to create this Appellate body? Where would the judges get authority? Mr. Gilbert appears to think they can confer Appellate jurisdiction on themselves by passing rules. Is there to be a new calendar or simply a retrial of all cases by the whole body of judges?

"I cannot help thinking it would be a serious mistake to operate a bureau of justice in connection with the court. All kinds of frauds would be practiced on the judges and injustice done to the persons sued in these so-called meritorious cases."

Other Courts a Parallel.

E. M. Ashcraft stated his views thus:

"If Mr. Gilbert's suggestion is wise the Appellate powers should be conferred on the majority of Circuit and Superior court judges also. As the statutes provide for appeals to upper courts I should be inclined to the belief that the Municipal judge who tries a case should be entitled to enter judgment and litigants should be entitled to his opinion regardless of the opinions of the other judges.

"The Municipal court should adopt rules to allow poor persons to engage in litigation without cost, but in my judgment the bureau of justice should be left to the organization now managing that class of cases."

Courts Would Become Glutted.

G. Fred Rush would oppose needless delays.

"It would hamper the courts to allow a majority of the judges to pass on the judgment of one of their number," he said. "A lawyer will delay a case all he can when he has failed to impress a judge with his logic and evidence. He feels that he hasn't tried his case just right. He never wants to let go.

"It is estimated that 100,000 criminal and 50,000 civil cases are now tried by the justice courts. The municipal judges will have to try more and they have no time to constitute an appeal body. Each one will have to pass on about 600 cases a year, and that will be about all he can do.

"A bureau of justice should be a charitable institution."

Frank J. Loesch said:

"I should say that there would be so many appeals that sessions of court would resemble a series of town meetings. The time of the judges instead of being devoted to the hearing of cases would be devoted to arguing with brother judges as to the correctness of their decisions. It would be an interminable debating society.

"There is nothing in the law which provides for the organization of a bureau of justice. It hardly is fair to ask a judge to investigate cases and direct what shall be done and then afterward to adjudicate those cases."

Calls Plan Impractical.

Mr. Gilbert's plan is impractical, said Leslie Rosenthal. He said:

"Every case would be appealed, and in order to make a decision effective all twenty-five judges should sit on a case. It is intended that the court should be a court of original jurisdiction. The right kind of judges should be elected, then if an appeal is desired it may be taken to higher tribunals, as the statutes provide.

"The bureau of justice proposed is no business of the judges. We have a good bureau of justice now and many lawyers contribute to its support."

H. R. Platt said:

"Under the law I don't believe that it would be legal for a majority of judges to enter a new judgment over the ruling of one judge. If the law does permit that course of action it would be exceedingly unwise to act on that power, in my judgment. If many cases were to be reviewed it manifestly would clog the business of the courts and practically do away with expeditious work in the administration of the new court. It would lead to the playing of internal politics and forming of cliques among the judges.

"I cannot believe Mr. Gilbert seriously advocates the establishment of a bureau of justice by the court."

The lack of necessary legal authority for the proposed innovations appealed to J. W. Hiner:

"The ends of justice may be obtained by ordinary appeal procedure," he said. "The criminal appeals in this country have become a disgrace owing to flimsy and silly technicalities. Under our law errors are presumed.

"We have a bureau of justice now and it would not be within the jurisdiction of the new court to pass on cases that afterward were to come before it for adjudication."

Dear Sir:

On our trip, Sept. 18, to find the true situation of the Texas Gulf Coast Country, all of the party of twenty were agreeably surprised and found nothing exaggerated.

EVERY ONE IN THE PARTY BOUGHT LAND.

Yours truly,
GEORGE RHUE.

He has seen it and is satisfied.

"Every one in the party bought land." That was their judgment of its merits.

Wouldn't YOU like to have a farm in this country of sure crops, abundant crops and early crops?

Now the land is cheap and you can get it on easy terms. Twenty acres will cost you about $500. The cost of clearing it is about $5 an acre. The cost of water for irrigation varies. You may want an artesian well of your own; you may get water from some river; or you may get it from your neighbor. But the cost is not great, and those who have tried it have netted from the first crop a sum which has paid all expenses and left a good surplus.

Take a trip down there and see for yourself—that's the best way. Every first and third Tuesday of each month, we will sell round-trip tickets to any point in the Gulf Coast Country and return, at the following rates:

FIGHT FOR CHILD SHOWS SCANDALS

LIGHT ON DIVORCE SUIT.

Mrs. Lorenzo Davidson, Sued by Officer Husband, a Sister of City Divorcee.

The fight between Samuel W. Allen, former board of trade broker, and his divorced wife, Mrs. Mollie Allen, over the possession of their 12 year old boy, Angus, which begins in Judge Gibbons' court this morning, promises to reveal other things than Mrs. Allen's relations with John Roberts, the wealthy packer who lives at 5330 East End avenue.

The scenes and episodes upon which Mr. Allen will base his reply to the court that his former wife is not fit to have the custody of the child are interwoven in the intricate scandals opened up in the divorce case which Maj. Lorenzo Davidson, U. S. A., of Fort Sheridan, is bringing in the Circuit court at Waukegan against his wife, who is a sister of Mrs. Allen.

Most of the scenes are laid in the house of Maj. Davidson during the two year period the army officer was away in China and the Philippine islands. Names of other army officers and some north shore women are said to figure in the allegations. Maj. Davidson, in his bill filed several months ago, names George S. McReynolds as responsible for his troubles. Mr. McReynolds recently failed as a grain elevator man and is under indictment.

Rivals Taggart Scandal.

In its army developments and in the charges made by the father against the mother the case rivals the famous Taggart divorce case of Ohio. Mr. Allen claims he has been watching his wife, through detectives and friends, since long before their divorce, that she has set a bad example to her son by drinking before him, and that her actions with other men were not such as would conduce to his moral welfare.

Mrs. Allen remained in seclusion most of the day at 354 Oakwood boulevard. When she did appear she said that she was a wronged woman and that she was not in a position to say anything.

"Blackmail," said Mrs. Allen's friends and her brother, Angus Roy Shannon, attorney for the board of education.

"Allen had these letters that he springs three years ago when the divorce was granted," said Mr. Shannon. "He threatened them then and he has held them as a club whenever he wanted anything since. He's warned me that unless I desisted in making him pay for the boy's education he would use them. He is not fit to have the boy. The letters are a pack of lies. Mrs. Allen wrote some of them to make him jealous and left them around the house so he would find them."

Choked Her to Get Letter.

Another story is told by Allen.

"I had to choke her to get one of those letters," he said, opening with care a large envelope, from which fell several tattered pieces of old letters. "She had almost swallowed the letter. Another time I caught her trying to tear one up and rescued it."

These mutilated letters were written on the business stationery of George M. Dorens, 221 Fulton street, said to have been the financial backer of Mabel Jackman, the "Shepherdess of Paradise," who healed the sick by starvation and violet rays.

Met in Highland Park.

Henry B. Stover, an insurance solicitor at 134 La Salle street, occasionally a private detective, caused most of the trouble with his work in securing evidence for Allen and against Mrs. Allen.

It was while Maj. Davidson was in China during the boxer rebellion and later in the Philippines that the foundations of most of the allegations were established. Mrs. Allen and her own friends it is alleged, used to meet at the Davidson house in Highland Park or in Fort Sheridan with Mrs. Davidson.

Stover followed the two women for days, and learned that Roberts met Mrs. Allen there. He also learned things connecting two other army officers in the scandal, but these names will not be brought in at this time. One is known as "major" by courtesy, and lives in Kenilworth. He is 50 years of age and married.

Letters to Roberts.

Letters and notes written by Mrs. Allen to Roberts form the basis of Mr. Allen's fight for the control of his son. An extract from one letter reads:

"God knows I never told anyone of my love for you. I wonder that people cannot read it in my face."

When the Allens lived at Lake avenue and Thirty-sixth street, Roberts, it is alleged, spent much of his time with Mrs. Allen, leaving his clothes in the house and taking his meals there. They were seen together in many downtown hotels and restaurants.

On July 14 Mrs. Allen, the bill alleges, left Chicago with her son for White Lake, Mich., on the steamship Carolina. While at that resort, according to the bill, she devoted a large part of her time to the "major" mentioned in the bill, who then had a family living on the north side. Mrs. Allen allowed her son to shift for himself and to do many dangerous things.

Roberts in Mrs. Allen's Flat.

Stover's reports date back to 1903. One report mentions the night of Dec. 7, 1904. Stover was standing in Lake avenue, opposite the number 3631. When Roberts drove up in a carriage. Roberts dismissed the driver and went into the second flat, which was occupied by Mrs. Allen. The shades were pulled down and Roberts did not come out for hours, Stover says.

One letter supposed to be written to Mrs. Allen from a mysterious "Al" in Newark, N. J., on Jan. 23, 1903, is full of poetry.

"I am feeling much better in mind and body," writes "Al." "The weather report is fair. How natural it is to dislike blizzards and cold winds. How much happiness when warm.

"Be still, sad heart, and cease repining,
Behind the clouds the sun is shining."

"Mollie, dear, exhilarate yourself and applaud whether you enjoy the play or not. I have a good problem. Why are sewing machines like kisses? They are sew seaming. Your husband—not by any means. I would not be unkind to you. I remember of being told that a letter would be written on Saturday or Sunday and the 'letter that lacks never came.' I was waiting. How I thought of you every evening during the last week. Now, if you answer me at all, send letters in care of Simons Bros. company, 170 Broadway, New York. I will address this to 6547, Mrs. Cochran's, the address you gave me. Very truly, Al."

ACCUSES HUSBAND OF CRUELTY

David J. Stubbs's Wife, Daughter of a Cleveland Banker, Seeks Annulment of Her Marriage by Divorce.

David J. Stubbs is accused of cruelty in a suit for divorce begun by Jessie Hayes Stubbs, daughter of a Cleveland banker, who were married in New York Jan. 27, 1905, and Mrs. Stubbs declares her husband has beaten and choked her many times since last New Year's day.

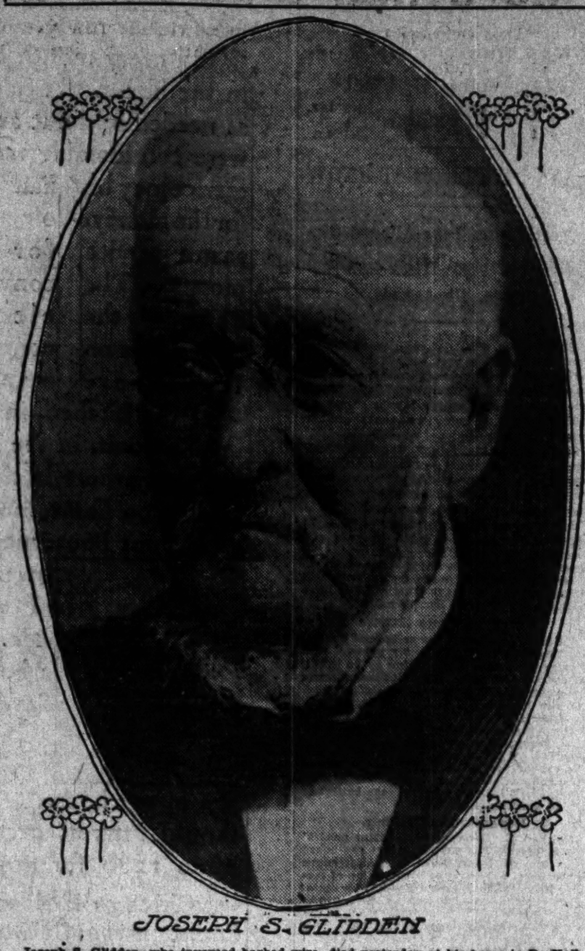

On the last February, she declares, he struck her in the face and threw her against the wall in a hotel at which they were staying.

The two quarreled on a platform of the North-western elevated road Aug. 28, and the complainant declares Stubbs again struck her. She tells the court her husband has threatened to take her life, and she asks that he be enjoined from interfering with her.

Low Rates to Buffalo.

Inventor of Barbed Wire, Who Is Dead.

JOSEPH S. GLIDDEN

Joseph S. Glidden, who invented barbed wire, died yesterday at his home in De Kalb, Ill. He was over 93 years old.

BARRISON AGAIN A BRIDE.

ACTRESS "ELOPES" TO HAMMOND AND WEDS JOE HOWARD.

Soubrette Divorced Four Days Ago, but Groom Has but a Few Hours' Release from Previous Marital Ties—Automobile, "Diamond Bracelet," and the Other Accessories Are Present—Speed Law Broken, but Policeman Is Sympathetic.

Mabel Barrison, soubrette, and Joseph E. Howard, composer and librettist, celebrated newly acquired divorces from respective former spouses by "eloping" to Hammond, Ind., yesterday and getting married. The wedding was replete with all the features that the most imaginative press agent could desire.

There were the two divorces to start with, one four days old, and the ink on Mr. Howard's decree being scarcely dry. There also was an automobile, a stubborn policeman, and a nip and tuck race to reach the office of the Hoosier marriage license clerk before it closed. "Squire" William E. Jordan of Hammond tied the knot without being made aware of the prominence of the couple until after the ceremony. Then Howard slipped a diamond studded bracelet, "said to be worth $1,500," over the bride's hand as a wedding present.

Machine Is Speedy.

When the machine flashed into South Chicago on the downward trip, it was stopped by a flinty hearted policeman, who didn't know he was "holding up" Cupid.

"Please, O please let us go on," pleaded the actress. "We're going to get married, and we can't get a license unless we get to Hammond before 4 o'clock."

Then Miss Barrison smiled the way she does when she sings "Waltz Me Around Again, Willie," and the blue coat let the automobile get away from him. They arrived at the Lake county courthouse just as the clerk was putting away his books. It required several smiles from the actress to persuade him to take his blanks out of the vault and make out the license.

Evade Illinois Law.

The trip to Indiana was made with the view of evading the Illinois law prohibiting divorced persons from marrying again within a year. Miss Barrison was married under her maiden name of Edith Farrence. She was granted a decree of divorce from William Gaston of the "Wizard of Oz" company by Judge McEwen last Friday. Howard's decree releasing him from Ida Emerson was granted by Judge Chetlain yesterday afternoon. Howard's former wife is to receive $50 a week alimony except in June, July, and August, when she is to receive only $25 a week.

PURITY CONFERENCE BEGINS REFORMS URGED BY MEMBERS.

Resolution Adopted Asks Government to Investigate Reported Importation of Young Women.

The national purity conference, which began a three days' session yesterday at Abraham Lincoln center, adopted a resolution asking the government to investigate the reported importation of Japanese and French girls to this country for immoral purposes.

Dr. Homer Thomas protested against the double standard of morality and suggested that matters relative to this and kindred subjects should be taught the children in the schools, always keeping in mind a reverent attitude of the pupils. Other speakers were Dr. Denslow Lewis of Chicago, the Rev. Sylvanus Stall of Philadelphia, Dr. David Paulson of Hinsdale, Ill., and the Rev. Sidney C. Kendall of California.

Anthony Comstock will be the principal speaker this evening. Theodore Schroeder of New York, attorney of the Free Speech league, will speak this afternoon.

GOES SHOELESS INTO COURT.

Albert Engelke Taken in Haste by Deputy Sheriff and Forgets Covering for His Feet.

In such haste did a deputy sheriff take Albert Engelke, a painter, to Judge Honoré's court yesterday that he appeared in his stocking feet. Engelke had been summoned on a charge of contempt of court for violation of an injunction granted to Mrs. Lena Engelke, 705 West Forty-fifth street. He failed to respond and a deputy sheriff went for him.

"What is this?" asked the court when he came in. "Has this man no shoes?"

"Of course he has shoes, judge," exclaimed Mrs. Engelke. "He has eighteen pairs at home, and there is no reason why he did not put on a pair."

"Maybe I have and again maybe I have not eighteen pairs of shoes," rejoined the husband, "but the fact is I was unable to put on a pair because of the undue haste of this gentleman. I just forgot them."

He was sent home for shoes and the hearing was continued until today.

BARB WIRE INVENTOR DIES

JOSEPH F. GLIDDEN PASSES AWAY IN DE KALB, ILL., HOME.

Last of His Family, He Lives to Age of 94 Years, Beloved by Neighbors for Benevolence and Charities—As a Pioneer Necessity Forces an Him a Substitute for Fencing, and He Evolves His Invention—First Made with Coffee Mill and Grindstone.

De Kalb, Ill., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Joseph F. Glidden, inventor and original manufacturer of barbed wire fencing, a pioneer of De Kalb county, died at his home in De Kalb about 6:30 this morning, aged nearly 94 years. He was the last of his family, his daughter, Mrs. W. H. Bush of Chicago, having died only a few months ago in New York.

Mr. Glidden came to Illinois in 1844, ran a threshing machine two years, and then bought 600 acres of prairie land, which he still owned at the time of his death.

The story of the invention of barbed wire by Mr. Glidden is an amplification of the old saw, "Necessity is the mother of invention." The lack of timber made the matter of fencing a serious one to the early farmers of the western prairies. This stress was recognized by Mr. Glidden as the opportunity for some one to relieve a great want and perhaps at the same time to make a fortune.

Invents Barbed Wire.

He set about the work in 1872. His efforts resulted in giving the simplest, cheapest, and most effective article of fencing that has ever been produced. He proved this by making and using barbed wire on his own farm.

Mr. Glidden commenced the manufacture of barbed wire by cutting the barbs by hand. He used parts of an old coffee mill to coil the barbs on the wire.

He would make from twenty to thirty feet at one operation. The barbs were placed on one wire by hand, an unbarbed wire placed beside it, one pair of ends fastened to a tree and the other attached to the axle of a grindstone turned by hand. Thus fencing was first manufactured. The wire then made is the same as it appears today.

Having secured patents on the essential parts of his devices for manufacturing, he entered into partnership with Col. I. L. Ellwood. The business was pushed so vigorously that barbed wire came suddenly into popularity. So great was the demand for smooth wire from eastern manufacturers that the latter began to make inquiries into the cause.

Grows Rich from Fencing.

The business made Mr. Glidden a rich man and Col. Ellwood a millionaire. In 1876, Mr. Glidden sold his interest in the business to Washburn & Moen of Worcester, Mass., and retired from the activities of business.

He was regarded by his neighbors with great affection for his numerous acts of benevolence. He gave a part of one of his best farms as a site for the state normal school located at this place.

LAST WIFE GIVES WICKES' COURTING

Tells Jury Marriage Was Planned While Both Had Other Marital Ties.

TWO DIVORCES SECURED.

Witness in Will Suit Says Late Pullman Official "Managed" All Affairs.

The third and last wife of the late Thomas H. Wickes, testifying before Judge Honore yesterday, gave an account of the moves by which she and the vice president of the Pullman company brought about their marriage. Mrs. Edna Parker Nelson Wickes, the witness, who was divorced from Wickes later, said their marriage was planned before either had been freed from earlier marital ties. The courtship—while each was married to another person—was conducted, she said, at dinners at the Wellington hotel and the Wickes residence.

Mrs. Wickes was testifying in the suit brought by two daughters and a son to have set aside the will by which they were left only a small portion of the $500,000 estate, while Hugh Percy Waldron, Wickes' private secretary, was given $45,000. The witness was examined by Attorney William M. Mason, representing the Wickes children.

In spite of the frequent objections by Attorney Frank H. Scott, Mrs. Wickes revealed additional love affairs of her former husband, including an engagement to marry a Mrs. Sullivan, who lost out to the witness, who was then Mrs. Nelson.

Introduced by Hotel Proprietor.

The witness told the jury she and Wickes were introduced by A. S. Gage, proprietor of the Wellington hotel, in 1900. Mrs. Wickes said she had gone to the hotel to view a parade and was with a friend.

"That evening," said she, "I dined at the hotel."

"Was Mr. Wickes a member of the dinner party?"

"He was."

"Now tell the jury when you next saw Mr. Wickes," said the lawyer.

"That same night I went to his house in Grand boulevard. That is, I did not go directly from the hotel, but to my own apartments first and then to Mr. Wickes' place later in the evening."

Late Supper with Wine.

"At the Wickes home did you have anything to drink?"

"Yes, we had a late supper, including wine."

At that time Mrs. Wickes said she was married to Mr. Nelson—who was not with her. The witness said she met Wickes again several days later at the Wellington hotel where they had luncheon together. Asked whether she ever had seen the testator while he was intoxicated, Mrs. Wickes replied she remembered four occasions when she would say he was "under the influence of liquor."

"I should describe him as being convivial," she said. "He was not intoxicated, perhaps, but he was not exactly sober."

Nine months after she and Wickes had met Mrs. Wickes said she was divorced from Nelson and Mr. Wickes' second wife had obtained a decree from him. Two months later the witness and Mr. Wickes were married in Canada.

"Did Mr. Wickes ever tell you anything about his second wife?" was asked.

"Yes, she was in Europe when we two met, and Mr. Wickes said he was having her followed by detectives. He suggested that I have my husband followed and the two divorce suits resulted."

Divorces "Managed" by Wickes.

The method by which Wickes "managed" his second wife's divorce in New York after her return from abroad then was explained. The witness said her brother-in-law, Philip La Montaine, went to New York and testified in the suit, which was "managed" by him and Mr. Wickes. She declared Wickes gave La Montaine a check for $4,000. The same man was said to have "managed" her divorce proceedings against Nelson.

Mrs. Wickes related that on one occasion before her marriage to Wickes she was with her former husband and several friends in the dining room at the Wellington hotel, when Wickes entered. She told Nelson she did not know Wickes, whose "manner was such that he attracted attention."

Shortly before her marriage to Wickes, the witness said, there was a scene between him and Mrs. Sullivan, to whom she said the railroad man was engaged. He informed the woman he was going to marry Mrs. Nelson and the other affair was declared off. Mrs. Sullivan then, according to Mrs. Wickes, returned to New York.

Put Through Cross Examination.

The cross examination of Mrs. Wickes was severe. Attorney Scott went into the life of the witness since her separation from the railroad man and sought to show her character in an unfavorable light. George Castle figured in this testimony. Mrs. Wickes replied in response to a question put by Attorney Scott, that she is now living with her sister, Mrs. La Montaine, at 470 North State street.

"Prior to that, where did you live?" asked Mr. Scott.

"On Thirty-fifth street," answered Mrs. Wickes.

"And before that, where did you live?"

"At the Plaza hotel, and then I have lived at the Palmer house, and for some months I made my home with the family of Thomas H. Wickes Jr."

"When you secured the divorce from Mr. Nelson you were represented by Attorney A. S. Trude, were you not?" asked Mr. Scott.

"Yes."

"Did not Thomas H. Wickes Jr. accompany you to Mr. Trude's office and offer to testify in your behalf and against his father, and did not Mr. Trude threaten to throw him out of the office for making such an offer?" queried the lawyer.

"I do not remember."

"When you first met Mr. Wickes you desired to marry him, did you not?" was the next question.

"No—not at first," was the hesitating reply. "We had talked on the subject of marriage, and he told me he was separated from his second wife."

"You were a party to the plan by which evidence was obtained against your former husband?"

"Yes, I guess I was."

"Well, is it not a fact that you wanted to marry Wickes and he wanted to marry you, so between you you put up a job on Nelson?"

"Yes," was the candid reply.

Court Keeps Names Secret.

When Mr. Scott demanded that the witness give the names of persons who were present on the occasion of her first meeting with the railroad man at the Wellington hotel, Judge Honoré objected to the names being made public.

"I feel that I have the right to know who these persons are," Attorney Scott said, "because then I shall summon them to appear here and state whether the stories concerning Mr. Wickes' acts at the Wellington hotel and other places are true."

"But why make the names public?" asked the judge.

"Well, I am not desirous that the names be made public, but I insist upon knowing them," replied the lawyer.

"Then," responded Judge Honoré, "we shall step into my chambers and Mrs. Wickes shall make known the names to you."

The three went into the judge's chambers, where the names were told. They were kept secret by the judge and all lawyers in the case.

The hearing will be resumed at 10 o'clock this morning.

MINER FROM THE KLONDYKE COMES BACK; DISAPPEARS.

James B. Lawrence Starts to Uncle's House and Is Seen No More—Had Much Money.

A few hours after he returned to Chicago from four years' work in the Klondyke gold fields, where he is said to have made a comfortable fortune, James B. Lawrence, 28 years old, disappeared on Monday. He has not been seen since he boarded a Milwaukee avenue car to go to the house of his uncle, 1322 North Francisco avenue.

The disappearance was reported to Lieut. Rohan of the detective bureau late last night by R. J. Schett, 338 West Huron street, a business partner of Lawrence. Lawrence had in his possession between $1,000 and $3,000 in drafts when last seen, Schett said.

The two men arrived at the Polk street station and parted at Madison and Dearborn streets, where Lawrence boarded the Milwaukee avenue car. Schett expected to meet him yesterday morning and went to the uncle's house, where he was told Lawrence had not arrived.

WANTS A RAILWAY COLLEGE.

Prof. Dewsnup of University Says the Transportation Corporations Should Endow It.

A railway college, where degrees will be given, is urged by Prof. Ernest Ritson Dewsnup of the University of Chicago in his new book, "Railway Organization and Working," just issued from the University of Chicago press. He holds that the railroads should back the enterprise. He writes in this connection:

"The railway companies, as a first and great step, should cooperate in founding in Chicago a railway college. The courses should provide training in five different sides—mechanical engineering, civil engineering, electrical engineering, commercial, and operating."

Graduates of the college, he believes, should be given responsible positions on the railroads, which now take from ten to twenty years of service to each.

Speaker Modestly Accepts Praise as One Presidential Possibility.

BRYAN GETS A ROASTING.

James E. Watson Adds Life to Marquette Club Dinner by Attack.

way is to read it. You have the privilege of going to sleep."

Speech of Congressman Cannon.

Thereupon he shook out the manuscript and started in on it, beginning with the following stanza:

Not without thy wondrous story,
Illinois, Illinois,
Can be writ the nation's glory,
Illinois, Illinois,
On the record of thy years
Abraham Lincoln's name appears,
Grant and Logan's and our tears,
Illinois, Illinois.

"Mr. Toastmaster and gentlemen," he then said, "if we were seeking only to live in the reflected glory of the past there would be no occasion to add anything to the sentiment of the song so dear to all Illinois people. The name of Abraham Lincoln has become one of the most illustrious in all history, representing one of the greatest benefactors of the human race, and with that name written on the records of Illinois our state is as fixed in the annals of time as is the name of Sinai in association with Moses.

"But it would be craven in the sons of Illinois and the followers of Lincoln to live in reflected glory and rest on the laurels won by others, even as great as the men who laid the foundations of the republic and the state in the broad principles of human rights and made this a government of the people, for the people, and by the people. The principles and policies that made Lincoln a world figure teach a different lesson. The life, the work, the death of Lincoln teach a higher ideal. They teach the gospel of individual effort, the inheritance of equal opportunity, the divine right of liberty under the law.

Great Progress of Chicago.

"Today among the great American commonwealths Illinois is third in population and third in manufactures, while her great city of Chicago ranks second in population, second in commerce, and second in manufactures among the cities of the republic. Her indomitable spirit, her undaunted enterprise, and her marvelous success offer the world a sublime inspiration.

"Justly, Illinois takes pride in her great material success. She may take an even greater pride in the illustrious names with which she has endowed the history of the nation. Above all stands Abraham Lincoln. Born in Kentucky, sojourning in childhood in Indiana, and spending the years of his noble manhood up to 1861 in Illinois, he became the great leader under whom in the contest between servile and free labor the latter was to triumph. By birth and training, with his feet in the soil, he was equipped for leadership in the great struggle.

"No leader ever exhibited purer patriotism, higher wisdom, or more sublime fortitude than Lincoln. He was statesman as well as patriot; he was gifted with wonderful foresight, and the nation had never a son with firmer grasp upon sound economic policies, the establishment of which was necessary for the life and prosperity of the republic and the continuance of the capacity of the people for self-government.

States Added to the Union.

"Under the policies of Lincoln, which have been retained in the faith and practices of the republican party, the commonwealths composing the American republic have since the days when he was president increased in number from thirty to forty-five, and other stars are almost ready to be emblazoned upon the country's flag. At the same time the population of the nation has grown from 26,000,000 to 85,000,000, and our railroad mileage from 30,000 to 217,000. We have harnessed the electric current and have made it an uncomplaining and forceful servant to aid in the work of civilization.

"If we look at the present condition of our population and compare it with the conditions existing prior to 1860, when different economic policies prevailed, we cannot doubt the wisdom of the policies of Lincoln, today the policies of the republican party, which is but another name for an organized majority of the people.

Abuses in Railroad Charges.

"In the rapid development of our resources we have been so busy, each individual trying to improve his condition, that abuses have crept in. Attention has recently been riveted upon abuses in connection with the transportation of the products of our farms, our mines, and factories. In this great country we are the customers of each other; 92 per cent of our products are sold within our own borders, and, in spite of all that has been said, it is true that they are transported for our convenience at half or less than half the charge demanded by carriers elsewhere in the world.

"Perhaps the most serious complaints grew out of preferential freight rates allowed by the transportation companies to certain favored shippers, not because the companies desired to give them, but because great shippers demanded such concessions as a condition precedent to their patronage, and went elsewhere if their demands were refused. In my judgment most, if not all, the ills complained of and which we are seeking to remedy had their initiative in the practice of allowing discriminations in favor of certain shippers.

Wise Solution of Problems.

"All policies, and I may say all legislation as well, that make fish of one and fowl of another are un-American and destructive. But the people of the United States, competent for self-government—and never as competent as now—have always met with courage problems as they arise, and, guided by wisdom, patience, and patriotism, have solved them.

"The problems confronting us today are by no means the most trying and difficult ones that have ever been presented to the American people for solution. The achievement of our independence, the formation of the constitution, the abolition of servile labor, the preservation of the union, the keeping of the public faith have all involved questions more difficult of solution than those which we face today. With less ability to meet them our fathers disposed of the perplexities which rose up to trouble them from time to time, and we of this generation, under the policies of the republican party, by legislation of a republican congress, through the decisions of the courts, and for the last five years under the leadership of Theodore Roosevelt, have succeeded in disposing of many problems calculated to disturb all well wishers of our government.

Refers to Hearst and Murphy.

"But in all eras of important accomplishments the dreamer, the demagogue, the self-seeker have tried in the past, as they are trying today, to lead the impatient, the ignorant, and the selfish, as well as those who are patriotic but mistaken, away from the basic principles of sound, effective government into the realm of theoretical reform, mysticism, and doubt. At this time there are many—some in New York, some in Nebraska, some in Massachusetts—who, while protesting their love for the people, are endeavoring to lead them into paths that would lead but to disorder, anarchy, and ruin.

"What a spectacle is presented to the world by the unassuming, modest Hearst and the spotless, angelic Murphy, both professing to wear the white clothing of reform and wildly proclaiming their devotion to the best interests of the people, manipulating each for his own ends, the representatives of the New York democracy and asking for the approval of the adherents of that party in the great Empire state of New York as well as in Massachusetts, and the approval also of the leaders of the minority party generally throughout the United States!

Task of Republican Party.

"Looking in the faces of the members of this great club, noted for its wisdom and patriotism, for its activities as well as its professions, speaking to you and to republicans everywhere, I say its is up to our party, adhering to the policies which have always been its guide, to rectify the errors that may have crept into industrial and political life. We are curing the defects, and we must continue to perform that duty. We, as the majority organization, have not only to take care of ourselves, but we have to take care of a misguided and misled minority. The time to act is now.

"No man can successfully attack the record of the republican congress and the administration of Theodore Roosevelt. The president, the senate, and the house of representatives have coöperated in all this work, and, speaking as one who knows from intimate association with this work of coöperation, I want to say that never in our history have these three coördinate powers in legislation worked together with less friction or with better results.

Excellent Work of Congress.

"The president has coöperated with the senate and the house in the enactment of the railway rate law, the pure food law, the meat inspection law, the employers' liability law, the consular reform law, the free alcohol law, and many other statutes that were enacted during the first session of the Fifty-ninth congress.

"Many men of many minds is an old saw which is as true today as when it was written, and you cannot bring together nearly 500 legislators, representing many sections of the country and many different and conflicting interests, without differences of opinion as to what shall be done and how to do it. We have had many men of many minds, and there have been many different suggestions, but in the general desire to meet conditions and correct abuses that have developed, individual differences have given way to the common purpose and the will of the majority.

"As speaker of the house, I have consulted with the president and the leaders of the majority of the senate and I say to you in all sincerity that in these conferences I have never found any one who regarded his will as absolute or his official position as giving him the right to dictate. There has been coöperation to meet the wishes of the majority of the people, with wise legislation that would bring the greatest good to the greatest number, and to carry forward the great fundamental policies declared in the old wigwam here in Chicago when Abraham Lincoln was nominated for the presidency.

"And now the question is presented whether in November next a house of representatives shall be chosen that will insure the continuance of sound administration and the enactment of additional wise and remedial legislation as the necessity may arise."

Prosperity Proved by Boutell.

Congressman S. H. Boutell, to illustrate how republican administration of national affairs had been followed by prosperity, used the statistics of the postoffice. In presenting these facts he said:

"Let me give some figures that will tell the effects of republican prosperity upon all the people, even those whose money affairs do not require the use of checks. I want to show you the result of this republican administration upon the postoffice. The postoffice is the best friend of the American people. It touches all the people all the time. Its employés, the clerks and carriers, are the most popular men in the federal service. The people are fond and proud of the postoffice and approve the increased appropriations for extending its usefulness and improving the condition of its employés.

"For the current fiscal year the appropriations for carrying on the work of the postoffice exceed $190,000,000, three times the total annual appropriations for all purposes in 1860. The rural free delivery service was inaugurated under President McKinley, and today there are in operation 39,000 routes, serving 15,000,000 people in the rural districts.

Chicago Postoffice Business.

"But it is to the effect of republican prosperity upon the Chicago office that I wish to call your special attention, and in passing let me recall that during the last ten years our three postmasters have been members of the Marquette club. At the present time the Chicago postoffice is under the control of a man who for intelligent energy in the discharge of a public office has no equal in any department of the government. His devotion to the interests of the public which the office serves and to the welfare of the men who perform their duties under him has made the Chicago office the model postoffice in the United States. To Postmaster Busse I am indebted for this."

Then he read the following comparative statement of business done by the Chicago postoffice during the fiscal years 1896 and 1906:

Denver Man Praises Cannon.

F. C. Goudy of Denver had some nice things to say about Mr. Cannon, which were received by him with suitable embarrassment and by the club members and their guests with suitable enthusiasm.

Mr. Goudy referred to Mr. Cannon as "one of the greatest and best speakers who ever presided over the house of representatives—that man who is known throughout our favored land as the 'father of congress,' the 'watchdog of the treasury,' whose every act during his long service in congress has been for the upbuilding of the people—a man who comes nearer the stature of the noble Lincoln in all that constitutes the typical American than any other man now living."

The other speakers were President Stevens and the Rev. Frank M. Bristol of Washington, formerly of Chicago. Mr. Bristol made a talk brimful of optimism and took occasion to attack yellow magazines, yellow newspapers, and yellow politicians for their attempts to picture American workingmen as brutalized and to teach them that they were of such character.

PLAY POLITICS AT BASEBALL GAME.

Republican Managers Butt Into the Limelight as Far as Possible.

PRESENT SILVER CUPS.

State Senator Campbell Declines Madigan's Challenge to Joint Debate.

Insofar as politics was able to butt into the calcium yesterday at the ball game it butted. Political managers figured that they would not be able to take up much space in the minds of the average spectators, but they did their best to take up all they could, the republicans carrying out the most elaborate plans.

They secured official recognition for their candidates by presenting the Cubs and the Sox with silver cups in token of their championship success. They packed six coaches with politicians and candidates and distributed thousands of dodgers, in addition to flying kites to attract attention to the fact that there is an election on Nov. 6.

As a side show to the main event they believe their stunt was fairly successful. The democrats abandoned all attempts to break in with the republicans.

"We decided that it would not be fair even in politics to fly banners reading 'Turn the rascals out' and 'Get rid of the grafters' in the faces of the republican candidates," said Secretary John Tansey of the democratic committee. "This had been the plan in the first place, but we decided it would not be good form and therefore let the republicans have it their own way."

Cups Presented by E. C. Wetten.

The cups for the two teams were presented by President E. C. Wetten of the Hamilton club, assisted by W. Clyde Morrison and William G. Edens. Jones and Chance received them for their clubs, the presentation being made on the field before the beginning of the game.

The newly formed Brundage club distributed thousands of cards, cut and fashioned as baseballs, reading: "Make a hit for Brundage. Score twice. Once for president; once for commissioner."

Banners for Brundage, Christopher Strassheim, republican candidate for sheriff; James J. Gray, Independence league candidate for the same office, and for Michael Zimmer, democratic candidate for chief clerk of the Municipal court, were hung up to call attention to particular candidates.

Campbell Declines to Debate.

State Senator Daniel Campbell has declined, gently but convincingly, to enter into a joint debate on the subject of his legislative record with John Madigan, his Independence league opponent for the senate. Mr. Madigan delivered his challenge to Mr. Campbell personally. Mr. Campbell based his refusal on two reasons.

"You are taking me at an unfair advantage," he said.

"How is that, sir?" asked Mr. Madigan.

"You are a natural born orator," explained Mr. Campbell, "and would put it all over me on the platform, and in addition you have plenty of time to study up matters of statesmanship. I have to work for a living."

Harrison to Take Stump Oct. 23.

Carter H. Harrison is reported to be recovering from his recent illness and it is announced that he will be in condition to take the platform for the democratic tickets on Oct. 23 and continue during the rest of the campaign. Mayor Dunne is to begin speaking for the tickets on Oct. 17 and will be billed through the rest of the campaign.

A number of business men of the Twenty-ninth ward have adopted resolutions indorsing the candidacy of Joseph J. Elias, republican candidate for county commissioner.

WOMEN GIVE 'POVERTIE PARTY.'

Novel Dance to Raise Funds to Equip a Booth for St. Dominic's Church Bazaar.

The Young Women's Sodality of St. Dominic's church, Sedgwick and Locust streets, gave a subscription dancing party last night for the purpose of raising funds to equip a booth at a bazaar which will be held at the church Oct. 27.

"Ye New England Povertie Party," as the party was called, was under the direction of Father Griffin, Mr. Thomas O'Hare, William J. McHeuan, and a committee of young people of the parish.

An orchestra from the Seventh Regiment band furnished music for the dancers, who were dressed in "povertie" costumes, and prizes were awarded to the best dancers in "down country" dances. Fines were levied upon all who attended in their "store clothes," and the harvest was a rich one.

How to Cure Rheumatism

A Never-Failing Home Treatment Made Up of the Most Simple Remedies.

COSTS NOTHING TO TRY.

Some of the most serious diseases are being cured nowadays by the most simple every-day articles used in the household, and the use of which a few years ago would have been ridiculed. Poisons are growing into disuse as being worse than the disease which they aim to cure.

Most people now know that cream of tartar is an absolute cure and preventive of smallpox, or that hemorrhage can be stopped with salt. So rheumatism, and other diseases caused by uric acid in the blood, such as lumbago, gout, sciatica, pain in the back, and particularly all blood diseases, scrofula, impure blood, pimples and blotches, can be cured, in the real meaning of the word, by a little stillingia, iodide of potassium, poke root and guaiac resin. These remedies any one, even a young child, can take in any reasonable amount, with perfect safety, and the results have been found to be astonishing. It has been proven that this combination makes up the most perfect blood-refiner in existence, and an absolute killer of uric acid in the blood.

The four simple remedies mentioned above, together with other simple ingredients to make them palatable and easily assimilated into the blood, is put up in the most effective, pleasing and tempting form, and is called "Smith's Potassium Compound," which can be gotten at any drug store for 50c. If you suffer from any form of uric acid in the blood, or blood impurities, and have rheumatism, gout, lumbago, sciatica, blood poison, impure blood, scrofula, pimples and blotches, this is the way to drive it out of your system in quick time and without realizing you are taking anything, and at a small expense.

Test this great remedy yourself free by sending for a sample to The John A. Smith Co., 3771 Smith Building, Milwaukee, Wis., and get it by return mail. Then, after you are convinced you can be cured, go to your druggist and get a 50c treatment. It is only in "Smith's Potassium Compound" that you can get the simple remedies mentioned above. # FEES GIVEN UP BY HEALY.

STATE'S ATTORNEY TURNS OVER $51,213 TO THE COUNTY.

Pledge Made to the Public Before He Was Elected to Office Is Kept, Although the Supreme Court Recently Decided That the Money Legally Belongs to Him—School Fund Receives $23,487 by His Action—New Law Urged.

In accordance with the pledge he made before his election, State's Attorney John J. Healy yesterday turned over to the county $51,213 fees earned by his office from Dec 5, 1904, to March 1, 1906. Of this amount $27,726 was sent to President Brundage of the county board and $23,487 to County Superintendent of Schools Nightingale.

In a letter to President Brundage, Mr. Healy wrote:

"I inclose herewith my check for $27,726, being the gross amount of fees earned in this office from Dec. 5, 1904, to March 1, 1906, less $1,770, being the amount actually expended by me for court costs and attorney's fees in the suit of Cook county vs. Healy, which was decided in my favor in the Supreme court of Illinois on Oct. 3, 1906. The remaining fines and forfeitures, amounting to $23,487, I have relinquished to the school fund and have this day remitted the same to A. F. Nightingale, County Superintendent of Schools, to be by him deposited to the credit of the school fund."

Money Legally Is Healy's.

Prior to Mr. Healy's election the fees of the office, under the law, belonged to the state's attorney. The legislature in 1901 passed an act which provided that the state's attorney of Cook county, thereafter to be elected, should receive as his sole compensation an annual salary of $10,000 and that the fees of the office should be paid into the county treasury.

After his election demand was made upon him for these moneys by the county board and by the county superintendent of schools. In order to determine the constitutionality of the act of 1901 a suit was instituted against the state's attorney by the county, with the result that the Supreme court decided the fees belonged to the state's attorney.

Nevertheless, although legally entitled to retain the fees, Mr. Healy in his letter to President Brundage said:

"I now relinquish all claim to the same, except that in the future I intend to retain therefrom a sufficient sum to make my salary $10,000 a year. The county having paid my salary at that rate up to March 1, 1906, I have made no deduction therefor. It is my intention to turn over these fees on March 1 of each year, that being the time of the submission of my annual report."

He requested that the county shall treat all fees of his office as public funds, and that audit of the books be made from time to time, as the county board may direct, "to the end it shall officially appear that all fees coming to my hands are fully and correctly accounted for."

Amendment of Law Suggested.

"This remittance," he said, in conclusion, "is made upon the express condition that the county waive all claim against me for payments heretofore made me on account of salary.

"I suggest that at the next session of the legislature appropriate legislation be asked to the end that in the future all fees of this office shall become the property of the county. Until this is done the fees of this office belong to the state's attorney."

"I answered Mr. Healy's letter by commending his action, because the money rightfully belongs to him," said President Brundage. "The Supreme court has so held and it is seldom that a public official will relinquish money which belongs to him."

The amount sent to President Brundage will be applied to the general fund.

MYSTERY ABOUT BROKEN SKULL

Man with $21 in His Pocket Refuses to Tell the Police How He Was Injured.

Suffering with a fractured skull, William Hoggren, 25 years old, 162 Sedgwick street, entered Siegel, Cooper & Co.'s store yesterday and sat down.

A floorwalker who addressed him and received no reply noticed the man was wounded and notified the police, who took him to the County hospital.

Hoggren refused to tell the police how he had been injured. In his pocket were his pay envelope containing $21 and a card bearing his name and address. The police believe, if the man was assaulted, robbery was not the motive, as the amount of money in the envelope corresponded with the figures on the outside.

PROMISES LIGHT IN CAPITOL GRAFT

State Treasurer Berry of Pennsylvania Will Make Full Inquiry.

SAYS PEOPLE MUST KNOW

Investigation Into Alleged $9,000,000 Steal Will Be Complete, He Asserts.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Determined to sift to rock bottom the charges of graft in furnishing the Pennsylvania state capitol building at Harrisburg, State Treasurer Berry announced today he would institute a thorough inquiry and that the public might expect sensational revelations.

The state originally appropriated $4,000,000 for the building, and a scandal came when it was found an extra $9,000,000 was used to furnish the interior of the building without having been regularly appropriated.

Gov. Pennypacker is confident of the legal right of the board of public grounds and buildings to furnish the capitol without a specific appropriation and that the commonwealth received full value for every cent of extra money. He says state officials have nothing to fear from Berry's probe.

Berry Promises Expose.

"I have one thing only to do, and I'm going to do it if it lies in my power," said Treasurer Berry this morning as he left to attend a meeting of the building commission. "A complete expose of the $13,000,000 capitol job can be expected at the meeting. It will be made if I am not hampered in my investigation by other members of the commission. Gov. Pennypacker, who is also a member, has signified his willingness to aid me in probing the expenditure of $9,000,000 for fixings and furnishings. Startling revelations can be expected. I intend to probe to the bottom of the ill smelling mess."

Governor Not Talking.

Neither the governor nor auditor general would discuss the subject before the board went into session at 2 o'clock this afternoon when Berry asked for an explanation of certain items in the Pennypacker-Snyder statement showing expenditures by the board of grounds and buildings, and how much of the work done by the board should have been done by Payne & Co., contractors for building, under their original contract with the capitol commission.

Mr. Berry admitted the board had a right to furnish electric light fixtures, desks, metallic cases, etc., but he claimed that the governor and auditor general exceeded their authority in contracting for decorating, mural painting, and converting the top story of the building into suites of offices and committee rooms.

ULTIMATE SEGREGATION IS PLANNED AT UNIVERSITY.

Young Women and Young Men Students Will Attend Separate Colleges, to Be Built Adjoining Campus

"Ultimate segregation" is the new term used to express the University of Chicago's policy for the separation of the sexes in the class room.

Freshmen girls of the university were told by Dean MacClintock yesterday in chapel meeting of the extended plans for building them a giant Wellesley just east of the campus. West of the campus the men are to have an Oxford.

Dormitories and recitation halls are to be one and the same for the girls. They will live in the buildings according to their college, as science, literature, or art. There will be reception rooms and places for dancing and amusement.

More privacy of university life was urged by Dean MacClintock in his chapel talk. "University life on the campus needs to be more secluded," he declared. With the "ultimate segregation" of the sexes into the two widely separated groups of buildings he believes there will be less publicity, its chief fault now.

A dollar saved is a dollar made. Save it in your light bill every month by using electric light in the house. It can be turned off and on as needed without any waste. The rates were considerably reduced July 1st. More service may be had now for the money, or the same service for less money. The convenience of the electric light needs no comment. Its uses are manifold—in the kitchen, in the bath room, in the closet, in the cellar, in the parlor, everywhere in the house. There is no dirt, no flame, no matches, no bother. Your house may be brilliantly lighted instantly by the turning of a key at your bedside. Electric light is a boon to the housewife. Saves her many a step; affords her many a convenience; does no damage in the house. The new scale of rates should interest every householder. Call Main 1280 for any information desired.

EVIDENCE ALL IN AGAINST CROWE.

State Closes the Proof of Attempted Jury Bribing in Only Six Hours.

HEAR THREE WITNESSES.

Thomas B. Carr Most Postive in His Identification of the Prisoner.

It took but six hours yesterday for the prosecution to present its evidence against Stephen A. Crowe, charged with endeavoring to bribe a juror in the John A. Cook case. There were only three witnesses to be heard. They told their stories, were cross examined, and the defense immediately made a motion that the jury be instructed to find the defendant "not guilty." The motion was denied by Judge Pinckney, and this morning the defense will begin.

Thomas B. Carr, the juror who charges Crowe, the manager of the Revere house, with offering the bribe, was the first witness. He told the story of the alleged attempt to corrupt him.

"I was in the bathroom about 11 o'clock on the night of July 20 when the offer was made to me," he testified. "I had been in the tub but a few minutes when I heard a voice outside the partition saying, 'The tub is leaking.' I replied 'I'll get out and see.' Then the voice, which I recognized as that of Crowe, said, 'Let the water out.' I replied that I had done so.

Offer of $1,000 Made.

"'I know you. You live on the south side and come from Iowa,' said Crowe. 'Do you want to make $1,000?' 'No,' I immediately replied. Then he said, 'This man on trial is a friend of mine. If you will hang the jury and—' but that is as far as he got. I said, 'I do not want to talk to you about that.' As I turned away he said, 'Do this and come to me and get $1,000.'

"I recognized the man at once as Crowe. He is now seated in the courtroom." And Carr pointed to Crowe as he sat near his attorney. "The next thing I did was to report it to Bailiff Olsen, who was asleep."

Former Judge Charles G. Neely, attorney for Crowe, then asked Carr if he remembered that the man to whom he had talked had a boil on the right eye and wore a bandage about his head. Carr did not remember these things. The defense, it is said, will endeavor to show that Crowe did have a boil on his right eye of the sort that could not be overlooked, and that he was wearing a bandage about his head at this time.

Bailiff Olsen Testifies.

Bailiff Olsen was the next witness, and he told practically the same story of the alleged tender of money as that of Carr. It was the story that Carr told him when he awoke him on the night of July 20.

"Juror Brinkeman accompanied Carr to my room, where I was sleeping, and Carr told me of the $1,000 being offered," said the bailiff. "I saw that action was necessary at once, and I notified the state's attorney."

Mr. Neely began the cross examination by asking Carr if he could recognize Mr. Crowe's voice through a partition. There was an objection, and it was said that it had been planned to test the witness' capacity for recognizing voices by compelling him to listen to different persons' voices through a partition.

It is promised that the defense will endeavor to show that Carr was a member of a party of jurors and persons not jurors who played whist in the barroom on the night in question until the bartender closed the place, and that he was playing at the time the money is said to have been offered.

State's Attorney Healy and Assistant State's Attorney Olson had charge of the prosecution.

New Head of Wisconsin Central

W. A. BRADFORD JR.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 9.—The Wisconsin Central railway company was formally transferred into the control of new interests at today's annual meeting of the stockholders, which was held at the general offices of the corporation in this city. W. A. Bradford Jr., president of the Chicago, Cincinnati and Louisville, will be named as president tomorrow. The new names in the list of directors are: T. L. Chadbourne Jr., John F. Hill, F. E. Dewey, Harry C. Starr, C. C. Rasmus, and Mark T. Cox. At the conclusion of the stockholders' meeting the following official statement was issued showing the makeup of the directory and the new officers of the corporation for the ensuing year:

The following directors will manage the affairs of the corporation for the ensuing year: George M. Cumming, W. A. Bradford Jr., T. L. Chadbourne Jr., C. A. Fernault, John F. Hill, F. E. Dewey, Harry C. Starr, C. G. Rasmus, Mark T. Cox, William F. Vilas, and Fred T. Gates.

At a directors' meeting to be held tomorrow the following officers of the corporation will be elected: W. A. Bradford Jr., president; George M. Cumming, chairman of the board of directors; T. L. Chadbourne Jr., chairman of the executive committee; T. H. Gill, general solicitor; Godkin & Chadbourne, New York, general counsel; W. R. Hancock, treasurer.

Mr. Bradford made the following statement:

"There is no intention whatever of consolidation or combination between the Wisconsin Central and the other roads, and all reports to the effect that this property is to be 'absorbed,' consolidated with, or in any manner placed in a position by which it loses its identity and individuality as a separate and distinct railway system are without the least foundation. The new owners, who are now in control of the property, have no idea of any such change. The fact that I happen to be president of the Chicago, Cincinnati and Louisville road has no significance whatever in the changes in the Wisconsin Central."

UNIONS FIGHT; MILLS STOP

TWO MORE WOODWORKING CONCERNS CRIPPLED.

Factories of A. H. Andrews & Co. and Decorators' Supply Company Involved in Struggle—Tieup of Jewelry Manufacturing Concerns More or Less Complete Here, but Work Is to Be Sent East So That Trade May Continue Unhampered.

Two more large woodworking mills were crippled yesterday as a result of the inter-union fight between the carpenters and the woodworkers. Strikes were called at the factories of A. H. Andrews & Co. and the Decorators' Supply company.

Employers said the men walked out because woodworkers were employed, while the carpenters ascribe the strikes to a discharge order, said to have been issued by the Millmen's association. Members of the association met in the afternoon in the Rector building and decided they are bound by agreements to employ only woodworkers in their shops. When the contract expires next March it is possible an "open shop" may be declared.

Tieup of Jewelry Factories.

The tieup of jewelry factories was reported to be nearly complete, although an official statement issued by the Manufacturing Jewelers' association said only about 75 per cent of the men were out. The employers decided to use "personal" methods with their strikers, hoping thus to win them back to their positions.

It was said that the strike, while handicapping the jewelers to a large degree, will not cause great delay or inconvenience to the public. Local manufacturers have arranged with eastern firms to take the work which cannot be completed here. The retail jewelers, it was announced, have voted to support the manufacturers in their stand against the union demands for an eight hour workday.

Labor in Court.

James Gavin, who charged that the Bricklayers and Stonemasons' union had declared a boycott which prevented him from getting employment, won another victory over the union when the branch Appellate court upheld the injunction secured against the organization several months ago.

The Industrial Workers of the World brought additional charges against each other in court. C. O. Sherman, deposed president of the organization, and his associates filed an answer to the suit started by the De Leon faction for possession of the funds of the organization. In the answer the assertion is made that Sherman was ousted through the aid of "soap box orators and political agitators for the socialist party."

Assistant State's Attorney Fake announced that 950 veniremen have been examined in the Shea case with the result that only four jurors have been selected.

CATCHES A POLICEMAN EATING.

Chief Frost of Evanston Angry Because Patrolman, Banana in Mouth, Could Not Answer at Once.

Policeman George Pestak of Evanston, who recently was fined $1 by Chief Frost for laughing at a woman who stumbled into a mud puddle, again drew wrath upon himself when he delayed in saluting and answering a question put to him by the chief yesterday.

Pestak was eating a banana while in front of the fruit store of E. Bachecki, 903 Chicago avenue. When he saw Chief Frost approaching he attempted to swallow the whole banana.

Chief Frost asked him what he was doing, but for a minute Pestak was unable to answer. The chief then asked if Pestak had noticed any slot machines in the vicinity.

When Pestak had swallowed the banana he saluted and said:

"There are no slot machines in operation on my beat."

DEFENDANT'S KIN STATE WITNESSES

Peculiar Phase of Samuel N. Hoffheimer's Trial for Kiting Checks.

TESTIMONY FAVORS HIM.

Nelson and Edward Morris, Samuel Straus, and Others on the Stand.

Nearly every witness called to Judge Kersten's court yesterday to testify against Samuel N. Hoffheimer, charged with obtaining $250,000 from S. W. Straus & Co. by kiting checks, is related to the defendant. This fact and the fact that much of the testimony of the state's witnesses was favorable to Hoffheimer were pointed to as being significant by those familiar with the case.

Among the witnesses heard were Nelson Morris, the packer, uncle of Hoffheimer, who nearly fainted in the court room; Edward Morris, son of Nelson Morris, and a cousin of Hoffheimer, and Samuel Straus, a partner in the firm of S. W. Straus & Co., and a relative of Hoffheimer's. Oscar G. Foreman of Foreman Bros., bankers, also was a witness.

The evidence heard dealt mainly with the statement which Hoffheimer made after his check "kiting" had been discovered. The evidence showed that the young man made no effort to deny his responsibility for the present situation and the cross examination showed an evident intent on the part of the defense to show that the Straus firm was informed as to his methods long before the exposure.

Variance in Testimony.

A variance between the testimony of Samuel Straus and that of Edward Morris was seized upon by the defense and brought out in the cross examination.

"What occurred on the night that Hoffheimer's operations were discovered and you accompanied him to Mr. Morris' house to talk the matter over?" the younger Straus was asked by Assistant State's Attorney Newcomer.

"Hoffheimer said: 'I have swindled the Straus boys out of a lot of money. I am in great trouble,'" was the reply.

A short time later Edward Morris, who had been examined earlier in the day by the prosecution, was recalled to the witness stand for cross examination and asked if such a statement had been made to him.

"No," he replied. He amplified this answer later by saying that part of the statement was true, but that Hoffheimer never had said that he had swindled the Straus'.

"Then tell us what was said," said Attorney John Wayman for the defense.

Morris Asked for Assistance.

"Well," replied Mr. Morris, "after he said that he was in great trouble, and both of the men asked me if I would help them out, I asked him what had been done with the money. Hoffheimer said that he had put it all into the cottonseed and the soap business.

"Both Straus and Sam then asked me if I couldn't help them, but I said I didn't have money to help anybody. Then they asked me if I thought it would do any good to go to my father. I then told them that it was too late to go to him that night, so they left."

Assistant State's Attorney Newcomer immediately endeavored to learn what word had been used instead of "swindled," but Mr. Morris smilingly continued to say that he didn't think any word had been used that had that meaning. Then he was asked how much Hoffheimer had said he was "short," but he said that he didn't know.

In the morning session Nelson Morris, pale and evidently scarcely able to walk, told of his business relations with Hoffheimer. Several times he leaned forward in his chair and paused to catch his breath, and once he asked for a drink of water before he could proceed. He narrowly missed fainting.

IMPETUS IS GIVEN TO PLAN TO WIDEN HALSTED STREET.

Estimate of Cost of Proposed Change Is About One-Fourth of the Amount Which Was Expected.

The plan to widen Halsted street from 66 to 100 feet got an unexpected boom yesterday when the report of the men who had been named to assess the cost was presented to the board of local improvements. It had been asserted it would be a $16,000,000 job and bankrupt every property owner who would be assessed, but the figures of the appraisers were $4,500,000.

The report estimates the cost of acquiring the needed thirty-four feet on the west side of the street at $1,700,000, the damage to buildings at $2,700,000, and $100,000 additional for incidental expenses.

There is considerable local opposition to the widening plan, largely by shopkeepers south of Van Buren street. Taking thirty-four feet from the west side of the street would take the entire front away from Hull house, cut the Academy and Bijou theaters in the middle, and hit the West Side Masonic temple and the Illinois Medical college.

Building Commissioner Bartzen will go to the stockyards this morning, and unless things are different from what he expects to find them there will be trouble. Some time ago the commissioner ordered a number of changes in the buildings at the yards and he has received a report from Inspectors Cowdry and Sheridan that only the minor ones have been made.

An order from Building Inspector Cordell to stop the work on an addition to the Art institute, on account of the blowing down of a six foot wall, was ignored by the south park commissioners, who hold that the city has no jurisdiction over Grant park, in which the institute stands. The building department has appealed to the law department for an opinion in the matter.

FINDS A MOLDING SCHOOL

UNION'S BUSINESS AGENT MAKES STARTLING DISCOVERY.

Learns That National Founders' Association Is Conducting at 182 Dearborn Street an "Academy" Where Boys Are Instructed in the Trade to Take Places of Strikers—Graduates Are Turned Out as Skilled Workmen After Two Weeks' Course

Business Agent James Brown walked into the headquarters of the ironmolders' union yesterday afternoon and sighed heavily.

"It's no use," he exclaimed. "Those employers always are getting up some new-fangled idea."

Brown slouched disconsolately into a seat and announced to his inquisitive associates that he had just discovered a "school for strikebreakers."

"Yes, a regular kindergarten," he said, "where they make ironmolders out of kids in two weeks."

Brown referred to the experiment which the National Founders' association is conducting at 182 Dearborn street in the hope of breaking the strike of its skilled shop hands, which began last April. For weeks the strikers had been wondering where the iron manufacturers were securing their recruits. They have found out.

Accompanied by two other union officials Brown stealthily searched the downtown district for three days. Storerooms, lofts, and attics were hunted in vain, until at length the trail led to Monroe and Dearborn streets. Cautiously mounting the stairs, the union detectives crept along a dark hallway and surreptitiously peeked into room 7.

Molding School Is Discovered.

The sight which met their eyes almost caused the union men to faint. Piled high on the floor was a mound of black sand and under glimmering arc lights a dozen men were mixing and sifting the sand and patting it into delicate molds to hold the molten metal which was boiling in a kettle in the corner of the room. It was the strikebreakers' "school" in full blast.

"Looks like a regular foundry," admitted Brown.

"It's a nonunion one," commented one of his companions. "Wonder if it's an 'open shop.'"

The unionists tried the door. They found it tightly locked and barred.

"Closed all right," sighed Brown.

A gray haired man wearing spectacles peered out through a crack in the door and told the strike leaders to go away.

"I presume that's the professor," said Brown, sneeringly, as he led his companions back to the headquarters.

Later, the "professor," who proved to be A. L. Hott, formerly connected with the E. P. Allis company of Milwaukee, permitted an inspection of the place, and explained the workings of the strikebreakers' academy.

Trade Is Learned Quickly.

"We've just got started," said Mr. Hott, "but in another week the school will be running along in good shape. We have eight 'students' at present and they are promising. Last week we graduated seven and they are now at work in the struck foundries in the city."

Mr. Hott said the founders expect to turn out ten or more full fledged "strikebreakers" each week. At that rate, it will require about a year to fill the places of the 500 iron molders on strike.

"We pay them $1.50 a day while they are learning the trade," Mr. Hott continued, "just to keep them interested in their work. In a couple of weeks they master the molding and are ready to do efficient work in the foundries. In six months time they are as good as the strikers."

Most of the "Students" Boys.

Mr. Hott added that formerly the union insisted upon an apprenticeship of four years.

Most of the "students" in the school were boys, some of them evidently just out of high school. They seemed to take an interest in their instruction and didn't bother much about union principles.

"That is something we never discuss in our classes," explained Mr. Hott. "Once we had a union man in the school, but when he found out what it was he left quickly."

The iron molders' union is not certain yet what it will do about the "new fangled" scheme of the employers. Business Agent Brown said it might be necessary to call the school to the attention of the board of education.

SLOW INQUIRY IN WALSH CASE.

Bank Examiner Moxey Has Matter in Charge and May Not Finish Investigation This Month.

Delay in the trial of John R. Walsh, former president of the Chicago National bank, on charges of violating the federal banking laws was said by United States District Attorney Sims yesterday to be due to the fact that Bank Examiner Moxey has not completed his investigation.

The entire matter is now in the hands of Examiner Moxey, he said. It is commonly believed the expert will not conclude his inquiry for at least a month.

The next grand jury has been called for Nov. 13 and it is generally believed the case will not be ready for presentation by that time.

CITY TEARING DOWN A FENCE.

Action Taken to Regain Streets Said to Have Been Inclosed Wrongfully by South Shore Country Club.

City workmen, under orders from Superintendent of Streets Doherty, began yesterday to tear down the fence with which the South Shore Country club had inclosed city property in Seventy-first street, from Bond avenue to the lake.

The club is tearing down its fence in Yates avenue, but it did not begin tearing down the fence in Seventy-first street in the time limit set by the city.

It is charged that the organization took 33 feet of the city's property, and the street department ordered the club to move back the fences to its own property so that the streets can be restored to the city.

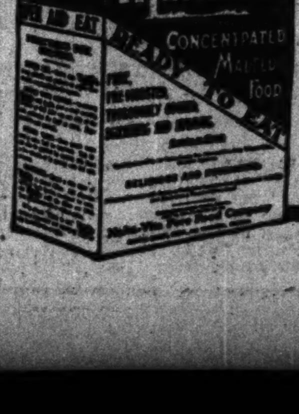

Malta-Vita

Always Ready to Eat—No Cooking

It is good to eat. Anyone who has ever eaten it knows that is true. It is healthful and strengthening, giving new vigor to the body and mind. Anyone who has eaten it daily for any length of time knows that is true. It is pure and clean. Anyone who has ever seen it made in the big factories at Battle Creek, Mich., or Toronto, Canada, knows that is true.

These three distinctive qualities make Malta-Vita the most popular cereal food. Scientists call it "The Perfect Food."

Malta-Vita is rich in the nutrition of best whole-wheat and pure barley malt extract, and is so easy to digest because the malt extract, when mixed with the cooked wheat, converts the starch of the wheat into maltose, or malt sugar. Maltose is very nourishing, and is practically pre-digested. It gives Malta-Vita an appetizing, pleasing flavor not found in any other food. Get some Malta-Vita today. Eat it with milk, cream or fruit.

ANOTHER important step toward the ideal store—bringing the daily interests of the entire public into closer accord with this great establishment. SUFFERED AGONIES FOR FOUR YEARS

Whole Foot Nothing But Proud Flesh—Tried Different Physicians and All Kinds of Ointments—Could Walk Only With Crutches—Ohio Man Says:

"CUTICURA REMEDIES THE BEST ON EARTH"

"In the year 1899 the side of my right foot was cut off from the little toe down to the heel, and the physician who had charge of me was trying to sew up the side of my foot, but with no success. When he found out that wouldn't work, he began trying to heal the wound with all kinds of ointment, until at last my whole foot and way up above my calf was nothing but proud flesh. I suffered untold agonies for four years, and tried different physicians and all kinds of ointments. I could walk only with crutches. It is sixteen months ago since I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment for my limb and foot. The first two months the Cuticura Remedies did not seem to work, but I kept on using them both. In two weeks afterwards I saw a change in my limb. Then I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment often during the day and kept it up for seven months, when my limb was healed up just the same as if I never had trouble.

"It is eight months now since I stopped using Cuticura Remedies, the best on God's earth. I am working at the present day, after five years of suffering. The cost of Cuticura Ointment and Soap was only $6; but the doctors' bills were more like $600. You can publish my name and refer any one to write to me about Cuticura Remedies. I will answer all letters if postage is enclosed. John M. Lloyd, 718 S. Arch Ave., Alliance, Ohio, June 27, 1905."

THE SAN FRANCISCO INSURANCE.

The courts will be kept busy for many months in hearing cases connected with the insurance repudiated by the companies because of the complications attending the earthquake and consequent fire in San Francisco. The difficulty of adjustment is perfectly apparent, little testimony of value being available to determine what loss was due to the one cause and what to the other. The enormous amounts involved have made the temptation to repudiate a great one. On the other hand the future of San Francisco is largely bound up with the success of policy holders in forcing settlement of losses.

In the first decision the verdict favors the policy holder. The company interested had no earthquake clause in its policy, but had resisted payment under the general clause of exceptions by which it is relieved from liability in case of loss caused by invasion, insurrection, riot, civil war, or civil commotions, or through military or usurped power, or by order of any civil authority.

The court's verdict is that the company has not a bit of ground for its position. Even if the earthquake caused the fire its standing is declared to be the same. But not one bit of evidence was introduced that would justify a finding that the fire was caused by the earthquake. If this attitude of the court may be taken as representing the feeling of the judges generally regarding the delicate cases which are to be decided it will be more hopeful for San Francisco.

When the magnitude of the sums involved is recalled it does not seem at all likely that the companies will permit the decision of the Superior court to pass unchallenged. The end of the litigation may be years removed. But it is something that the policy holders have won the first fight.

A HISTORIC HAYSTACK.

One hundred years ago today an unseasonable thunder storm drove five young men to take shelter under a haystack in the neighborhood of Williams college, where they were students. Today a monument marks the place where that haystack stood, and men from all parts of the world are gathered at Williamstown to celebrate the centennial anniversary of that meeting in the rain. Out of the communion of hearts and the prayers which arose on that occasion grew the first great American Protestant missionary society aiming at the conversion of distant lands. The conversion of Indian tribes had been attempted from the earliest days. Eliot's Indian bible is a proof that, although the Protestant churches did not send out missionaries into the remote west like the Catholic societies, they did not neglect the heathen near home. Dartmouth college was founded for the instruction of the Indian youth. Missions labored among the Cherokees and the Creeks, but Persia, India, China, Africa, and the islands of the South seas were outside the cognizance of the Protestant churches of America. The good that has been done in bringing heathen lands to a higher ideal of religion will be stated by the orators of the day and by the clergy in general throughout the country. It is possible for a secular newspaper to point out some of the unexpected but natural results of the missionary fervor which seized New England a century ago.

In the first place, as Charles Dudley Warner points out in his "Being a Boy," the country villages in the New England hills and the lonely farms became familiar with the names and the condition of foreign lands of which otherwise they might never have heard. Ahmednagar, Maulmain, Honolulu, became household words. The boys knew that there lay a wonderful world beyond the hills and beyond the sea. The magic call of the orient was heard by the farmer lads as plainly as by the lads who lived where ships trading to the eastern world brought home strange cargoes. Travelers, rovers, delvers into the language and the history of the ancient empires gained their inspiration perhaps from some report at "the monthly concert of prayer for foreign missions." The valuable contributions of missionaries to oriental scholarship are only a small portion of the service in that field rendered directly and indirectly by the missionary spirit.

On the political side the missionaries have added Hawaii and Samoa to the United States, and it has been more for the protection of missions than in aid of trade that consular agents have been established in many Asiatic towns. American diplomacy reaped some of its first successes in Siam and some of its greatest in China and Turkey, and if the influence of the United States was great in Asia before the war with Spain established this country as an Asiatic power it is due largely to the American missionaries and sons of missionaries.

The reflex action of the missionary spirit upon religious life and thought in this country has been a greater thing than the influence upon the religion of foreign lands. Less important but not less interesting has been the influence of foreign missions upon the imagination of the American youth and upon the political history of the United States as a world power. The site of the Williamstown haystack is historic ground.

WHO DISCREDITS CHICAGO?

Mayor Dunne is indignant because the newspapers abroad, as he says, circulate bad stories about Chicago, so that timid and nervous people are afraid to come here. He is still more indignant because Chicago newspapers supply the material for these unkind stories. Hence, he says, the evil name Chicago is getting with some persons who believe everything they read in newspapers and with others who are glad to hear anything to the discredit of the city.

Mayor Dunne's wail is a repetition of the old cry which the elder Harrison invariably set up when the newspapers criticised his administration. The wicked papers, according to Harrison, were attacking the city. In reality they were attacking a misrepresentative of the city in the mayor's office. It is not the newspapers but Mayor Dunne and his deputies who have brought Chicago into disrepute.

It is not so much the fact that the city newspapers have noticed the prevalence of crime here as the fact that Mayor Dunne and his police department have been unable to restrain the criminal element that has brought the city into disrepute. By their inefficiency, incompetency, and sometimes by their indifference, and by the scandals which have paralyzed the energies of the police, they have made Chicago an inviting field and safe harbor of refuge for criminals.

When Mayor Dunne packs the board of education with freaks, cranks, monomaniacs, and boodlers and turns over to them the care of one of the greatest school systems in this country, he is doing much to bring Chicago into disrepute.

When he appoints another freak for building inspector and that building inspector spends his time shutting up department stores and other large houses, interfering with legitimate building operations, and disturbing unnecessarily and wantonly great business interests, the mayor is helping to discredit Chicago.

When Mayor Dunne appoints an inspector of the health department who attacks the cold storage and the packing industries of the city and circulates stories, some manufactured, others grossly exaggerated, about the unwholesomeness of their products, he is helping directly to bring the city into contempt.

When Mayor Dunne loads the board of local improvements with political friends who are notoriously unfit for their positions, he is helping greatly to give Chicago an evil reputation.

When Mayor Dunne, because the people of Chicago are not disposed to adopt his cranky fad of municipal ownership, systematically attacks every industry in the city and causes word to be sent abroad that it is not safe to invest capital here and that those having capital should keep away, he is helping more than any other man to make Chicago an undesirable place in which to live or do business.

When Mayor Dunne gives his approval to the unionizing of the fire department and school teachers, and thus invites strikes in most important departments of the city administration, he is doing his best to make the name of Chicago a hissing and a byword.

When Mayor Dunne helps to create the impression that Chicago belongs to the taxeaters and that the taxpayers should have nothing to say about its government, but must tamely submit to every form of oppression, extortion, and blackmail, he gives this city deservedly the name of an anarchistic, lawless, and un-American community.

It is not what the newspapers say but what Mayor Dunne is doing that is hurting Chicago. It is the right and privilege of the press to report facts. If they did not report them they would be neglectful of their duty, and the public justly would find fault with them. But it is not the duty of Mayor Dunne to create disreputable facts to be reported. Undoubtedly Mayor Dunne and the extraordinary municipal menageries he has gathered about him would have been delighted if the newspapers had praised him and them and had refrained from criticising their unprecedented inefficiency, their graft, their absurdities, their disregard of tried and sound business methods, and the substitution for them of erratic and crazy schemes of so-called "reform." But if the newspapers had overlooked these facts the condition of things in Chicago would have been much worse than it is, and that is saying a good deal. Chicago would have had a still worse name than Mayor Dunne and his freak collection of assistants have already given it if they had had their way in all things as they have had it in many things.

DEATH OF RISTORI.

The Marchesa del Grillo, better known to the public as Adelaide Ristori, died in Rome yesterday. Italy has furnished some great artists to the modern dramatic stage, among them Salvini, Rossi, Duse, and Ristori, all of them of the realistic school. Salvini is perhaps the greatest of the four, though many will contend that Ristori is first. When she made her début in Paris in 1855 she was the rival of Rachel, the splendid Jewish tragedienne, then in the prime of her power and at the zenith of her success. Paris, so often a battleground of actresses and singers, was the scene of a rivalry almost as intense and bitter as that between Gluck and Piccini, in which Marie Antoinette and Mme. Du Barry were the leaders of the factions. But in the end Rachel overcame her rival and Ristori went to England, where she roused a furore and stirred up a genuine artistic feeling among English playgoers with her grand personations of Francesca, Mary Stuart, Elizabeth, Myrrha, Phædra, Medea (one of Rachel's greatest successes), Judith, and Deborah. Her American tour during the '60s was eminently successful, and those who can recall her personations of Elizabeth, Mary Stuart, or Lady Macbeth, in which rôle she appeared with Edwin Booth, have memories of dramatic power and art they will never forget. Ristori was a beautiful woman of beautiful character, and an actress of the classical type, who helped to elevate the stage and ennoble her profession. She was one of the great actresses of the world, standing in the front rank with Talma, Mars, Siddons, Rachel, Cushman, Janauschek, Bernhardt, and Duse.

THE ELIMINATION OF DISTANCE.

The greatest feature of the present age is the improvement in those things which tend to abridge distance and to make communication more rapid and easy. These advances follow one another with such rapidity as to make little impression upon the individual at the time. But when they are reviewed on the occasion of some notable achievement the magnitude of the improvement is startling.

The reported merger of many independent telephone companies with a large capitalization is a case in point. The telephone is a recent invention, comparatively speaking, and yet the determination of this new organization to contest for a field already fairly well occupied by another company foretells the inevitable increase in the use of the telephone, the reduction of rates, and the advantage of the individual patron. The telephone is firmly established as a necessary feature of every large industry for intramural service. It has made itself an absolute necessity for local business. Now if there is a prospect for sharp competition in the field of long distance communication there is a chance for the more common use of this valuable means of eliminating distance.

An electric railroad between Chicago and New York, following an air line and having cars which run at the highest possible speed, would certainly force reduction of fares on the part of the steam roads, and lead to more catering to the public for patronage. The advantage would be all on the side of the people, in making transportation more available for all. The effect in the main would be the elimination of distance as a factor in life.

The importance of the waterway from the same point of view cannot be overestimated. Every advance in methods of transportation means the abridgement of distance. The Western Society of Civil Engineers will discuss that theme at a coming banquet, at which one of the speakers will be the engineer who built the "Soo" locks in 1854 and has seen the commerce at that point grow from small beginnings to an enormous tonnage yearly. The figures of lake carrier business for a term of years would well illustrate the tremendous advances.

It hardly needs mention that in service within the city the advances in the direction of eliminating distance have been little short of marvelous. In bringing the edges of the city close to the center, in making the ownership of suburban homes more possible and desirable, in adding to the conveniences and comforts of life, rapid transit has accomplished wonders. In fact, it is the dominant feature of the age, this steady elimination of distance, by improvement of waterways, by electrification of railways, by wireless telegraphy and long distance telephone service, by fast mails and limited trains. It is the sum total of progress which startles.

LETTER OF MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

Copyright: 1906: By the Marquise de Fontenoy.

KING EDWARD is confronted just at present by an embarrassing demand. It is a request that he should present some costly and imposing site in London for the erection of a superb mosque, akin in grandeur to the great mosque at Delhi. The plans already have been approved, and the Moslem rulers and wealthy Mohammedans of India have pledged themselves to the subscription of a fund amply sufficient to not only build but also to endow the mosque, stipulating, however, that the project shall receive the approval of King Edward.

It is pointed out that in Constantinople the sultan has given fine sites for an English church, for an English high school for girls, for an English sailors' home, and for several other Christian institutions of the same kind, and that inasmuch as King Edward is the most powerful Moslem ruler of the world, his Mohammedan subjects outnumbering his Christian lieges by two to one, he might well show the consideration for their religious belief that would be involved by his presentation of some valuable site in London for the mosque. It is argued that it would likewise constitute a royal recognition of the loyalty of the Moslems in India to England, both during and since the great Sepoy mutiny of half a century ago, and would be appreciated to such a degree as a compliment by followers of the prophet in all quarters of the globe that it would go far towards scotching the growing peril of pan-Islamism.

If King Edward hesitates it is because he is aware of the outcry which would be raised throughout the united kingdom, especially among the middle and lower classes, against what would be denounced as "pandering to the infidel." He knows that meetings would be called, sermons preached, and miles of print published to condemn him and to recall him to a sense of his obligations as supreme head of the Church of England. In fact, his donation of a site in London for a mosque would stir up a hornet's nest at home.

On the other hand, if he declines to comply with the demand addressed to him, he gravely offends his Moslem subjects in India, whose good will is of such vital importance to the maintenance of his rule over his great Asiatic empire. It will also profoundly irritate against him Mohammedans in Egypt, central Asia, Turkey, and elsewhere, whom it is England's policy to propitiate. Edward VII. is keenly alive to this. He attaches greater value than any of his predecessors on the throne to his Indian empire, and that is why it may safely be assumed that he will decide to face the music in England and satisfy his Moslem lieges by presenting them with a site for a mosque. It must thoroughly be understood that the mosque is demanded not so much for the use of the followers of the prophet living in London in considerable numbers, but rather as an outward and visible sign of the consideration accorded by the British crown and government to the faith to which nearly 100,000,000 of English subjects belong.

The late Lord Leven's bequest of a quarter of a million dollars for the restoration of the Chapel Royal of King Edward's palace of Holyrood in Edinburgh has evoked a storm of protest from people not only in Scotland but also in England against any interference with the impressive ruins of the old abbey church. The latter was originally a structure of great size and fine architecture. It consisted of a nave, choir, and transepts with aisles. It is believed that there was a Lady chapel to the east and that there were two western towers, and a tower over the crossing. All that remain, however, are the ruins of the nave and one western tower. The transepts and choir have vanished, and it is not proposed to rebuild them. It is proposed that the partly demolished walls and the interior of the nave shall be rebuilt in accordance with the original design.

The chapel played a great rôle in the drama of Scottish history. Mary Queen of Scots and Darnley were married there. Charles I. was there crowned king of Scotland, and many of the Stuart kings and consorts were buried there. But their tombs were desecrated and their remains scattered when the abbey was plundered and burned by a mob driven to frenzy by King James II.'s action in causing mass to be solemnized within its precincts.

Since then the ruins have become one of the most picturesque and imposing landmarks of the Scottish capital, and there seems to be a general feeling that it would be an act of vandalism to sacrifice even one stone of these ancient and hoary ruins for even the most splendid restoration, especially as there can be no restoration that does not entail some destruction. Some, indeed, even go so far as to declare that this proposal to interfere with the Chapel Royal at Holyrood recalls to them Sir Walter Scott's well known story of how the drummer for a patent stain remover endeavored to obliterate the time honored traces of the blood of the murdered minstrel, Rizzio, on the floor of the boudoir of the room of his royal mistress, Mary Queen of Scots.

Here again the settlement of the controversy rests with King Edward. It is for him to determine whether the chapel is to be restored or not with the quarter of a million dollars bequeathed by the late Lord Leven for the purpose, and it may safely be asserted that whichever way he decides he will excite ill will, protest, and denunciation.

Should the restoration take place it is proposed that the sacred edifice should be used as the chapel for the Royal Scotch Order of the Thistle. That, indeed, was the intention of Lord Leven, and as the Knights of the Garter have their chapel at St. George's, Windsor, the Knights of the Bath in Westminster abbey, the Knights of St. Michael and St. George in St. Paul's cathedral, and the Knights of the Order of St. Patrick in St. Patrick's cathedral in Dublin, it would seem only right and proper that the Knights of the "Most Ancient and Most Noble Order of the Thistle," consisting of sixteen Scotch nobles and of several of the royal princes, should have once more their chapel in the old abbey church of Holyrood, where their respective banners, hanging above their carved wood stalls, would add a picturesque feature to the chapel.

Lord Aberdeen, viceroy of Ireland, by the bye, has just been invested by King Edward with the green ribbon and star of the Order of the Thistle left vacant by the death of Lord Leven. This order, according to Scottish tradition and belief, is of remote origin, antedating the foundation of the Order of the Garter by several hundred years. It is said to have originated in the vision of a bright cross in the heavens seen by Achaius, king of the Scots, and Hungus, king of the Picts, while they were engaged in prayer the night before their battle with Athelstane, king of England, in the eighth century. What is historical, however, is that in 1540 James V. of Scotland either established or revived the order, and assigned to its knights stalls in the Chapel Royal of Holyrood. King James II., the last of the Stuart kings, Queen Anne, and in later years King George IV., modified its statutes.

The badge is in the form of an eight pointed cross "charged" with a gold enameled figure of St. Andrew holding before him his own "X" shaped cross. The star itself is formed in part of a St. Andrew's cross in silver, between the four limbs of which are four starry rays, the center being occupied by a blue thistle with green leaves. The gold collar or chain of the order, only worn on state occasions, consists of a series of golden thistles, alternating with sprigs of rue, while the mantle of the order is of green velvet lined with taffeta. It is restricted to Scotch peers, although there have been two or three instances during the last 200 years when it has been conferred upon distinguished Scotchmen of minor rank, such as, for instance, the late Sir John Stirling Maxwell. Among its actual members are the duke of Roxburghe, Lord Rosebery, Lord Crawford, and the dukes of Montrose, Buccleuch, of Fife, of Atholl, and of Argyll.

A NOVEL IN A NUTSHELL.

THE FINANCIER.
BY
HARRIS BURLAND.
Published by G. W. Dillingham Co.

PRINCIPAL ACTORS.
John Gramphorn......A patriotic money king
George Stanyon............His willing tool
Juliet Aumule......................
....A beautiful actress, beloved by both

The average reader will likely become so fascinated in following the career of the patriotic king of the English money market that he will fail to see what the author never meant him to see and which the author's cleverness has veiled so well.

John Gramphorn saw a vision of national greatness assume form on the horizon that shut Africa from his line of vision. There had been an indefinite rumor of gold found in Mashansweland, but the English populace, too well content with their flowered back yards and stretches of green comfort, steadfastly refused to become excited. Nor could wire pulling offer a tardy government gold lined inducements for the colonization of a far off, unhealthy, unknown corner of the earth. But John Gramphorn, once permitted a glance into the future, determined to devote all his resources to the opening up of this country, thereby furthering England's prosperity and his own cash surplus.

He was in need of a tool. A man to his liking stood ready at hand. George Stanyon had been struggling along at an engineer's profession when the first gold rumors shivered through the country. He embarked in one of the early private expeditions and was later picked up by an honorable man, goldless but dying of starvation. Returned to London he clung to the street corners, and hugged the wall of the narrow passage through which the beautiful Juliet Aumule passed to and from those triumphs which had set theatergoing London mad. But Juliet, his fiancée and former playmate, did not recognize the lonely man, and as for himself he was so absorbed in discouraging thought that a man must twice pull his sleeve before he obtained an answer to his question and could deliver his message to the effect that John Gramphorn would await George Stanyon the next morning at 11 o'clock.

It was only by persistent use of his persuasive gift and by consenting to have a body guard that George got a suit of clothes. Those he obtained had been worn a couple of times before, but his linen was spotless, and the absence of newness but showed a becoming humility before such magnanimous wealth.

The interview was productive of a new suit of clothes. So it was a different man who climbed the stairs to Miss Aumule's apartments and whispered good-by from the man who had merely watched her in the shadow.

A few weeks later rumors of the finding of rich veins of ore, authenticated by John Gramphorn, were hinted about, people were clamoring for Mashansweland stock, and the transportation companies found it necessary to lease more boats to keep pace with the demands made upon them.

But while the emigrants were hunting phantom gold mines or platting out farms, for many forgot their thirst for gold when they saw the green fields stretched out before them, Gramphorn was laying up trouble for himself at home. In a purely accidental way he became acquainted with the beautiful Juliet Aumule. Very much contrary to his past life, he attended the theater at which she was playing several times. Then, to protect the girl he buys her a theater of her own. That act was enough to break off a desirable betrothal, but it was only the forerunner of disaster. For when George returned and found his beloved in her own theater by no work of her own, he did not stop to investigate, but in fury spurned the girl and instituted vengeance against Gramphorn by proclaiming that the gold rumor was false from start to finish, trumped up to foster a man's passion for patriotic self-aggrandizement.

Naturally panic ensued. Nothing Gramphorn could do could stem its current. He argued with the company's directors and ministers of government to save the colony, now peacefully cultivating rich fields, but without success. Even by throwing his vast fortune on the market he could not single handed turn the selling of shares. George Stanyon was reported as sleeping the sleep of the honest somewhere in the bed of the channel.

Then Gramphorn showed the stuff of which successful men are made. With almost nothing but a surplus of practically worthless Mashansweland stock, he set to work to rebuild his fortune. And then, when the foundation stones had been laid, there came an unknown man with exact information regarding the fabulous gold mines. Naturally, the public was skeptical. So Gramphorn organized in secret a company, and advertised for 400 men. The men were hired with little difficulty, but in a way rather unusual. It took a suspicious man to see the keen face behind a glass opening; he saw it, and tried to hit it. Gramphorn himself had decided upon the merits of each man; the mere act of pressing a button indicated "yes" or "no" to his assistant. The next day the people awoke to the fact that gold was plentiful, but that Gramphorn held all the stock.

This man now felt the peculiar exaltation of success; he had builded a second fortune, and he believed he had aroused a reciprocation of the tender passion in the heart of Juliet Aumule. But the dead, especially in fiction, have a fashion of seeking again their earthly habitation, with none of their passion quelled by their reported demise. So George again plots Gramphorn's destruction, but succeeds in saving his life. And, after all, it is George that Juliet loves. And poor Gramphorn, we cannot help feeling sorry for this hard working, indomitable man, is left to shiver in the loveless gleam of his millions.

"DRY NURSE FOR CUBA."

[From the Washington Post, Oct. 2.]

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE is one of the really great newspapers of the United States. It is, as it always has been, a republican paper, but it is not, and never has been, in the organ class. Expressing its own views clearly and forcibly on all political questions, it exerts an influence scarcely second to that of any American journal, not excepting the principal newspapers of the national metropolis. The Cuban situation, like any other national question that has arisen since THE TRIBUNE's busy life began, finds that paper prepared for its discussion, and here is what it has to say thereon.

[The editorial referred to is quoted entire, followed by the Post's further comment:]

The best possible service that the United States could render, as the sovereign of Cuba, and in that relation charged with the duty and responsibility of governing her inhabitants, is to complete her political union with our continental domain. No other nation on earth, situated as we were when, at the end of the war of 1898, Cuba came into the control of her liberator, came into the fraternal care of the nation that had waged a costly war to deliver her from Spain, would have permitted her to try the experiment of semi-independence. No other nation, situated as we are now, would dream of repeating that indulgence. Cuba's best good, and the rights, interests, and duty of this republic, all demand annexation. And this is the view that congress is most likely to take. If we must fill the place of "dry nurse for Cuba"—and that is just what we are bound to do—let us discharge that duty in close contact, not at long range. Even the short distance that intervenes between the Gem of the Antilles and our coast is long enough to render armed intervention extremely inconvenient and costly. What Cuba needs is peace. That means prosperity. It can only come to her by our assertion and exercise of all the rights and our discharge of all the duties implied by sovereignty.

NEWS OF THE THEATERS.

Strongheart.

Robert Edeson returned to Powers' on Monday evening and will be the attraction there for the fortnight. He is presenting "Strongheart," the excellent drama by De Mille, in which he scored immediate favor when he first offered it here last November.

On the occasion of its former viewing satisfaction was expressed that Mr. Edeson at last had found a play which gave him opportunity to prove his virility and strength as an actor. He had lingered long in the realm of the "sweetly pretty" as regards heroes, and his admirers had come to fear that his talents had become weakened and stunted. "Strongheart" gave him chance to do some simple, forceful acting and he made the most of the chance. Seeing him again last evening in the rôle of the Indian the same cause for satisfaction was discovered. He still plays the grateful rôle admirably. He has not fussed it or tried to "improve" it by elaborating. He has held it direct, clear, sincere, and the result is an impersonation of distinct power, a stage figure which will linger in memory and be recalled with pleasure.

"Strongheart" itself is a play of worth, being entitled, in fact, to a place among the best that any of our present day American writers have supplied. It tells an interesting story interestingly, it deals with a problem and does so honestly, logically, and convincingly, and it contains such a liberal supply of college life excitement and spirit that the attractive form of bright comedy is given to a play which in fact has a serious question of race as its fundamental idea. We have had few college football games that are managed with more effectiveness than is the one in the second act of "Strongheart," few plays contain a more telling third act, and rarely has any of our native playwrights hit upon a more artistic and true ending than is supplied by this Indian, standing with upstretched arms, praying to the Great Spirit of his fathers for help because he is "so alone." It is a play which nearly every amusement seeker cannot but enjoy, and it is one which calls for little other than unqualified approval.

The performance now offered at Powers' is almost identical with that seen a year ago. And as the one then was worthy of hearty commendation because of the balance, smoothness and finish that characterized it, so is the one now given. The cast has only two changes in principals. Louise Drew, who formerly played Molly, is replaced by Marjorie Wood, a pretty young actress, who does the girlish rôle with spirit and good understanding. Byron Beasley now has the part of Dick, formerly played by Mr. Gheen. He does acceptably all that is required of him. Mary Boland still is the Dorothy, and save for her over emphasis in the third act is attractive and satisfactory. Frank McIntyre is the fatsome Billy of the cast and plays the grateful part with all the delightful unction, personal good nature, and nice discrimination that formerly made his impersonation a joy. Harrison Ford repeats his capital bit of acting as the lamed football player in act II., Mr. Ainsworth continues to accomplish good results with the rascally Thorne, and Ida Hardy still is commendable as the loud voiced coach, Buckley, and as the stately Indian, Black Eagle.

The audience last night was genuinely enthusiastic and insisted upon a speech from Mr. Edeson after the third act.

This evening in Kimball hall a concert will be given by L. Gaston Gottschalk, baritone, and F. Deis, pianist.

Tomorrow evening the second of the Dwight Elmendorf lecture talks will take place in Orchestra hall, the subject being "The Rhine." In Music hall a concert of violin and piano music will be offered by Mr. and Mrs. Frederik Frederiksen and in Auditorium Recital hall the Steindel Trio will be heard in its first chamber music concert.

Kyrle Bellew will lecture on "Church and Stage" tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock in Music hall before the Actor's Church alliance.

Mrs. Fiske's New Play.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—An enthusiastic reception was accorded the production of "The New York Idea," Langdon Mitchell's new play of New York society by Mrs. Fiske and the Manhattan company at the Shubert theater tonight. A crowded house applauded the brilliant lines and the exquisite acting of Mrs. Fiske and her associates. At the end of each act there were curtain calls. Mrs. Fiske's Cynthia Kerslake was a gem of subtle sentiment and delicate comedy. In the lighter scenes her humor was irresistible, but there were moments when she brought tears to the eyes. In every way her acting was a delight. John Mason, George Arliss, Charles Harbury, Dudley Clinton, and Dorothy Dorr were leading members of a cast practically flawless. Admirably artistic and tasteful settings and smart and stylish gowns were features in the all around excellence of the production.

Among the New Books

Elizabeth Godfrey, the author of a book called "THE BRIDAL OF ANSTACE," says at the outset that something new is to be undertaken. The well worn paths "beloved of our youth," where the marriage bells rang down the curtain and we went home content to take the author's word for it that they lived happily ever after, are to be deviated from.

Accordingly, the machinery of romance is stopped, the lever is reversed, the marriage bell sounds the warning, and we are off, speeding for the first half hour through a densely populated area, the intricacies of the Greek ceremony, the mystery of the bridegroom's disappearance, and then slacking down and running for the rest of the journey through a monotonous country consisting for the most part of the unhealthy swamps of an English girl's morbid taste for sorrow and sentimentality.

To be sure, it is an uncomfortable thing to be left by a Greek count at the altar almost—at least before the guests are out of the house, but we prefer to tender to Anstace our congratulations. The groom, having been previously married, but supposing his wife dead, receives among congratulatory telegrams one containing the news this wife and a child are alive. Off he goes to investigate, out through a rear door, with no word to his unsuspecting bride, who meanwhile is above stairs in her girlhood room, saying good-by to her old self. Indeed, this monologue farewell is so touching and Anstace has conducted herself with such aloofness during the ceremony that we are more than taken aback the next morning when the author enumerates quite casually among effects left upon our deserted heroine the fact that her hair had turned white. Indeed, the shock is all our own then, and if our feelings are easily worked on we falter to the mirror to find if our heads are as telltale as the heroine's.

The bridegroom, finding that his wife and child are actually alive and that Anstace has not become his legal wife, manfully deserts all three and ensconces himself within the fastnesses of monkish garb and the gates of Mont Athos, where woman is never admitted.

A lifelong devotion to such a Greek specimen of total depravity is the spectacle designed to fire our sympathy and admiration, but it is as well to attempt the ignition of damp firecrackers with wet matches.

In the final chapter, after the reader out of pure good humor has closed one eye while this strange bride catalogued Greek books in a library, there is a pilgrimage to a spot outside the forbidden gates, whither Anstace takes the child of her Greek count and his wife, for events have been so juggled that this child is left with Anstace. Logically, it is a crucial moment when the Greek groom, made pure in heart, it seems, by his apparel, but under the surveillance of a brother monk, gives the child into Anstace's keeping and says good-by forever. It is a crucial moment, but one's imagination must break loose and shake him up considerably before a tear, or its emotional equivalent, can be spilled over.

Houghton, Mifflin & Co. have published "JOHN GILPIN'S RIDE," with imitation of the little wood cut illustrations by Robert Seaver. The typography is modern, but the binding and illustrations are decidedly antique and quaint. They have an ancient flavor which exactly suits Cowper's old ballad.

Clark E. Carr has in a little book, "LINCOLN AT GETTYSBURG" (A. C. McClurg & Co.), told again the story of that memorable address on the battlefield, the occasion of its delivery, its reception, etc. Mr. Carr, who, as a young man, was present, explodes the tradition that Lincoln wrote it on the way from Washington to the dedication of the monument. It was partly composed before starting, but was written out entire after reaching Gettysburg. Mr. Carr says that the address was delivered unaccompanied by applause and received little when the speaker finished. It was considered disappointing in the extreme, and it was not until some time had elapsed that the country awoke to a realization that immortal words had been spoken.

There is nothing particularly new in Mr. Carr's little volume, but at the same time it is eminently proper at this time that anyone who was so fortunate as to have heard the address should comment upon it so interestingly as he has done.

Mr. Hamilton Holt has edited the stories of some twenty odd "UNDISTINGUISHED AMERICANS" (James Pott & Co.) from all ranks and occupations. The stories are told in the subjects' own words and some are written by the persons themselves. From the Japanese servant studying in America who felt his manhood insulted when offered a tip, who resented the superciliousness of masters, socially and intellectually his inferiors, to the German servant girl who found that life ideal which held for her the joys of Coney Island and a dance in the arms of "the best dancer" of her acquaintance, is a great step.

Between the life of a deep, fine souled woman, eager for self-improvement and ambitious to do things other than the routine of an Illinois farm, who felt herself stultifying in the atmosphere of incongeniality, and the story of the negro slave is another great contrast. The book is interesting as holding the views of the humbler upon the life that passes around them.

"THE RAINY DAY RAILROAD WAR," by Holman F. Day, is the story of the building of a railroad through a northern forest. In dry seasons, when there is danger of fire, no trains are to be run, and this gives rise to the unusual appellation.

A most interesting story is made out of the strange experiences of a dauntless young engineer, Rodney Parker, whose mission is to have the road completed by a specified date and without further orders.

Mr. Day has had the impunity to ignore the love story which would be an amateur's sine qua non, and so has been able to maintain a consistency which to the weary is most refreshing.

It is easily understood that sufficient interest was manifested in the appearance of this story in the Youth's Companion to warrant its incorporation in book form. (A. S. Barnes & Co., New York.)

That loveliest of heroines, Mr. Frankfort Moore's "JESSAMY BRIDE," appears in new guise, in a handsomely illustrated edition issued by Duffield & Co. of New York. It is ten years since this charming book first was published but it has in no wise lost its hold upon the public. The genial atmosphere of Dr. Johnson and his graceful but argumentative friends, the felicitous leisure of the book, and the sweetness and vivacity of the little heroine herself, have combined to make this a classic. The illustrations which decorate the present volume are in color, and are by C. Allen Gilbert. A more fitting gift for a studious maiden hardly could be found.

Mr. Robert Grier Cooke of New York has issued a catalogue of his books, which is in its way almost as interesting as a book itself. Although Mr. Cooke has not been long in the publishing business, he has already a respectable list of books of a distinctive and meritorious character. Not only this, but they are issued with a creditable regard for typography, paper, and binding. Mr. Cooke is, also, the American publisher of the Burlington Magazine, one of the most distinguished art publications printed in English.

It is not often that a book of essays bears the reprinting that Alexander Smith's "DREAMTHORP" has had. A pretty edition of these ever interesting papers has just been issued by Mitchell Kennerly of New York, with an appreciative and critical biographical introduction by J. Hogben. It contains a number of portraits.

HUMOR FROM ENGLAND.

In a spirit of patriotic lamentation the New York Haberdasher deplores the fact that the people of the United States borrow their fashions from this country. "It is," says the paper, "galling to our national pride to have to admit that we tread on the heels of England. The Haberdasher ought to cheer up. After all, most of the heels of England are made in America.—London Tribune.

NOT WHAT SHE MEANT.

Mabs—"You surely don't think anything of Percy Smithkins. I never could love a conceited fop like that."

Babs—"Nor I. I love another."—Pick-Me-Up.

SHE WAS COLD.

The unconscious humor of our peasantry is nowhere more marked than in Norfolk, and a certain Lady Bountiful came across a curious instance of it the other day. She was calling on a devoted old couple with such creature comforts as the doctor told her were suitable for the old man, who was dying and being tenderly nursed by his consort. Entering the cottage she saw the old dame leaning over the fire. "Ah, Susan," she said, "and how's John?"

"He be goan, mum, he be goan," muttered the old woman. "Leastways, I can't say that for sartain sure. But he did seem a-gwine just now. But there, it's that mortal cold up there that I had to come down to warm my hands!"—London Tribune.

GOT SQUARE WITH HIM.

A Lancashire youth walked up to a counter in a certain postoffice and asked for a penny stamp. It appeared, however, that he had got to the wrong counter for postage stamps, so the clerk said sarcastically:

"Next counter. Can't you read?"

The lad said nothing but went and bought the stamp and having affixed it to the letter he returned to where the clerk was sitting and asked: "If I post this letter tonight will it get to London by to-morn-at-morning?"

"Certainly," replied the clerk.

"Well, that's a lie. It won't, for it's going to Sheffield," replied the lad and quickly withdrew.—Weekly Telegraph.

NOT THE SAME.

"Mary," said a London woman to her servant, "I strongly object to your copying Miss Lucy in your dress."

"In what way do I copy her?" asked the cook haughtily.

"Why, the hat you wore yesterday is, I notice, exactly like my daughter's new hat."

"Hexcuse me, mum, it isn't. The feather in my 'at is real hostrich, but Miss Lucy's is only himitation!"—Pearson's Weekly.

PREMATURE.

It is reported that a chestnut tree in Portsmouth is in bloom. And we are still three months from the pantomime season.—London Tribune.

UNITE TO CHANGE SCHOOL METHODS

Chicago Educators Join the Growing Revolt Against 'Leisure Class Ideals.'

VANT LIFE WORK GIVEN.

Delegates Are Chosen to Attend National Convention of the Reformers.

Mayor Dunne's school board has been called upon to lend its aid and influence to a national revolt against the control of the public school by "the ideals of the leisure classes."

This is the radical slogan to be raised in New York some time next week or the week after, at the launching of an organization to be known as the National Association for the Promotion of Industrial Education, the call for which has been circulated quietly but widely for the last two months among "publicists, men of affairs, educators, social students, employers, and workmen."

The new organization proposes to break away from the National Educational association in an endeavor to promote the education of American youths for "life and industry" rather than for "college and the classics." It claims to mean "the advent of the trade school such as Germany knows and the exit of the American high school with its smattering of Greek, Latin, and the languages."

Some Delegates from Chicago.

Among the delegates who, it was learned last night, will go from Chicago are:

Emil W. Ritter, president board of education.
Miss Jane Addams, school trustee.
Louis F. Post, school trustee.
Graham Taylor, Chicago commons.
Dr. Frank B. Gunsaulus, Armour institute.
E. J. James, president University of Illinois.
F. E. Donnelly.
A. F. Nightingale, county superintendent of schools.
Prof. Charles R. Mann, University of Chicago.
G. W. Carman, Lewis institute.
Mrs. I. S. Blackwelder.
E. C. Cooley, superintendent of schools.
John C. Harding, school trustee.
Richard Waterman, Emmett school.
R. T. Crane.
Dr. Emil G. Hirsch, state board of charities.
A. W. Harris, president Northwestern university.
Prof. Charles Zueblin, University of Chicago.
Dean H. H. Belfield, University High school.
Dean Harry Pratt Judson, University of Chicago.

The national call, which is still undated, was issued by Henry S. Pritchett, former president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Prof. C. R. Richards of the Teachers' college, New York City; Milton P. Higgins, M. W. Alexander, and James P. Haney, all of New York City.

Explained by Prof. Mann.

Locally the movement has been promoted by Prof. C. R. Mann of the University of Chicago. He explained its social and educational significance.

"Our public schools are based on the essentially aristocratic and leisure class theory that the students are preparing for college," he said. "As a matter of fact, scarcely one student out of a hundred ever reaches college, and the ninety-nine therefore find their preparatory training a good deal of a misfit.

"What's the result? The boy who wants practical knowledge, an industrial training, finds that he must join a correspondence school and laboriously dig out for himself what the public school had refused to give him.

"And the result of that? Why, simply that, according to ex-President Pritchett of Boston 'Tech,' the correspondence schools have a larger enrollment than all our colleges, high schools, and academies combined. That is an impressive fact and one that the National Educational association has no business to ignore."

He went on to say that Germany had increased the number of its trade schools from 20 to more than 1,400 in less than fifteen years and is rapidly forging ahead in industrial development.

Favored by Supt. Cooley.

When the National Educational association met in Boston in 1903 an attempt was made to bring up the question, but the defenders of Greek and Latin in the "council" took alarm and ruled that there was no time left to consider it at that session. President Pritchett, Prof. Mann, and others accordingly drew up appropriate resolutions and saw to it that they were circulated in time for the next session, held in St. Louis in 1904, but the "council" smothered them without even noting on the minutes that they had been received. Now the advocates of the industrial training are in full revolt.

SMALL PARK CHIEF DROPS DEAD

Max Beutner Succumbs to Heart Disease While Untethering His Horse Near the City Hall.

Max Beutner, 3338 Armour avenue, 40 years old, superintendent of small parks, dropped dead yesterday afternoon while untethering his horse in La Salle street, near Washington. Heart disease is believed to have caused his death.

Mr. Beutner had been in charge of the playgrounds and bathing beaches of the city five years. He was idolized by the children, and they showed their regard for him several months ago by giving a series of "surprise parties" in his honor at the various playgrounds. At the parties the children served refreshments bought with money they had saved.

He had had several fainting spells recently, but he told Secretary O'Neill of the special park commission shortly before his death that he was feeling better.

Author of "Dorothy South," Etc. Illustrated. Cloth, $1.50

Mr. Eggleston's story will appeal to the thoughtful reader as well as to those who are interested only in the story he has to tell. There is all the mystification and fascination of the Arabian Nights story in following the career of Dr. Field Stanfield.—Springfield Union.

Mr. Eggleston has managed to surround his new people of fiction with mysteries which will keep his readers very busy and very pleasantly interested.—N. Y. World.

HEARTS AND THE CROSS
By HAROLD MORTON KRAMER
Illustrated. Cloth, $1.50

The book takes hold of the reader and keeps up its interest to the end. There are sensational incidents and stirring scenes, but they are not overdrawn, and the author seems to have a clear idea of the line that separates the sublime from the ridiculous. Mr. Kramer will be heard from again, and will doubtless add lustre to the list of writers that are proudly claimed by Indiana. —Boston Transcript.

EASTERN WOMAN WILL GET TITLE.

Westerners All Retired in the First Round of the Golf Tournament.

MRS. ANDERSON LOSES.

Chicago Representative Beaten by Mrs. Morgan; Only One Good Match.

West Newton, Mass., Oct. 9.—The women's national golf championship will remain in the east for another year. All western aspirants for the title were put out today in the first round of match play at the Brae Burn club.

The sixteen survivors are made up of nine from the Massachusetts district, four from New York, and three from Philadelphia.

Among the survivors are Miss Pauline Mackay of Boston, the present champion, and Miss Georgianna Bishop of Bridgeport, Conn., and Miss Frances C. Griscom of Philadelphia, both former champions.

Mrs. Anderson's Defeat.

Miss Helmer having defaulted and Miss Semple and Mrs. Roope having been beaten, Mrs. W. Fellowes Morgan, Baltusrol's representative, wife of the secretary of the United States Golf association, removed the last hope of the western contingent when she defeated Mrs. W. F. Anderson, representing the Hinsdale club of Chicago. It was as much Mrs. Morgan's good start as anything that brought her victory, for the third hole left her three up, she getting the opening holes in 4—5—5, good going. Mrs. Morgan was 2 up at the turn, and, playing more steadily than her opponent, won easily by 5 up and 4 to play.

The westerners did better in the medal handicap tournament played in the afternoon. Miss Frances Everett of Exmoor had the best gross score, 101, and Mrs. C. L. Dering of Midlothian was second with 102. Miss R. B. Steele of Homewood got 106, tying for seventh place in the gross scoring, and Mrs. L. A. Beidler of Lake Geneva had 108.

The handicap was won by Miss H. N. Carr of Springfield, Mass., who scored 106—16—90.

Four Chicago women returned no cards—Mrs. E. C. Berriman of Edgewater, Mrs. A. T. H. Brower of Evanston, Miss Isabella Smith of Evanston, and Miss E. P. Warren of Edgewater.

Of the sixteen contests which were decided today, only one failed to come up to expectations. Mrs. Caleb Fox of Philadelphia, one of the veteran players, was defeated by Mrs. S. F. Lefferts of Englewood, N. J., by a score of 2 up, 1 to play.

Play in Strong Breeze.

A southerly breeze which swept over the course at the start attained nearly hurricane proportions before the day was over. With the wind almost dead ahead it was difficult to negotiate the first nine holes.

Miss Bishop played the outward journey in 42 strokes, Miss Adams did it in 43, and Miss Griscom in 46.

While a majority of the matches were decided on the fourteenth, fifteenth, or sixteenth greens, two of them went over the eighteenth and one reached the twentieth for a decision. This last named contest which was between Miss Anita Phipps of Springfield and Miss Louisa A. Wells of Boston, was one of the features of the day. Miss Phipps led at the turn, two holes to the good, but Miss Wells caught her on the thirteenth green and won the fourteenth and fifteenth, but the Springfield player won the seventeenth and squared the eighteenth by a magnificent second shot of 180 yards to the green. In going to the extra hole Miss Phipps drove 190 yards straight into the wind, but could get nothing better than a half. Miss Wells lost the twentieth and the match by pulling her drive into the woods and following it by a poor second.

Summary of First Round.

Miss Frances C. Griscom, Merion, Philadelphia, defeated Mrs. M. D. Paterson, Englewood, N. J., 4 up, 3 to play.
Miss E. S. Porter, Country club, Boston, defeated Miss E. Hurry, Englewood, 1 up [19 holes].
Miss Mary B. Adams, Wollaston, Boston, defeated Mrs. G. C. Dutton, Oakley, Boston, 5 up, 4 to play.
Mrs. S. F. Lefferts, Englewood, N. J., defeated Mrs. Caleb F. Fox, Huntington Valley, Philadelphia, 2 up, 1 to play.
Miss Julia Mix, Englewood, defeated Miss Grace Semple, St. Louis, 5 up, 4 to play.
Mrs. R. H. Barlow, Merion, Philadelphia, defeated Mrs. Edwin Read, Lexington, Boston, 4 up, 2 to play.
Mrs. F. W. Batchelder, Oakley, Boston, defeated Miss Myra Helmer, Midlothian, Chicago, by default.
Miss G. Bishop, Brooklyn, Bridgeport, defeated Miss Mary C. Dutton, Oakley, Boston, 7 up, 6 to play.
Miss Frances C. Osgood, Country club, Boston, defeated Miss Grace Stulis, Oakley, Boston, 4 up, 2 to play.
Miss Harriet S. Curtis, Country club, Boston, defeated Mrs. G. H. Rooper, Denver, Colo., 4 up, 2 to play.
Mrs. W. Fellowes Morgan, Baltusrol, N. J., defeated Mrs. W. F. Anderson, Hinsdale, Chicago, 5 up, 4 to play.
Miss Pauline Mackay, Oakley, Boston, defeated Mrs. Alexander McGregor, Oakley, Boston, 4 up, 2 to play.
Miss Florence N. Ayres, Riverton, Philadelphia, defeated Miss F. O'G. Phepoe, Hamilton, O., 4 up, 3 to play.
Miss Catherine G. Harley, Fall River, defeated Miss Emily Lockwood, Country club, Boston, 5 up, 4 to play.
Miss Anita Phipps, Springfield, defeated Miss Louisa A. Wells, Country club, Boston, 1 up [20 holes].
Miss Marjorie W. Phelps, Brae Burn, Boston, defeated Mrs. G. Fisher, Commonwealth, Boston, 4 up, 3 to 1.

The drawings for the second round tomorrow are as follows:

Miss Griscom and Miss Porter.
Miss Adams and Mrs. Lefferts.
Miss Mix and Mrs. Barlow.
Mrs. Batchelder and Miss Bishop.
Miss Osgood and Miss Curtis.
Mrs. Morgan and Miss Mackay.

Foremost among the players who will compete is Willie Anderson of Onwentsia, the former national and western champion; Lawrence Auchterlonie, James Marshall, James Watson, Alec Baxter, Harry Collis, Jim Foulis, David Foulis, Bob White, and a number of other men from local clubs will be on hand. Sherwood, Canton, O.; J. Watson, Skokie, and L. Auchterlonie, Glen View; W. Lovekin, Rockford, and W. Anderson, Onwentsia; J. Melville, Elgin, and A. Naylor, Auburn Park.

Members of the National Freight Traffic Golf association will inaugurate their fall tournament today at the Exmoor Country club with the qualifying round at eighteen holes for the National Steel and Wire challenge cup and the championship, for which sixteen will qualify.

The second sixteen will be eligible for the Miller cup. Low scorer will get the Kaehler gold medal and second low scorer the silver medal. Gold and silver medals will go respectively to the winner and runner up in the main flight.

Tomorrow morning there will be match play in the championship and Miller cups. In the afternoon the defeated eights in the two flights will compete for the Traders' Dispatch and Lackawanna cups and the second round in the championship and Miller cups. An eighteen hole handicap open to members who failed to qualify in the first two divisions also is carded.

Saturday morning semi-final matches for all match play events are billed. Finals will be played in the afternoon. An eighteen hole handicap for the Flour Trade trophy, for which all members, excepting the finalists, are eligible, will conclude the tournament.

Best Golf Score by Ferguson.

Sioux City, Ia., Oct. 9.—H. H. Ferguson of Cedar Rapids won the low score medal in the qualifying round of the interstate golf tournament in progress here, making the eighteen holes in eighty-seven strokes.

MATCH ATTEL AND BAKER

FEATHERWEIGHTS TO BATTLE FOR TITLE AT LOS ANGELES.

Pacific Athletic Club Secures Little Fellows for Championship Contest—Both Agree to Make 122 Pounds Ringside—Manager Coffroth Finally Secures Sam Berger and Al Kaufmann to Fight Before His Club on Oct. 31—Considers Them Good Card

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—A match has been arranged for the featherweight championship of the world between Abe Attel and Harry Baker. The boys met in the office of the Pacific Athletic club at Los Angeles, and both agreed to the articles, which had previously been drawn up.

Attel seemed to fear Baker might have some difficulty in getting down to weight, and stipulated he would have to post a forfeit to make 122 pounds ringside. Baker seemed confident of being able to come down to that figure and agreed to post the forfeit. The two featherweights will cut the purse, 50 per cent of gate receipts, on a 60 and 40 per cent basis.

Sam Berger and Al Kaufmann were matched tonight by Manager James Coffroth to fight in San Francisco on Oct. 31. Billy Delaney signed for Kaufmann, who is expected here on Friday from the east. Coffroth thinks the house will be within a couple of thousand dollars of what O'Brien and Berger would have drawn. Even in the amateur class, Kaufmann and Berger never had a meeting and local interest in the match will be enough to draw a large house.

Schreck-Hart Bout Seems Sure.

Terre Haute, Ind., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Promoters of the Schreck-Hart bout have assurance that there will be no police interference, and are proceeding with the arrangements notwithstanding the police stopped the exhibition last night. It was at a club and in a place where from the beginning the police authorities said there should be no exhibitions.

Mowatt Has a Relapse.

Tommy Mowatt, the local pugilist, who has been down with typhoid fever and was much improved, had a relapse yesterday morning and is again in bad shape. His temperature yesterday was 104.

TRAITORS IN THE MAROON CAMP?

Stagg's New Formations Are Thought to Be Given to Outsiders.

SEEKING THE BETRAYERS

Varsity Team Again Runs Over the Ambitious Freshmen in Scrimmage.

Director Stagg lectured his maroons for thirty minutes yesterday for giving away secrets of the new plays which he has been teaching them behind closed gates for the last seven days. Outsiders have been furnished information of a serious nature on some of Stagg's pet new inventions, and the Midway chieftain is thoroughly aroused.

There is a black sheep in the maroon flock this year and trouble is feared before the end of the season. Stories of probable spies are given no credence by Stagg, but many of the members of the squad are suspicious about several of the new recruits who have been practicing with the varsity.

The regulars administered another severe dose to the freshmen yesterday in a hard scrimmage, scoring 38 points and allowing the first year youths no opportunity to get within striking distance of their goal. Steffen again figured prominently in the offensive play of the maroons.

M'GOFFIN REPORTS TO YOST.

Half Back Phones Coach at 2 A. M. After Arriving on Freight—Men Have Stiff Scrimmage.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—"Maggie" McGoffin, the fast little half back whose arrival has been so anxiously awaited by Coach Yost, dropped off a freight train in Ann Arbor last night and called up the coach to announce his arrival. When the telephone rang at 2 o'clock the sleepy Yost grumbled hello into the receiver and then he heard:

"Hello, coach. This is McGoffin, just got in."

"That so? How much do you weigh?" demanded Yost, wide awake in a minute.

"O, about 175."

"Good business."

Then McGoffin told how he had been working all summer in the wheat fields in Iowa, how last week he caught a freight train on the Great Northern at Cresco and beat his way to Duluth. There he shipped as deckhand on a vessel which was bound for Detroit. He reached Detroit last evening and rode a blind baggage to Ann Arbor. McGoffin has grown a beard and a mustache.

The men had a stiff scrimmage today. Twice the scrubs held them for downs on the five yard line. Curtis was kept busy kicking goals and was not allowed to mix in the play. After the scrimmage Yost instructed an entirely new lineup in some original formations he has worked out. The lineup was: Chandler, center; Graham, right guard; Patrick, right tackle; Newton, right end; Clement, left guard; Curtis, left tackle; Davis, left end; Bishop, quarter; Workman, left half back; Embs, full back; Wetmire, right half back.

MINNESOTA.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Cold, snappy weather put vim into the Minnesota football squad today and the men were worked hard for nearly two hours. After the usual hour of punting and passing the ball the men were divided into four squads and given some fast scrimmage. The first team kept the ball a large part of the time and succeeded in scoring twice on the scrubs. Fast work by Larkin and Snyder was the feature. Larkin has finally passed all his examinations and is declared eligible to play on the team. He is much in demand behind the line and undoubtedly will be played at either quarter or half.

ILLINOIS.

Urbana, Ill., Oct. 9.—A drop kick from the thirty yard line by Ovitz, with a hostile line breaking through on him, was the distinct feature of today's scrimmage. If Ovitz keeps up this kicking he will be a likely candidate for either end or back field. He is practically the only player on the squad able to drop kick. The race between Brooks and Sinnock for quarter back attracts great attention. Both men played well today. Disoway, a fast outfielder from Huff's baseball squad, joined the aspirants and so did Bradley, a regular who has been out of the game on account of illness.

WISCONSIN.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Again the "con" squad of the Wisconsin football team administered a defeat to the Phi Beta Kappa regulars this afternoon. The score was 4 to 0, Lorenz, captain of the "cons," making a goal from the field one minute before practice ceased.

FIGHTING BOOKMAKERS FINED.

Alvey and Stevens Assessed $1,000 Each for Episode of Monday at Churchill Downs.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 9.—The officials of the New Louisville Jockey club this afternoon fined Ed Alvey and Samuel Stevens $1,000 and suspended them for the remainder of the Churchill Downs fall meeting as punishment for engaging in a fight in the betting ring yesterday, during which Alvey drew a pistol and shot at Stevens.

Alvey also was compelled to scratch several of his horses entered for today's races.

Alvey was arraigned before Magistrate O'Connor today and a continuance granted until Saturday.

YAMA CHRISTY IS FIRST.

WINS THE CORINTHIAN STEEPLECHASE, FEATURE AT BELMONT.

Bonnie Brook Stable's Racer Finishes in Front in Event After W. C. Hayes, Who Has Mount on Grandpa, Is Thrown and Knocked Senseless—Oleroso Is Second and Pure Pepper Third—Fairview Stake Only a Gallop for Belle of Pequest.

New York, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Four favorites were successful at Belmont park today and the other two winners also were heavily backed. It began to rain heavily after the steeplechase and the track soon was turned into a sea of sloppy mud. The feature was the Corinthian open steeplechase handicap at two and one-half miles, in which Yama Christy was the winner.

Grandpa, ridden by his owner, W. C. Hayes, after being backed off the boards, fell at the first jump, Mr. Hayes being knocked senseless. After that the race was between the Bonnie Brook stable's Yama Christy and Charles Pfizer's Dick Roberts until the latter took a tumble on the backstretch. Then Yama Christy, with Mr. Devereux up, went on to the easiest kind of a victory by fifteen lengths with the Hampton stable's Oleroso at 20 to 1, second. Pure Pepper refused the last jump, but Mr. Page rode him back to the obstacle and took third money.

Stake to Belle of Pequest.

The Fairview stakes at a mile and a sixteenth, for 3 year olds, was only a gallop for R. H. Potter's Belle of Pequest, the favorite. Leonard Joe Hayman showed a form reversal by taking the place a length and a half in front of Athlete, the second choice.

Shaw rode a superb race on Frank Farrell's Grapple in the handicap at a mile. Grapple picked up 117 pounds. At the head of the stretch he was fourth, but he gradually forged to the front under an energetic ride until he passed the judges three parts of a length in front of James Curl's Orilene. T. Hitchcock Jr.'s Pater lasted long enough to take third money by a head from Red Friar at 15 to 1.

Belmont Park Summaries.

First race, selling, 1 mile—Samuel H. Harris, 107 pounds [Crimmins], 5 to 1, won; John Lyle, 98 [Garney], 5 to 1, second; Chimney Sweep, 101 [Horner], 7 to 1, third. Time, 1:39 2-5. Bivouac, Robador, Crestfallen, Dekaber, Mintia, Quinn Brady, Grevilla, Baron Faher, Columbia Girl, Bowling Bridge, and Daruma ran.

Second race, the Corinthian steeplechase, about 2½ miles—Yama Christy, 154 pounds [Deveraux], 9 to 2, won; Oterosa, 148 [Smith], 20 to 1, second; Pure Pepper, 150 [Page], 5 to 1, third. Time, 5:[illegible]. Grandpa and Dick Roberts fell.

Third race, 5½ furlongs, straight—Smiling Tom, 107 pounds [Horner], 7 to 5, won; Rollicking Girl, 104 [Myers], 30 to 1, second; Miss Spooner, 104 [Crimmins], 20 to 1, third. Time, not taken. # AUTOISTS PLAN NEW COURSE.

Committee Is Appointed to Consider Feasibility of Securing Private Grounds for Vanderbilt Cup Event.

New York, Oct. 9.—The directors of the American Automobile association, at a meeting yesterday, adopted a resolution providing for the appointment of a committee of three to consider the subject of conducting a Vanderbilt cup race next year on a private course. William K. Vanderbilt Jr., Jefferson De Mont Thompson, and A. R. Pardington were appointed.

The indications are the plan will be carried out. Mr. Pardington stated that no time would be lost in getting to work at once. The location of the proposed course will be near New York, but whether on Long Island or not depends upon the feasibility of the different plans to be considered.

The committee intends to secure a course that will give a racing circuit of from twenty-five to thirty miles.

VESTA BOY WINS WILSON STAKES.

Easily Defeats Custer, Owaissa, and Prince Hal at Lexington.

ONE HEAT IN CUP RACE.

Nutboy Easily Leads a Big Field to the Wire for the Walnut Hall.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 9.—Despite the cold, raw western wind, one of the largest crowds of the meeting attended the Kentucky Trotting Horsebreeders' course this afternoon. The main events were the Wilson stakes and the famous Walnut Hall cup. The stake was won by Vesta Boy, but only one heat was trotted in the cup race. Nutboy won this easily.

Vesta Boy found the heavy track just to his liking and he had no trouble in defeating a large field of such cracks as Custer, Owaissa, Prince Hal, and others. He won in straight heats and over the heavy track took a new record be going a mile in 2:07¼.

The victory of Nutboy in the first heat of the Walnut Hall Farm cup was only a jog for this great gelding. He is an overwhelming favorite, although the field is made up of fifteen of the best aged trotters of the year.

W. J. Lewis won the 2:08 trot and Baron Grattan won the 2:05 pace, both races being left over from yesterday. Both Lewis and Baron Grattan found it difficult to win. The former had a worthy competitor in the old mare Van Zandt, who won the third heat easily. Baron Grattan was forced to do his best to win the 2:05 pace from Alfalfa, who took the second heat. Ruby Lacey won the 2:18 pace in straight heats and surprised the shrewdest horsemen by her clever victory.

Secretary Wilson announced there would be six events on the program tomorrow and that racing would begin at 10:30 o'clock. The program will include the famous McDowell stakes for 2:09 trotters and the Lexington stake for 2 year old trotters. Today's summaries:

PLAY A TIE GAME AT ST. LOUIS.

Darkness Stops Contest Between Browns and Cardinals at End of Ninth Inning, Score Being 4 to 4.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Darkness ended the second game between the browns and cardinals today with the score tied at 4 to 4. The two teams battled hard for six innings to break the tie, but neither could get a run over the plate and the game was called by mutual consent at the end of the ninth.

While McCloskey's men outhit the browns, Pelty pitched effective ball at critical stages, and it was not his fault the cardinals piled up four runs in the first inning. Here is how it was done: O'Hara singled and Burch scratched a single down third base line, which O'Brien should have got. Bennett stopped a pitched ball with his anatomy, filling the bases. Jack Barry stepped to the plate and smashed one through Tom Jones. Jones failed to hold the ball, which enabled O'Hara and Burch to count. Murray and Holly, the new shortstop, followed with safe hits, scoring Bennett and Barry.

By hard uphill work the browns caught up, but never could pass the cardinals.

AFTER SALOONS AT LAST.

POLICE WARN WEST SIDE RESORTS TO OBEY THE LAW.

For First Time Since Chief Collins Entered Office These Places Are Watched for Violations of the 1 O'Clock Closing Ordinance—Recent Investigation Showed Dives Keeping Open Long After Hours and Selling Drinks Freely.

For the first time since John M. Collins was appointed chief of police, saloonkeepers on the west side were watched closely last night to prevent violations of the 1 o'clock closing ordinance. One saloonkeeper, Max Herman, Washington boulevard and Green street, owner of the saloon where the Dewey "club" held forth, has transferred his license to Isaac Meyers, a police character, and will "retire."

Owing to the recent exposure of the Dewey club by THE TRIBUNE Herman decided not to take any more chances. John Kelly, clerk in Justice Dooley's court in the Desplaines street station, was found to have been receiving a "rakeoff" from poker games for which he was supposed to furnish police protection.

An investigation of conditions along West Madison street, Washington boulevard, and Halsted street for the last week showed that certain saloons openly ignored the law. Schultz's saloon, Halsted and West Randolph streets, was open and drinks sold. Mark's saloon, Green and West Randolph streets, a block away, also kept its side door open all night.

Across the street in "Pete" Cohen's place, 219 West Randolph street, "Mose" Finkelstein, the bartender, told the visitor to go next door to a chop suey restaurant, where drinks would be served. In Charles Zobel's saloon, 225 West Randolph street, were four women at 1:45 Sunday morning. Drinks were sold freely. "Bob" Collins' saloon, Peoria and West Randolph street, was another place at which drinks were sold.

Across the street at another saloon owned by "Pete" Cohen, a young man stood outside calling to passers by: "Don't be dry, gentlemen; step in."

These conditions were general through the west side levee district. Inspector Revere has promised to see that the law is obeyed.

*Decrease.

President George J. Gould in the annual report calls attention to the fact that from the income for the six months, January to June, 1906, inclusive, there was a surplus applicable to dividends of $991,898, which, added to $492,709, the amount remaining after the regular dividends of 5 per cent, gives a surplus of $1,484,608. Mr. Gould announces that an arrangement has been made on satisfactory terms to extend until July 1, 1938, the third mortgage 7 per cent bonds of the Missouri Pacific railway company maturing Nov. 1, 1906, and outstanding in the par amount of $3,828,000.

Passenger Traffic and Mileage.

The spread of yellow fever in the latter half of 1905 over the territory of the company's southern lines, and the resultant rigid quarantine regulations which were established, placed an embargo on the traffic of that section of the country seriously affecting railway operations. Speaking of passenger traffic, Mr. Gould says that passenger earnings for the first six months of 1906, as compared with the same period of 1905 when normal conditions prevailed, show an increase of $956,720.

The total mileage operated on June 30 was divided as follows:

| | Miles. |
|---|---|
| The Missouri Pacific railway, main line and branches | 3,492 |
| The Central Branch railway | 388 |
| St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern railway and branches | 2,459 |
| Total, including duplication of 2.81 miles, operated by two companies | 6,339 |

Sanitary District Bonds.

Of the $500,000 sanitary district 4 per cent bonds offered for public subscription at par there have been sold $400,000, with applications for $50,000 more, leaving but $50,000 unapplied for. In view of the condition of the money market and the fact that some of the bond houses made a better offer for previous issues than the sanitary district did for this, the results have been quite satisfactory. The district intends to dispose of the remainder in the same manner as the $450,000 already taken.

America's Fine Credit Abroad.

Although American finance bills have been freely sold in London, it appears the credit of American financiers is unimpaired by the volume of bills placed. The London Statist has this to say:

"Owing to a misunderstanding we last week announced that the Bank of England had decided not to take more than a small percentage of American bills from brokers. This was an error. We understand that the bank directors discussed the question, but decided that American bills which had been placed in London were so good and so fine that such a course was impossible, and therefore adopted the alternative of raising the rate for the discount of bills for the market to 6½ per cent, and the rate for short loans to 5 per cent. There could be no doubt that the bank directors took the right view of the situation. American credit is undoubtedly first class and had London an ample supply of gold with which to meet the demands upon it, it would gladly accept the additional quantity of drafts of the same character. The fact of the matter is that London cannot spare more gold without incurring the danger of unduly depleting its banking reserve."

Americans Feature of London Market.

Speaking of general market conditions, the Statist continues:

"We consider gilt edged securities at the current level of prices are distinctly attractive. Sight must not be lost of the enormous gold output and the prospect that much more gold will be available next year for financing the monetary requirements of the international markets. In the first place the shipment of gold to the United States will greatly increase the supply of currency in that country and reduce the necessity for further increase. Secondly, it seems improbable that Russia will next year be able to absorb any gold. Indeed as the proceeds of the new loan are exhausted the possibilities are much more favorable to the export of gold from Russia.

"Doubtless the American market will continue to be the most active department of the stock exchange. The vast crops of the current year are bringing in immense revenue to all the railway companies and the estimate is that for the twelve months to June 30 next the profits will greatly exceed the unprecedented profits of the last year. With dividends increasing and with enormous traffic, good prices, and an active market seem to be assured, especially if the danger of money stringency shall disappear. It is, however, undesirable that persons who have not the command of resources should buy what they cannot pay for. Before the end of the year brings real ease there will be doubtless recurring periods of monetary and violent oscillation in prices."

Position of Atchison.

President E. P. Ripley of the Atchison has since the declaration of the dividend on the common at the rate of 5 per cent been discussing that subject, saying, among other things:

"There always will be certain expenditures which are not operating expenditures, but must be met out of income, and these will hereafter increase in gross amount, though I do not expect them to absorb any larger portion of earnings than they do now. The public demands constantly better service and more protection to life, which must be provided, though they contribute nothing to earnings.

"The period of expenditures out of income for such things as reduction of grades and elimination of curves is not even approaching an end. On the contrary, it will never pass so long as traffic continues to grow heavier. These expenditures can be regarded as an investment of the stockholder's money, for in the end they reduce expenses and thus increase earnings. A grade reduction which a railroad cannot at one time afford may become advisable at another time when traffic has become much heavier, and so these improvements must go indefinitely on. As for the Atchison, there are still some grades that from time to time can be reduced.

"Such work as double tracking can be properly charged to capital account. In some measure it is done to lessen risk to life and to save time for shippers, but it also enlarges the capacity and earning power of the road. The immediate effect of double tracking is that your business, which was too much for one track, is not enough for two, but where a second track is laid the traffic usually grows up to it in a short time."

IN FOREIGN MONEY MARKETS.

LONDON, Oct. 9.—Money was in quiet demand in the market today and supplies were plentiful. Discounts were dull. Trading on the stock exchange was dull. Russians further hardened.

Americans were active in the afternoon, United States Steel and Canadian Pacific receiving good attention. There was a slight reaction, but prices closed steady. Copper shares, with the exception of Bostons, were easier. Japanese imperial 6s of 1904 closed at 100⅝.

BERLIN, Oct. 9.—Prices on the boerse today were firmer. The Imperial bank committee has been summoned to meet tomorrow and it is believed that beyond doubt the bank's discount rate will be raised to 6 per cent.

PARIS, Oct. 9.—Prices on the bourse today weakened. Russian imperial 4s closed at 71.20 and Russian bonds of 1904 at 488.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 9.—There was a holiday on the bourse today.

Turn Your Face Into Dollars.

Many a Man Has Failed Because His Face Was a Picture of Calamity.

It takes sunshine to produce a rose, a perfect rose. And so man, to be successful, must have sunshine inside. The life which has it not, which has no health and no happiness, is sour, surly, pessimistic, and a failure. The world already has too many vinegar faces that breathe ill-will and strife. The world wants joy, comfort, sunshine, and will cling to the man who has it, who radiates gladness and triumph wherever he is and under all circumstances.

Some people have a genius for seeking out the disagreeable, the crooked, the bad and the ugly. These are the destroyers; they travel in schools, they herd together for they love their kind, and the cheerful part of the world will have nothing to do with them.

And why is it that so many peddle disaster, knowing at the same time that if they do their lives will be ruined? Some people cannot help it, for pessimism usually comes from bodily disorders, and this cannot always be prevented. The stomach, for instance, is the most common cause of discontent, sour face, recklessness, disgust and lack of ambition. A bad stomach—there is the secret of many a failure. Anyone can have a good stomach, a strong stomach, a stomach that can take care of anything and everything that is put into it, no matter whether it is a very bad stomach now or not. Then why not have it?

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets do this very thing. One ingredient of these little tablets digests 3,000 grains of food, and no matter how bad is your dyspepsia or indigestion, these tablets will digest everything in your stomach, thoroughly and completely, and better and quicker than a healthy stomach can do the same thing. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure quickly loss of appetite, brash, irritation, burning sensations, nausea, heartburn, eructations, loss of vim and spirit, bad memory, and dyspepsia and indigestion in their worst forms.

No other little tablets in the world can do so much. You should carry Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets around with you wherever you go and take them after meals. Then only will you realize what it is to enjoy a meal, and what perfect digestion means. Your whole body and your mind will feel the effects; your vim will increase, you will be more satisfied with what the world does, you will think happier and be happier and your face will be one of supreme contentment. That will bring you success and then more success. Your face will bring you dollars. Try it. It will cost you just 50c for a package of these wonderful Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, at any drug store on earth.

WHEAT DULL AND FIRMER.

COVERING BY SHORTS LENDS STRENGTH TO MARKET.

Liverpool Gives Good Response to Firmness Here the Day Before—Northwest Reports Big Shipments of Flour to Russia and China—Snow Makes Estimates—Corn and Oats Strong and in Narrow Bounds—Provisions Higher.

Dull and fluctuating within narrow limits, wheat yesterday displayed a firmer undertone, finishing prices showing gains of ⅛c for December and ⅛@¼c for May. Stimulating influences were strength at Liverpool, soundness to the domestic cash situation, and reports of big flour sales to Russia and the orient.

Speculative activity was held in check pending the issuance of the government's October report, due at 1 o'clock this afternoon, Chicago time, but throughout there was a belief that the figures would be mildly bullish as compared to those given out a month ago.

Liverpool Responds to Advance.

Liverpool gave full response to the firmness shown here the day before, closing ⅛@¼d higher. Continental markets also displayed strength. After the first few minutes of trading, in which transactions were evenly divided, intense dullness set in, operators appearing to devote more interest to the Cubs-White Sox game than to the market itself. Outside business was at a standstill. Most of the support came from scattered shorts, although it was said considerable buying on the weaker spots was for local long account.

A message from Portland, Ore., had it that big shipments of flour had been made to Russia and China, and Minneapolis advices indicated strength in the domestic flour situation.—Premiums at the Minnesota center were slightly enhanced for the cash grain, and Kansas City reported briskness and soundness in its dealings at the sample tables.

The receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis were 950 cars, compared to 1,117 cars a week before and 885 cars the corresponding day in 1905. Local arrivals were 95 cars, of which 29 graded contract. Primary receipts—1,203,000 bu—were slightly in excess of those of the similar day last year.

Expert Snow came out with an estimate of a total wheat yield of 776,363,000 bu, allowing 277,000,000 bu for the spring. It was generally believed that the government's estimate of the total production would be nearer 750,000,000 bu. Men who try to be correct expressed a belief that the government would fix the crop in Minnesota and the Dakotas in the neighborhood of 175,000,000 bu.

Chicagoans Buy in Southwest.

Chicagoans were reported fair buyers of futures in the southwest, and some of the late buying here was attributed to northwestern shorts. Duluth reported some export sales of durum, but easterners had little of an encouraging sort to tell about the foreign demand, most of them declaring that bids were out of line.

Corn Firm and Quiet.

Pronounced dullness prevailed in the corn market, but throughout there was a firm undertone. Closing quotations showed ⅛c higher for December and unchanged for May. A good business in exports for later shipment was reported, but the shipping demand for the old grain continued weak. Local receipts were 348 cars, of which 223 were graded contract. Bradstreet's statement showed an increase in the world's available supplies of 529,000 bu, against a loss of 1,094,000 bu last year. The lower temperatures in the west were figured as favorable to the curing of the growing grain.

Oats Active and Stronger.

There was a moderately active trade in oats, with values showing a firm tone from start to finish. The market was relatively the liveliest in the list. Principal support came from shorts and commission houses. The harder spots found recent buyers on the selling side. Expert Snow predicted that the total crop of the cereal would be about 930,000,000 bu, compared to 796,000,000 bu, the government's estimate last month. He believed that today's statement from Washington would show an estimated yield of 850,000,000 bu. Chicago traders, generally speaking, do not look for such a large estimate.

Local receipts were 363 cars, of which 67 graded contract. Clearances at the seaboard were practically nil. Closing prices were 1-16c higher.

Hog Products Have a Rise.

Hog products showed strength throughout, closing at advance of 17½@20c for January pork, 7½@10c up for lard, and 10@20c stronger for ribs. Trade was more active, with the investment buying a feature. English houses and local longs led in the selling. Chicago's shipments of meats were in excess of those of last year, but those of lard were comparatively smaller. Receipts of hogs at the leading western points were 57,000, against 70,600 the corresponding day last year.

Rye Offerings Are Light.

Rye offerings were light with prices firm. Receipts were 16 cars. No. 2 free on board sold at 65@65½c; No. 3, 57@62½c; No. 4, 60c. October sold at 60c. December was 62½c bid.

Barley was firm. Receipts were 104 cars. Feed was quoted 38@39c; malting, 44@55c; screenings, 30@43c.

Flax seed was 1½c higher nominally, but trade was light. No. 1 northwestern was quoted $1.12½; October, $1.06½; No. 1, $1.06. Receipts were 1 car, with 84 cars at Minneapolis and 249 cars at Duluth.

Timothy seed was firm for cash seed. Country lots, new seed, were quoted $3.00@3.85. October sold at $4.00. December was $4.02½ bid; March, $4.10 bid.

Clover was higher in sympathy with outside markets. October was $13.00, and cash seed poor to choice, $8.00@12.75.

INTERESTING TRADE GOSSIP ON 'CHANGE.

B. W. Snow's October crop report makes the condition of corn 89.9 against his estimate of 90.9 on Sept. 1. The crop of corn is made and this conditional figures indicates a yield of at least 2,750,000,000 bu, with husking results likely to prove rather above than below the conditional indication. The final estimate of the wheat crop, based upon thrashing results in practically all counties of importance, is for winter wheat 16.2 bu per acre; a total of 499,584,000 bu; for spring wheat, 14.4 bu per acre, or a total of 276,779,000 bu, making the total crop of 1906 776,363,000 bu. Thrashing returns for oats give an average yield of 30.7 bu, or a crop of 930,000,000 bu, against a similar estimate of 1,003,000,000 bu last year. This information, according to the report, warrants the expectation that the government report today will show a spring wheat crop of about 260,000,000 bu, a total wheat crop of about 750,000,000 bu; and an oats crop of about 850,000,000 bu, against the official estimate of 953,000,000 bu last year.

"One of the encouraging features in wheat is the fact that most of the weak holders have gone out of the market. The large holdings in strong hands would not come out even on a 5c decline," said Noyes of Finley Barrell & Co. "We look for foreign support on all dips and for this reason believe we shall have an advance, although it probably will be a slow one."

The increase during September equaled 36,451,000 bu, compared with an increase of 14,684,000 bu during August, and an increase of 27,621,000 bu during September, 1905.

Dornbusch says of the Russian situation: "Harvest in Dneiper region was not a favorable one for condition. Grain arriving at port is damp, of light weight, and under average quality to such an extent as to make it difficult to mix in the Kherson market and to sell readily abroad. To add further to the depression of trade, banks are refusing to guarantee the quality and weight in wheat as indicated in the bills of lading. This has impaired the credit of exporters."

Broomhall's weekly crop summary said:

"United Kingdom—Rain has fallen, but it has been insufficient.

"France—Beneficial rains have fallen. Growers hold firmly. The oats crop is officially estimated this year at 312,100,000 bu, against 322,000,000 bu last year.

"Germany—Fair progress is being made with seeding. Supplies are small.

"Hungary-Roumania—The weather is favorable for seeding; supplies liberal.

"Russia—Good rains. Complaints of delay in seeding. Southwest supplies large. Azoff arrivals small.

"Australia—Splendid rains and crop prospects excellent.

"India—Seeding is progressing favorably. Shipments of wheat are expected to continue light, but may increase considerably in January and February if crops are promising.

"Italy, Spain, and North Africa—Occasional complaints are heard with regard to the weather, but prospects are generally favorable."

The cash wheat market yesterday was characterized by extreme dullness, there being only a small demand for car lots from millers, no sales of round lots being reported. Export bids were about on the same basis as during the last few days, no new feature in the situation being noted. Prices were relatively unchanged. No. 2 red was quoted 2½c under December on track, and No. 2 hard 1c under. Kansas City reported prices ½@1c higher, with excellent demand. St. Louis was dull and a shade higher for sample wheat. Stocks there showed a small decrease.

A slightly better cash demand existed at Minneapolis, with No. 1 northern 1¾@2c over December, and No. 2 northern December price ¼c under. Munn of New York wired Love: "Offerings of Duluth and Manitoba wheat have dried up, in fact, they are trying to buy back wheat sold c. i. f. Buffalo only a few days ago."

The market for cash corn was exceedingly quiet, the inquiry being slow. Some receivers said farmers were offering new corn for the first half of November shipment freely, and that they were buying a considerable quantity every day. Prices were unchanged to ½c higher. Oats were steady to ½c up, with only a fair demand.

Local cash sales were 67,000 bu wheat, including 25,000 bu No. 2 red, 10,000 bu No. 2 hard, and 10,000 bu No. 1 northern; 90,000 bu corn, and 150,000 bu oats. Seaboard sales were 120,000 bu wheat, including 16,000 bu No. 2 red and 24,000 bu durum wheat from New York, 82,000 bu corn, and 80,000 bu oats.

Closing prices for wheat in foreign markets were: Liverpool, ⅛@¼d higher; Paris, ⅛@1¼c higher; Antwerp, unchanged to ⅝c higher; Berlin, ⅛c higher; Budapest, ⅛c higher.

Broomhall quoted a disappointing spot trade in wheat at Liverpool.

Country receipts in the northwest are said to continue large and lines operating in the north are becoming blocked. One line with about ninety houses in all has twenty-five blocked. In the southern part of the spring wheat belt advices indicate that the receipts are still moderate, but are steadily increasing. The weather has been favorable for plowing. It is claimed that as the country elevators are nearly all filled with wheat in the Dakotas, plowing will have no effect on the receipts at Duluth and Minneapolis.

Updike, Gifford, O'Brien, Gillett, and Shearson-Hammill bought wheat. Around 79c there was good selling, the crowd crediting it to Valentine. Kneeland, Rankin, Booth, and Sickel-Roberts were fair sellers. Comstock, Geahart, and Ash bought corn. Ash bought 250,000 bu October, and sold the same amount of May at 2c difference. Bartlett-Frazier, Sickel-Roberts, Updike, and Peavey were the best sellers. In oats, Rankin, Canby, and Lamson led the buying. The pit crowd, Wells, and Buckley sold freely. Commission houses bought provisions. English houses were good sellers.

Northwest receipts of wheat were less than last week, but more than a year ago. Total arrivals at the two points were 950 cars, against 1,117 cars last week and 885 cars a year ago. Total receipts at primary points overran last year by 68,000 bu. Stocks at Minneapolis showed an increase of 200,000 bu for three days. Winnipeg had 691 cars, compared to 994 last year.

The commissioner of agriculture of Saskatchewan is trying to arrange for wheat west of Moose Jaw to go out over the Soo line to Minneapolis and Detroit at the Fort William rate.

Winnipeg wired Barrell & Co.: "Shipping houses are again resellers of cash wheat this morning. It looks as if our nearby deliveries are wabbling at the top."

The directors of the board voted to retire the eleven memberships which have been posted for withdrawal under the rules the requisite ten days. The board will pay the applicants for withdrawal $2,400 for their membership. The present membership of the board is 1,745. But if all the members who have applied for withdrawal accept the board's offer the membership will be reduced to 1,734 the smallest number in a long time. The directors have referred the case of D. C. Hoffman to a committee.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK MARKET.

The cattle market was quiet yesterday, although the buying was fairly steady throughout the day. There was a fair demand for native stock. Purchasers of butcher cattle also were active, the packers being the best buyers.

Sheep and lamb prices were steady. As the day progressed the demand for lambs increased while there was a perceptible advance in the prices offered. The packers were active in buying the best class of killing stuff.

The hog market closed weak. Buyers showed no anxiety to take hold even at the declines. The prices averaged 10c less than on the preceding day.

The receipts of live stock were: Cattle, 7,500; hogs, 16,000; sheep, 25,000.

FEW FEATURES WITHSTAND THE LETHARGY IN GOTHAM MARKET

Pennsylvania Railroad Is Practically Only Issue Which Does Not Fall Before Droop Which Sets In During the Latter Part of Session—Controlling Powers Are Supposed to Be Behind Action Which Puts Life Out of Dealings.

[BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Pennsylvania was the only feature to withstand the general lethargy in force on the stock exchange during the better part of the session today, the remainder of the list failing to follow the leadership of the few issues which showed strength. The heavy tone persisted to the end of the session.

The forces back of the movement which brought about the neglect of the market were not clear, but it was thought that the controlling powers desired speculative quiet and brought it about by supplying large amounts of stock on every advance and neglecting to make large transactions.

The railroad list was conspicuously neglected and Pennsylvania was the only stock of first rate importance to show any large activity or mobility. There were some large buying operations in that stock accompanied by rumors of an intention to raise the dividend rate to 7 per cent at the next dividend period.

There was a rise of a point also in the subsidy Chesapeake and Ohio, but when it became known that the directors who were expected to act on an increased dividend today had failed to secure a quorum the movement ran out. A rumored dividend increase stimulated Amalgamated Copper in the early dealings.

The moderate strength in Union Pacific was due to the expectation of the early publication of the annual report in pamphlet form which is expected to contain matter to commend the stock to buyers. General Electric advanced on rumors of an intended stock issue with valuable subscription privileges. It carried with it other stocks of companies in the same line of industry, notably Westinghouse Electric, American Locomotive, and Allis-Chalmers. American Smelting also extended its recent large advance.

Bonds were firm. Total sales, par value, $5,362,000. United States bonds were unchanged on call.

Money on call firm, 3½@4¼ per cent; ruling rate, 4 per cent; closing bid 3½ per cent, offered at 4 per cent. Time loans easy; sixty days, 5¼@6 per cent; ninety days, 6@6½ per cent; six months, 5¼@6 per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 6@7 per cent. Sterling exchange strong, with actual business in bankers' bills at 484.85@484.90 for demand and at 480.85@480.90 for sixty day bills; posted rates, 481@481½ and 485@485½; commercial bills, 480¼@480½. Bar silver, 68¾c. Mexican dollars, 53c. Government bonds steady. Railroad bonds firm.

REAL ESTATE—SUBURBAN.

FOR SALE—SUBURBAN HOME—

I offer my Maywood home for sale on easy terms. It is located on one of the best corners in town, and building is 3 years old. Has 8 rooms. Unique reception room and hall, with mantel and fireplace; parlor, dining room, and kitchen, with large pantry downstairs. Oak finish and floors downstairs, except kitchen, which has maple floor and hard pine trim. Four bedrooms upstairs, liberal closet room, finished in white enamel with hard pine floors. Bathroom of generous size with modern open plumbing. Large attic. Full size basement with cement floor and laundry tubs. First class furnace with hot water coil. Large grounds are very attractive with young grapes, apples, cherry, plum, and pear trees, currants, shrubs, etc. Chicken house in rear.

TERMS OF SALE.

Since I purchased this house, values have gone up 10 per cent or more all around me. Including improvements I have made, I have over $1,800 invested in the property and with increase in value, my interest is easily $2,000. If you will pay me $1,200 cash for my $2,000 interest you can have the place and pay the balance like rent, and the monthly payments will be less than you would pay as rent for a good 6 room flat. I think this is one of the neatest suburban homes around Chicago and it is offered on most attractive terms.

TRANSPORTATION.

Finest train service around Chicago over three lines. Chicago and Northwestern express service, 20 minutes to Wells-st.; Aurora, Elgin and Chicago third rail electric, 31 minutes to 5th-av. and Jackson-blvd.; Madison-st. electric to State-st.

REASON FOR SELLING.

Have become so much in love with suburban life after three years in Maywood that I want to go further out and build a five acre tract.

House may be seen day or night or Sunday, as it is occupied by owner. Will give immediate possession or will rent the place from now owner until May 1.

Address C C 534, Tribune.

COLOR OUT OF BARTZEN'S FIELD

Building Commissioner Decides He Has No Jurisdiction Over Esthetics of County Building.

It is not likely that the city building department will take any action even if some of the granite in the new county building is slightly "off color." Building Commissioner Bartzen decided last night that he will not meddle in the esthetic affairs of the county government. He went to the county building with former Ald. John Minwegen at the latter's request and looked at the stone pointed out by Mr. Minwegen. The commissioner felt that as long as the structure is being put up in a safe manner the color of the granite is none of his affair.

RAILROADS FACE FREIGHT DELUGE.

Rapid Increase of Traffic Threatens Car Shortage and Blockade.

SHIPPERS URGED TO AID.

Meeting of Passenger Committee Thought to Presage Flat Two Cent Fare.

The congestion of freight traffic has increased so fast within the last few days that railway officials fear they are soon to be face to face with a blockade. Conditions on the eastern roads, which have not only to handle the business which they originate but have the crops of the west pouring upon them for export, are naturally the worst, but those on the western lines also are rapidly becoming extremely serious.

With the approach of winter the movement of coal has swiftly grown heavier, aggravating the congested conditions which already existed, and traffic men say that they do not know what they will do for cars when the year's enormous crop of corn is ready for market, as it will be now in a short time.

A line belonging to one of the big eastern systems yesterday had orders for 4,235 cars which it could not fill. The Pennsylvania proposes to give notice that for thirty-six hours it will receive no consignments from the Pittsburg district, the object being to get time partly to clear the tracks of the cars which have accumulated on its lines west. The Hill lines have given notice that for the present they will be unable to receive further consignments of lumber from Washington east. These facts illustrate conditions which rapidly are going from bad to worse.

Shippers Send in Complaints.

The roads are daily being flooded with letters from shippers complaining because they cannot get cars. The vice president in charge of traffic of one of the large western systems said yesterday that the shippers could do more now than the railroads to relieve the situation. Unless the shippers recognized this fact and acted accordingly, he said, the roads would be forced speedily to unite in reducing the free storage period at destinations, which now varies from four to seven days.

"If shippers would reconsign and release cars as quickly as possible," said this official, "they could largely increase the efficiency of railway equipment. All the roads are now employing men at every large traffic center, whose business it is to visit shippers as their consignments arrive and urge them to keep cars as short a time as possible so they may be sent out again for more loads. Our system is now loading 65,000 cars of grain, coal, and lumber a month. If shippers would detain these cars an average of only one day less they would increase the efficiency of our equipment 10 per cent, and the same is true of all other lines. If shippers do not voluntarily perform their duty in this matter the roads will have to take steps to force them to perform it, or within a few weeks there will be the worst car blockade that this country ever saw."

Flat 2 Cent Fare Likely.

A call for a meeting of the joint passenger committee in New York next Friday was received in Chicago. The object of the meeting is to consider what steps shall be taken in reference to the action of the Pennsylvania in announcing a $20 1,000 mile mileage book good over its lines west. The committee is an exclusive institution, being composed of representatives of only the larger lines in eastern trunk line and central passenger territory, and it never meets except when some important matter demands attention. The call is believed by local officials of the eastern lines to indicate that the question of making a flat 2 cent fare in all eastern trunk line and central passenger territory is under consideration.

This question of a 2 cent fare will also be up for consideration at the meeting of the Central Passenger association, which will begin in Chicago today. The weaker lines are strenuously demanding that either a flat 2 cent rate shall be made or an interchangeable $20 mileage book shall be issued. They say the issuance of mileage books by the roads individually would be ruinous to them, as everybody would buy the mileage of the strong lines. Passenger officials generally concede that the almost certain upshot of the whole business will be a flat 2 cent fare.

C., H. & D. TO BE INDEPENDENT.

J. P. Morgan Makes Known Policy of Operation at Annual Meeting of Stockholders.

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 9.—The determination of J. Pierpont Morgan to operate the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton railroad independent of the Père Marquette and the Cincinnati, Chicago and Louisville was shown at the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton, which was held in the Cincinnati offices of that corporation today.

Lawrence Maxwell Jr., counsel for Mr. Morgan, explained to the stockholders the steps which are afoot to set aside the lease of the Père Marquette, and the act of Mr. Morgan, through the receiver, Judge Harmon, in disassociating the Cincinnati, Chicago and Louisville from any participation with the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton. Mr. Maxwell explained that the wisdom of those steps would be reflected in an increased value of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton stock when the ends sought by Mr. Morgan have been accomplished.

The stockholders voted 76,578 shares. The following directors were elected for a term of three years: R. R. Rhodes, Cleveland; Sam Spencer, New York; and W. L. Dechant, Middletown. The gross earnings for the fiscal period ending June 30, 1900, from operations were $8,898,417; the operating expenses, $6,419,189.

PULLMAN STOCKHOLDERS MEET

Men Who Want Increase in the Dividends Make Plans for Their Campaign.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—[Special.]—Pursuant to the call issued by Edward W. Henck, the stockholders of the Pullman company who are interested in the movement to secure larger dividends on their stock by the distribution of a part of the $27,000,000 surplus met today at 52 William street and organized.

Mr. Henck was elected chairman and authorized to appoint a committee of three to formulate a plan of action to ascertain what legal steps would be necessary in order to secure the desired end and report at a meeting to be called later by the chairman. Henry E. Smith of the Union League club, New York, and A. B. Kellogg of 308 Marine National bank building, Buffalo, were appointed to act with Mr. Henck as this committee.

About 5,000 shares were represented in the meeting held today, the holdings of each person present ranging from 200 to 600 shares. It was decided that the movement be undertaken in a friendly spirit; that the committee shall attend the annual meeting of the Pullman company in Chicago in November and present their request to the board of directors for a larger dividend and an explanation of the purposes for which the surplus is being utilized and accumulated.

If this meets with no favorable action on the part of the directors, other steps will be taken, the nature of which will be decided upon after the annual meeting.

N. Y. Life Still Fights Kimmel Case.

Rankin of Niles, Mich., who sued to recover $7,786 life insurance on George A. Kimmel, an Arkansas City (Kan.) banker, who disappeared in 1898.
